Racing Fans Pack Sandown

Race-goers packed the grandstand and field at Sandown park yesterday in sufficient numbers to virtually assure Victorians that racing will return to the area next year. The 5,000 fans poured $78,335 into the mutuel windows, well exceeding the $57,000 wagered by a smaller opening day crowd last Saturday. Racing continues at the Sidney track all week and winds up on the Thanksgiving holiday Monday. Colonist Handicap by Kentucky Bob, who picked three winners Saturday, is on Page 16. Form Chart is on Page 11.

Anger Over Algeria Issue

France's Delegation to UN Ordered Home as Protest

British Foreign Secretary Supports Paris Viewpoint

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The French government, bitter over a UN vote to debate the way France rules North African Algeria, ordered a boycott of the UN general assembly and its committees Saturday.

Decision on whether the French will cut away entirely from the UN was to be taken at a cabinet meeting in Paris. The cabinet met for two hours Saturday and recessed without reaching a decision. The whole delegation to the Assembly was ordered home in an overseas telephone call from Premier Edgar Faure in Paris to French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, temporarily heading the Assembly group here.

Herve Alphand, the new French permanent representative here, was also preparing to fly to Paris, on call for consultations. Pinay led the delegation walkout from the General Assembly hall Friday after delegates voted 28-27, with five abstentions, to reverse a Steering Committee decision which would have barred an Algerian debate.

France argued that Algeria is part of France and the UN must not intervene on domestic matters. Arab-Asian countries argued that the UN could properly discuss the question of human rights in Algeria.

Pinay and eight members of his country's UN General Assembly delegation left by air for Paris later Saturday night.

Before boarding the plane, Pinay told newsmen his group "would not attend any United Nations meetings, whether in regard to Algeria or anything else" until the French government has studied the situation thoroughly.

Commenting on a planned trip to Moscow by Prime Minister Edgar Faure, Pinay said:

"In view of what has happened in the UN General Assembly with regard to Algeria, it does not create enthusiasm for the trip. Now it is too soon to speak, in view of the situation. The atmosphere is not too favorable."

Members of the permanent delegation to the UN—as distinct from those sent here for the 10th Assembly session—were awaiting instructions on whether the withdrawal is total or partial and temporary.

Some diplomats here predicted a government crisis on the UN—Algeria situation, atop one brewing on Faure's program for Morocco. Whether Faure and Pinay would still be in the government Oct. 14, when they were scheduled to make a pre-Geneva visit to Moscow, was one of the intriguing questions raised here.

British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan, in Washington for informal talks with Secretary of States Dulles, characterized the incident as UN "growing pains."

"I think they (the French) protested against what they regard as dealing in their internal affairs, with which we have considerable sympathy," MacMillan told reporters.

Praying Woman Slain by Shot

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Mrs. Dorothy May Moore, 27, shot in the head while reciting the Lord's Prayer, died in county hospital here Saturday, the victim of a grisly joke.

Marysville Police Chief John Blevins said that Gene Alton Harvey, 23, of Beale Air Force base, took a revolver from Mrs. Moore's bedroom thinking it was unloaded.

He pointed it at her and told her to "say your prayers." Mrs. Moore started on the Lord's Prayer.

At the second line Harvey pulled the trigger. The gun just clicked.

She said the third line. He pulled again. It fired.

Chief's Lawyer Protests Disguise For 'Girl Friend'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer John G. Gould said Saturday he will demand that Helen Elizabeth Douglas take the stand undisguised when she appears for cross-examination at the resumption of the royal commission police inquiry here Tuesday.

Mr. Gould said he will discuss the issue with commission counsel J. G. Hutcheson Monday and then present his legal argument before commissioner R. H. Tupper when the hearing resumes after a 10-day adjournment.

Helen Douglas, testifying under her maiden name, has told the commission she had a five-year association with Chief Constable Walter Mulligan and had been given presents and money.

She was disguised with various wigs, clothes and accessories each time she appeared at the hearings.

Mr. Gould, counsel for Chief Mulligan, said today "it has been some centuries since a witness has been allowed to appear in a court in a mask and make an accusation. I see no difference between a mask and a disguise.

"It's a basic principle of justice," he added, "that a person making an accusation must stand up and be identified for purposes of cross-examination, which is a basic right in our courts.

"I will demand that she appear undisguised, and I will put her on view in the stand so the public can see her. I will ask her a few questions for the purpose of identication and then ask that she step down for a few days until I am ready to carry on a full cross-examination."

Another reason for his demand, the lawyer said, was that he consented to the woman's using her maiden name but did not know she would be disguised when she appeared in court.

He said he would not have consented to any disguise if he had known.

In her appearances before the commission, investigating charges of corruption and laxity within the police force, the woman was shielded by policemen from reporters and photographers and hustled in and out of the hearing room.

Tax Rental Deals Matter of Choice

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—With more than 170 delegates in attendance, the Dominion-provincial conference will open here on Monday, and indications are that tax rental agreements will be available to the provinces that want them.

The federal cabinet, which spent almost two days this week ironing out new proposals to be placed before the meeting, is understood to be ready to make the provinces a new offer to assure continuation of the tax rental plan.

The new proposals would be made under a new and more flexible set of formulas. The "have not" as well as the so-called "have" provinces would benefit.

Simultaneously, the federal government will offer the provinces an alternate plan which any or all could accept if they wished to remain out of the agreements. This proposal will be made largely to accommodate Quebec. Ottawa is not expecting the Duplessis government to accept any tax rental agreement plan Ottawa may be prepared to offer.

The conference, called primarily to deal with the question of tax agreements between Ottawa and the provinces which expire on March 31, 1957, also will consider:

1. A national health insurance plan, probably on a contributory basis.

2. Unemployment assistance.

Meeting Today

Mill Engineers Plan Strike Vote Monday

A strike vote will be taken Monday and Tuesday among powerhouse engineers and firemen in four Victoria lumber and shingle mills and from Monday until Friday at up-Island points and on the mainland.

The operating engineers' union, after a meeting last night, said it will meet with the Victoria men at 1 p.m. today in the labor hall.

A union spokesman said it was not policy to strike and the union will do everything in its power to avoid such action, "but we cannot accept an agreement negotiated by another union."

"We were not consulted and the settlement reached is considered far below the rates paid in other industries," the spokesman said.

The union was offered the same agreement as that accepted by the IWA, which gave an increase of five cents an hour this year and a similar amount next year.

Some 25 mills are affected, 11 of these on Vancouver Island.

Engineers' union demands were for a 10 per cent wage increase, three additional paid statutory holidays, dirty pay and other conditions applying to individual plants.

Wage rates now range from $1.55 an hour for second class firemen to $1.95½ for third class engineers.

Tear Gas Quells Jail Riot

BOSTON (AP) — Some 250 inmates of Suffolk County House of Correction, hurling stones, lumber and furniture, staged a tumultuous riot for more than two hours Saturday night before more than 150 police and firemen quelled them with tear gas and heavy streams of water.

At least 30 guards, firemen and policemen were struck by stones but none was injured seriously.

The jail, situated on Deer island in Boston harbor, was in an uproar from shortly after 6.30 p.m. (EDT) until the men were driven back to their cells at 8.50 p.m.

During the melee the inmates, most of them serving short terms for minor offences, set several fires in the yard, broke windows and furniture and for a time held control of the institution.

Police and firemen gradually herded the men from the yard into a cellblock by using streams of water.

Once in the building, the inmates smashed nearly everything breakable and threw the pieces at police and firemen.

Tear gas was fired into the cellblock and the men straggled out one by one. As they reached the doorway, they were grabbed by police and hustled into a nearby prison wing.

After the water and tear gas assault, a jail official said, "It looks like we've got the thing under control now."

Though Navy Ship Goes Aground, Show Impressive

VANCOUVER (CP—The destroyer HMCS Athabaskan went aground off smoke-shrouded Spanish Banks here Saturday but Exercise "Sea Serpent" was still a startling demonstration of co-operation and timing as Canada's three services combined for a mock raid on a city beach.

Navy authorities were not immediately available for comment on the grounding of the Tribal class warship but an officer said he understood the destroyer touched bottom only for a few minutes.

Two men were slightly injured in the exercise, one suffering a small burn and the other minor injuries from a piece of blank ammunition.

Exercise "Sea Serpent," involving 1,000 men from the navy, air force and army, was the most spectacular and realistic public demonstration here since the Second World War.

Brig. George Kitching, B.C. area commander, said the demonstration, in part, was to show people just what "an unpleasant business war can be."

Crowds Fail To Bother Boy Pastor

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ronnie Norgaard of Vancouver is only 13 but already he is standing up before crowds of more than 200 and delivering sermons.

The boy is the youngest minister attending the three-day assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses which opened here Friday. More than 2,000 Witnesses are attending the rally. Ronnie is completely at ease making up Bible sermons and discussing Bible topics. He admits, however, there are usually some raised eyebrows when he goes around on door-to-door calls.

"They ask a lot of questions before they'll believe I'm serious," he says.

The boy-minister puts in nine hours a month with his religious work.

World Series on TV One Hour Later Today

World Series baseball will be seen on television an hour later today, at 9.45 a.m. on CBUT (channel 2) and KOMO-TV (channel 4).

The fifth game between the Yankees and the Dodgers may also be heard on radio stations CJVI and CJOR, starting at the same time.

Community Chest Campaign

All-Out Drive for $210,000

Flag Ceremony Will Launch Red Feather Drive

When a simple Red Feather flag reaches the top of a flagpole at the Legislative Buildings at 3 this afternoon, the 1955 Community Chest campaign for $210,000 in Greater Victoria will be officially open.

First reports on progress of the 17th annual drive will be posted at noon tomorrow after firemen hoist a "Red Feather" thermometer at the Douglas and Fisgard corner of the Hudson's Bay Company department store, where new totals will be posted daily.

More than 250 volunteers from business men who began the industrial-commercial canvass of some 2,000 firms a week ago will step up their efforts. Another 1,400 canvassers will make final preparations for the residential drive begining Oct. 11.

Urging everyone to give "generous financial support to this worthwhile appeal," Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday:

"It is unnecessary for me to catalogue the good work of the 17 recognized health and welfare organizations which appeal for your help under the Red Feather campaign. Every thinking citizen must be fully aware of the magnificent work being performed by these organizations."

Everyone should give "as much as they can to help the less fortunate," said Mayor Claude Harrison. "There can be no doubt whatsoever as to benefits accruing from the Community Chest campaign.

"It is a monument to charity and civilization itself that such a campaign is in operation," he said. "We, therefore, should back it to the limit."

Acting-Premier Eric Martin will represent the provincial government and Ald. Austin Curtis the city during the official opening ceremonies this afternoon. Padre H. F. Pike of HMCS Naden will give the invocation and a Queen's Scout will raise the flag.

Representatives of the municipalities, the chamber of commerce, the armed forces, the RCMP and each of the 17 Red Feather agencies will also attend. Ceremonies include the bands of HMCS Naden and the Queen's Own Rifles and a QOR honor guard.

Chest president Courtney Haddock, campaign chairman R. M. (Dinty) Moore and Chest founder F. E. Winslow will speak to a canvassers' rally in the Odeon theatre tonight. The film, "The Night My Number Came Up," will be shown, courtesy of the J. Arthur Rank organization.

Committee chairmen are:

The 17 Red Feather agencies are: Victorian Order of Nurses, Family and Children's Service, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, John Howard Society, YMCA, YWCA, Fred Lansberg Sunshine Camp, Boy Scouts, Community Welfare Council, Canadian Welfare Council, Columbia Coast Mission, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Citizens' Recreation Rooms, Senior Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital, Christmas Bureau, and St. John Ambulance Association.

Donations can be allocated to one or more agencies, and are deductible for income tax purposes. Less than 3 per cent of total contributions goes to meet campaign costs.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MRS. JOSEPH CASEY, who died last week, will be remembered by many people for little acts of kindness. The wife of the reeve of Saanich was particularly kind to birds and animals.

Every day a little flock of mallard ducks crossed Gorge road to Mrs. Casey's place for a feed. It was said that Mrs. Casey bought a sack of grain every month to give them.

Once, when a mallard was run over and hurt, she spent $17 to build a pen in which she kept it until the injury healed. Instead of turning it loose among "those rough ducks" of the Gorge, she took it down to Beacon Hill park and liberated it among the fat pampered mallard that live on the people's bounty.

The ducks of the Gorge must feel bewildered when they cross the street and there is no friendly hand to scatter grain for them.

New evidence has come to me that there is still some spirit of adventure and independence left in the world.

For instance, a fellow I know started puffing a cigaret while he filled the gas tank of my car at a neighborhood pump.

"Doesn't it scare you to smoke with all those fumes around?" I asked.

"Oh, no," he said casually. "You have to die some time."

"I certainly admire your courage," I said, throwing him the money and stamping on the accelerator. I continued to admire his courage, from about half a mile away.

That sort of courage is like an oil painting. You have to stand back before you can enjoy it.

My friend has since ceased smoking at the gas-pump, and I buy gas from him sometimes. But I took my hat off to him, from a safe distance, for his fling at living dangerously.

The other day I dropped in to see some friends who had a new TV set. Instead of sitting stiffly in chairs, we all reclined on the floor. It was informal and cosy. In fact, we couldn't have sat anywhere else. My friends were just starting their home here. They had no furniture—except a stove, a bed and a TV set.

As long as we have young people who are ready to thumb their noses at convention, and start out with a few necessities like a stove, a bed and a TV set, there is hope for the world.

There was an error of fact in last week's "Profile" story of the Rev. D. C. O'Connell in the Islander magazine.

The name of the late G. E. B. Stoney, a fellow-cadet of Mr. O'Connell's on the training ship Conway, was wrongly associated with a prank which he did not commit.

Owing to a misunderstanding, he and another lad were said in the story to have mischievously taken one of the ship's boats and run away. In fact, this escapade was carried out by another cadet, who was expelled for it.

Mr. Stoney graduated honorably from the Conway; later became an airline pilot, and was killed as a fighter pilot in the Battle of Britain.

He did go in for other pranks, such as balancing on top of a mast, and "buzzing" the ship with an aircraft.

'Strictly for the Birds'

Harvesting bumper crop for farmer William Sapeluk of Aylmer, Ont., is "for the birds," strictly speaking. Because, as you may have guessed, it's quite a problem trying to harvest a crop, of all things, bird seed—a sample of which is displayed here by Betty Webster. While growing white and yellow millet is not unusual in Canada, Sapeluk said he was the first in this country to grow spray millet, a kind of dessert for birds.—(Central Press Canadian)

Mr. Wallace Says:

Loyalty to Crown Founded on Family

Clarence Wallace, British Columbia's retiring lieutenant-governor says that the thing that most impressed him during his tenure of office was the "tremendous love and loyalty of the people of the British Commonwealth for the royal family and the crown."

Speaking as honored guest at a Grey Cup football festival dinner Friday night, the lieutenant-governor said he was sure that the feeling is chiefly founded on "the love and admiration of the British people for true family life."

Mr. Wallace said he wishes more people could have the personal contact with Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh that he has had as lieutenant-governor.

He said that then "they would be better able to appreciate why this great depth of feeling exists for our royal family."

Mr. Wallace said the office of the lieutenant-governor fulfills an important place as a link between the crown and the people of the commonwealth and also as an "ever-growing place of importance in the development of the country."

Christmas Bureau, a Red Feather agency which takes only 20 cents of every $100 donated, provided gifts of cash or food to 200 families in Greater Victoria last year.

Police Crack Down On Track Toping

More than a dozen men are due to appear at Sidney police court Monday or Saturday charged with drinking in a public place.

Tax Rent Agreements Probably Available

3. A joint public investment and natural resources development plan.

The coming week's conference—one of a series held over the years—could be the most important of its kind. It will be held without the strain of either war or impending war, and at time when the wave of economic prosperity in Canada is at an all-time high. The pattern which might be established at this time could conceivably chart a new course in relations between Ottawa and the provinces.

While fiscal relations between the provinces and the Dominion loom as the major item of business on the agenda, Prime Minister St. Laurent has bluntly warned that Ottawa cannot go much further than it already has toward assisting the provinces.

He said, at the conclusion of the cabinet meetings, that whatever plan is agreed to at the conference, it cannot cost the federal treasury much more than now. The proposal the federal government has been studying would make for a more equitable distribution of the wealth of Canada.

Tax rental agreements in the current fiscal year will cost Ottawa about $325,000,000.

In return, Ottawa receives personal income and corporation taxes and succession duties from all the provinces but Quebec and Ontario. Quebec has consistently refused to enter into a tax rental agreement. Ontario's arrangement calls for the province to receive succession duties, but its income and corporation taxes go to the federal government.

Indications now are that Ottawa is prepared to go ahead with a tax agreement with any province which desires it. At one time Mr. St. Laurent favored scrapping the agreements, but has now changed his mind. The provinces have demanded their continuation.

The question of a national health insurance plan is also to receive consideration. Few anticipate that any set plan is likely to emerge at this time. It is expected a committee might be set up to investigate the entire situation.

A general agreement on the unemployment question is also expected. In principle, Ottawa is prepared to pay the provinces half the cost of relief when 45 per cent of the population of a province was unemployed.

The federal government's proposals regarding a joint investment program are expected to be of a general nature. Speeding of the work on the Trans-Canada highway will likely be considered.

Rooftop Fairyland Soon To Be Closed

LONDON (CP) — There a rocky waterfall and a gentle, tree-shaded woodland stream 100 feet above Kensington's throbbing traffic. The huge roof garden—1½ acres of fully-grown trees, rare shrubs and gay flowers—soon will be closed for London's soggy winter.

But as long as the weather stays fine, the garden on the roof of a block-wide, five-storey London department store (Derry and Toms) will remain open, and thousands will browse through its grass-fringed Tudor walks, or into an enchanting Spanish cobbled courtyard. They can sip tea and watch ducks paddle in a brook.

The rooftop fairyland is one of London's more surprising landmarks. It was opened in 1938, after three years of planning, by the Earl of Athlone, who later was Canada's governor-general

The roof is divided into three gardens—an old English garden with its meandering stream and preening ducks, a Tudor garden with rough paved walks and vine-covered archways in mellowed red-stone, and a Spanish garden with a white-walled campanile towering into the sky and a Moorish pergola overlooking the rainbow colors of a court of fountains.

An elevator takes the visitor from the store's hustle to the Spanish garden, an authentic illusion shattered only by neighboring buildings beyond its rose-latticed walls.

Through an archway, and the scene changes to England and a Tudor garden. A little sun dial sits amid the formal flower beds and rough wooden seats and the red-brick walls. In late spring, tulips sway here in warming breezes, and later blood-red roses clamber along the walls

The third garden is a country retreat bordered by rhododendrons with an apple tree beside a gurgling stream fed by a small waterfall. Nearby, goldfish swim in a tiny pond dappled with water lilies.

The visitor may step from this peaceful haven onto a balcony and stare across vast, busy London. In the misty distance lie the spires and domes of churches and the triple chimneys of Battersea power station. Below, the underground trains surface momentarily at Kensington High street.

Soon, though, the roof garden will be closed for the winter, and the gardening staff will take the summer plants to the nearby greenhouse. Trees will be pruned and shrubs trimmed. In cold spells the goldfish will swim beneath a sheet of ice.

The soil—at its deepest only 2½ feet thick—will be refreshed and sterilized. And then spring will bring Nature back to her garden in the sky.

Garden Notes

Suckling Clover A Tough Egg

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

SUCKLING CLOVER. (H. C. M., Duncan)

The pesky little weed infesting your garden is Suckling Clover, and he is a tough little egg, most difficult to eradicate.

The only chemical treatment which gives any promise of success is a mixture of 2:4-D and 2:4:5-T, which you can buy under the name of BrushKill, Brush-Bane, etc. This will clear it out of the lawn, but of course you can't use a selective weed-killer anywhere near other broad-leafed plants in the vegetable or flower beds. Hand-pulling and scuffling with the Dutch hoe is about the only answer here.

SEAFRONT SHRUBS. (A. H., Saanichton)

The problem of selecting a foundation planting for the sea-facing side of your home, only 100 feet from saltchuck, it to find subjects which will stand up under the effects of salt-laden wind.

One good shrub is Atriplex Halimus or Tree Purslane, growing about five feet high, with silvery-grey semi-evergreen foliage. A good specimen should cost around $3. Cotoneaster Lactea is another good wind resister which can be trained to just about any height you like. A good specimen will also run around $3.

You can also select any variety of Escallonia or Tamarix for such a location, and these are priced considerably cheaper—around $2 each.

ROSE OF SHARON. (A. E. H., Victoria)

It isn't necessary to send to the United States or England to purchase this shrub. Most of the varieties mentioned in my recent article are stocked by Victoria nurserymen.

JAPANESE ORANGE TREE. (J. H., Victoria)

I don't think it would be wise to plant your little Japanese Orange tree out in the open garden this late in the season. It should really have been outside all summer, and this is about the time it should be re-potted and brought indoors.

The pips from Jap oranges—the kind sold at Christmas—will make a flowering tree much quicker than any of the other common citrus fruits. But even these can be slow unless you pinch their toes by crowding them into a pot just a size too small for them. Your plant will need your sunniest window and lots of water, with an occasional pinch of Liqui-Life or other soluble fertilizer in it.

OREGON GRAPE. (J. B. S., Royal Oak)

You can kill the Oregon grape and wild blackberry seedlings which are appearing in your new lawn by spraying with 2:4:5-T. If used at the strength recommended on the package, it won't injure your lawn grasses.

Regarding your dogwood seeds, I think you would get better germination if you mixed the seeds with damp sand and allowed them to stand outside all winter. In spring sow the sand-seed mixture in a prepared seed bed.

MRS. SINKINS PINKS. (E. M., Victoria)

Your Mrs. Sinkins pinks have burst their calyxes for one of three reasons: overfeeding, lack of lime in the soil, or gas fumes. Lack of lime is the most common cause, and my practice is to keep all my pinks mulched with limestone chips. If you prefer, you can scratch a little hydrated lime into the soil around your plants—about one heaping tablespoonful per plant.

I'm afraid you can't divide your moss rose as you would a herbacious perennial, as it is a shrub, with only a single set of roots. If there are any suckers, these can be detached with a bit of root and planted up, or you can take cuttings, preferably in August, but it won't hurt to try it now. Use a hormone rooting powder, insert in sandy soil, and cover with a jam jar until rooted.

Busy Family and Children's Service, one of the 17 Red Feather agencies, provided 56,912 days of care for children neglected or separate from their families in Greater Victoria last year.

Basic Bricklaying Tools Date Back to Antiquity

By CLARE MORIN

Of all the building trades, that of bricklayers is probably the oldest, dating back to 3,200 BC, yet the tools used by workmen have changed the least during the centuries.

Harvey J. Meeds, who has been engaged in the brick building trade for some 30 years, said the bricklayer's basic tools, his hammer, trowel and chisel, are much the same as those used hundreds of years ago.

During Mr. Meeds' time at the trade, many changes have been made, primarily in architecture. One reason for this, he explained, was the shortage of competent bricklayers, but since 1945 the industry has been regaining much of the ground it lost.

About 1930, he said, brick building trade dropped and for about 15 years there were virtually no apprentices. When war broke out and the demand increased, many retired workers returned to their trade. Following the war, trade schools, increased number of apprentices and immigration enabled the brick construction industry to regain lost ground.

Mr. Meeds said that after the war many architects specified reinforced concrete buildings simply because of the lack of competent bricklayers. But today, more and more buildings are constructed from brick.

However, he said, there has been a definite trend away from the elaborate brick work of years past. The fancy arch, for instance, has largely been dropped.

The building of circular tapered brick smoke stacks has become an art limited to only a few specialists maintained by manufacturers of the brick used in that work.

Another type of special bricklaying that has become less common is the building of long walls. This requires a team, with the bricklayers doing the corners.

Mr. Meeds stressed that contrary to some beliefs, a bricklayer has never been limited in the number of bricks he could place in one day. On one project a man may lay several thousand. On a complex job he may only place about 500.

A more recent development has been the SCR brick, named after Structural Clay Research department of the U.S. federal government. This brick is six inches wide, twelve inches long and two inches thick, and has enabled the cost of brick houses to be brought in line with that of frame stucco houses.

Due to the six-inch width, no filler material is needed to complete the wall. After the bricks have been laid, the inner wall is insulated, and two-by-two uprights placed at intervals to hold the laths for plaster.

Western Envoys In Egypt Flurry Over Arms Deal

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Assistant Secretary of State George Allen ... offers to Egypt Saturday in a meeting with Prime Minister Gamal Abdel Nasser. There appeared to be a growing feeling in the Arab world that the West's first job is to regain Egyptian confidence.

Allen and the British, French and Russian ambassadors all saw Nasser in a busy round of diplomatic conferences during the day.

The Premier and Egyptian leaders declared broken promises were a prime reason for Egypt's switch from the West to the Communist bloc for arms.

After his two-hour meeting with Nasser, Allen denied he discussed the possibility of cancelling American economic aid to Egypt as a reprisal for her arms deal with the Czechs.

Press reports that he was bringing such an "ultimatum" had infuriated Egyptian leaders and rendered Allen's difficult mission even ...

Allen withheld comment when asked if he offered Egypt anything new, but reports from well informed quarters persisted that he explored ways of supplying Egypt with some kind of American arms as a counter to the Czech deal.

VON Presents 51 Bursaries

OTTAWA (CP) — The Victorian Order of Nurses has awarded bursaries of $750 each to 51 nurses fo· postgraduate training, the VON announced Wednesday.

The nurses, from across Canada, will study for certificates in public health nursing to qualify themselves to join the order.

A new branch of the VON will open in Bathurst, N.B., Oct., Christine Livingston, VON director in chief, told a meeting of the order's board of management. This will bring the number of local branches to 117.

Reed Deer, Alta.; Yorkton, Sask. Rosemere, Que.; and Bell Island, Nfld., also are considering opening branches, she said.

Negroes Leave State

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Two Negroes, reported to have seen a Chicago Negro boy in the hands of kidnappers, have been removed from Mississippi by other Negroes, a Negro leader said Saturday.

The Negro, who asked to remain anonymous, identified the two as LeRoy (Too-Tight) Collins and Henry Lee Loggin.

The informant said the two are remaining out of the state for "safekeeping."

Collins, a plantation hand, and Loggin, a sleeping car porter, had been reported missing by Phillip Randolph, president of the AFL Brotherhood of Railroad Sleeping Car Porters, in New York Friday. Randolph asked the FBI to investigate.

This was the latest development in the publicized case of Emmett Louis Till, 14. Two white men, Roy Bryant, 24, and his half-brother, John W. Milam, 36, were acquitted last week of a charge of murdering Till, principally on a point of identification.

Still charged with Till's kidnaping, Bryant and Milam posted $10,000 bonds and went free to await action of the grand jury in nearby LeFlore County.

Starting Young

When one envisions a St. Bernard, there is invariably a little keg of something good hanging around the dog's neck as a comfort for the forlorn traveller. Well, "Mandy," six-weeks-old St. Bernard puppy owned by Mrs. A. Kedge of Barnes, Eng., is still too young and small to go hunting lost travellers, but she has her barrel which she "rolled out" here for photographer's sake.

His Feet's Too Big— Army Doesn't Want Him

PARIS (NANA)—Claude Doreille, called up for military service in North Africa, is back home and out of the army. His feet are too big.

Six-foot-seven in his socks, 21-year-old Claude takes size 14 boots and the army just does not have any that big.

During his brief military career Private Doreille also had bed trouble. He had to spend his first night in the army with his feet projecting 11 inches beyond the end of the bed.

Next morning he paraded for a medical examination and was told to get on the weighing machine. Claude's 280 pounds smashed it. The army only catered for clients up to 245 pounds.

To Be Buried in Indiana

Filmland Mourns For James Dean

From Paso Robles, Calif., near where the 24-year-old star was killed Friday night in his 150-mile-an-hour Austrian sports car, his father announced the funeral arrangements.

Here at Warner Brothers, the studio where Dean zoomed to stardom in "East of Eden," it was as if a hurricane had ravaged the lot. Everybody was stunned, especially on the set of "Giant," his last movie. Jimmy finished his scenes only the day before his death.

Four hours after the rest of the company had reported for work Saturday, not a camera had turned. Elizabeth Taylor, his co-star, took it the hardest.

Crying unashamedly, she said: "I can't believe it. I'm still stunned."

Make-up men were unable to get her ready for shooting because of the tears. Dean, considered eccentric by some outsiders, was well liked by the people with whom he worked. A non-conformist in the Brando tradition, he was hard to get to know. But those who knew him best all tagged him a nice fellow.

The Community Chest

THE seventeenth appeal of the Community Chest in Greater Victoria in many respects will be the most important one of all. It will be a practical test of the growing support for an united charitable drive once in the year for all purposes, and it will give the voluntary subscription from payroll plan its first earnest workout. On both counts we look for the success of the Community Chest campaign, as one firm step on the road to needed improvement in the community's method of handling the whole subject. The quota sought, $210,000, is supported by the audited budgets of 17 Chest agencies and is the essential requirement of the current period if neglect of the under-privileged is to be kept out.

The central feature of the Chest campaign will be the payroll plan, by means of which individuals and groups can budget over the year whatever assistance they may be able to give in support of the known objectives of these 17 agencies, with a recorded case load. The agencies themselves and the work that they do in the Greater Victoria area are too well known to require elaboration. This community would be much the poorer if these fields of endeavor were neglected, and a sad gap left thereby between the points where statutory giving left off and uncertain private philanthropy began. For those engaged in the several fields concerned it is not merely the problem of the case load, but the emergent and critical needs of individual human beings.

While a real test of the voluntary payroll subscription plan marks this year's campaign as its distinctive feature, the major question of one united appeal or many in the course of a year underlies the whole issue. It is our belief that Victorians individually have done their own reflection on that score, and that they will welcome this opportunity to give practical expression to the united way of helping those who stand in need.

A New Era Begins

A FELICITOUS ceremony will herald the installation tomorrow of Mr. Frank McKenzie Ross, CMG, MC, as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia. In the presence of his predecessor, Hon. Clarence Wallace, and attendant officials and friends he will be sworn in as the new representative of Her Majesty in this province, an office high in regard and one whose incumbency is a mark of distinction. A new era will thus begin at Carey Castle.

Of necessity each lieutenant-governor makes his separate imprint and illumines his position by virtue of his personality. Each incumbency has its own flavor, creates its own interest and appeal, reflects its own characteristic qualities. This province has for the most part been fortunate in its line of lieutenant-governors, and it looks forward with confidence to the tenure of Mr. Ross. He takes office amid general good will and loyal assent.

In his own right he is a man of industrial note and worth and one who is likely in all respects to maintain well the dignities and responsibilities of his vice-regal role. It is an exacting one inviting much personal sacrifice and continuous devotion to the ideal of service, in addition to a constant round of official duties. Proximity has given Victoria almost a possessive feeling with regard to Government House and as a community it notes the entry thereto of Mr. and Mrs. Ross with special attention. It wishes the new lieutenant-governor and his gracious chatelaine success in every particular, and anticipates with pleasure a continuation of its customary close bond with the now historic Carey Castle.

Safety for Whom?

CAN it be that some of the car manufacturers are beginning to feel twinges of conscience? In recent announcements of new models the accent seems to be more on safety than on horsepower, which suggests that the makers may be trying to atone for the lethal capacity which they have been building into their automobiles in the shape of power far beyond ordinary needs and structural design permitting that power to be converted into terrific speed.

In an industry so highly competitive as automobile building it is perhaps understandable that the manufacturers should vie with one another for the dubious distinction of producing the fastest and most powerful car. By doing so they have latterly incurred rebukes from public, press and authorities concerned about public safety; which may help to explain this sudden switch of emphasis to new safety devices. Thus one hears and reads of personal safety belts for the occupants of some of the new cars; collapsible steering wheels, flexible dashboards, and so forth.

What stands out in this connection is the fact that all these new gadgets are designed for the protection of the occupants of the car, chiefly the driver. Most people are likely to feel a great deal less concern for the safety of a driver who travels at 90 or 95 miles an hour than for the lives of those who may get in his way. Safety equipment inside a car could, indeed, increase rather than lessen danger, inspiring over-confidence and belief by a driver that he can travel at high speed with little risk to himself. No one yet has devised anything to overcome the physical laws prescribing the minimum distance in which an object moving at a certain speed can be stopped—which in the case of a car travelling at 90 miles an hour is something like half a mile.

Island Editors Say

The Folly of It All

With the return of the hunting season, reports of fatal and near-fatal accidents will probably begin pouring in from all parts of the province. One fatal accident has already taken place in the interior.

No matter how the average hunting fatality is glossed over, it generally results from someone's carelessess . . . someone forget to see if a gun was loaded; someone pulled a gun out of a truck muzzle first; someone thought a shadowy figure in the bush was a deer, and another tragdey was written into the hunting season's books.

This type of accident will probably be duplicated year after year until the day when every hunter takes time out to ponder the folly of it all. One simple little admission by all hunters would eliminate the need for most safety regulations.

That admission . . . mere acceptance of the fact that every other hunter in the bush has the right to live.

The Ruling of Twelve

"It is a very sad state of affairs when a 29-member chamber of commerce cannot get more than 11 members out at a meeting and then have to telephone individuals to make up a working quorum of 12.

On the action of 12 members of the chamber of commerce, that group is looking into the possibility of having two trains a day to Victoria so that people from this district can travel down-Island and back in a day.

That only means one thing and that is a shopping trip in the capital city.

If money starts to move down south in a steady stream and goes into Victoria shops instead of into local stores, the first people to bow their heads in sorrow will be the very people who should have been attending chamber meetings instead of leaving the district's business up to a dozen enthusiasts.

Towards a New Hospital

There should be satisfaction at the progress already made toward a new King's Daughters' Hospital.

Under the plan the area covered by Cowichan School District No. 65 will finance the project, out of taxation, that system having been chosen as the quickest, most reliable and most satisfactory. Until the cost is known comment must be reserved. There will be considerable confidence, however, in the good judgment of the representative board of directors that the cost is well within our means. Our voluntary boards, like our councils, have a good reputation for guarding against undue expenditure . . .

A hospital begun in 1911 as a voluntary institution has had a remarkable career of service which taxpayers must now agree to accept as a justifiable charge upon their citizenship, through taxation of their property.

School Building Plan

No one can dispute the fact that additional classrooms are a prime necessity. Children must be given an education. Every taxpayer, we are convinced, agrees on that point.

But a former school trustee questions the wisdom of the board's decision in asking the ratepayers to endorse a brand new office building. He makes out a strong case. He maintains that ratepayers must provide money for the education of children but he feels the same property owners should not be asked to provide new administration facilities from their sagging purses.

If the trustees, after assessing the problem a little more, are convinced that Mr. White is echoing the feeling of the majority of the ratepayers, they would be well advised to strike the new $15,000 administration building from the program. Then voters can approve a program for essential new classroom construction without hesitation. A new office building should not be allowed to stand in the way of children's education.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A correspondent suggests I should enlarge on my brief comment of a week ago about journalists having ideas for sale. You will remember this was supposed to be a sinister circumstance, a thesis which naturally did not arouse my enthusiasm.

My reader would like me to develop the theme along the lines that everyone has ideas for sale, their own or someone else's. That is a little beside the exact point but it is of course perfectly true. Even the man who almost automatically tends a machine is furthering the idea of the man who invented it. He is a partner and a very important one since without him the machine, and the idea behind it, would have little virtue.

The sale angle, inescapable in human affairs, brings in the matter of money, those tokens of paper and coin that all of us value so much. As my reader says everyone has to sell something in order to live, whether it be an idea of his own or the concrete form taken by some other idea. A washing machine, for example, or a motor car.

Talking of automobiles, you would read about the traffic jam in Paris last week, where some 200,000 cars in the downtown areas took four hours to untangle. There is an idea implicit in this news item and a very plain one, simply that the time is coming soon when there will be no place in any city for motor cars.

Periodically one notes concern voiced lest the human race, growing so rapidly, will one day so multiply that it won't be able to feed itself. No one bothers to link this growth with motor vehicles, although more people means, according to our present ideas about locomotion, more automobiles.

A glimpse of this truth may be had even in our quiet town; there are moments on Government Street when there is scarce space for the traffic and this is a buccolic town compared to a bustling metropolis. The Paris news item cited its traffic jam as a frightening preview of what the future holds, and frightening it is. In ten years time alone the problems of traffic lights, roundabouts, parking meters will pale into insignificance before the sheer number of cars. There will literally be no room for them at all.

Getting back to our main theme, cars cost money and my correspondent suggests that there should be more money in circulation and that everyone has an equal right to money provided they practice fellowship. This is a double-pronged aspect of the subject. As people and cars grow in profusion there certainly will be more money in circulation. Money my reader reminds me is merely a token of exchange; true, but since it is the only practical medium by which to manipulate society's needs no harm is done by thinking it valuable in itself.

As for everyone having a right to the same amount that would scarcely work out since human beings are not of exact mould and, presumably, never will be. Nor can humanity be reduced to a single, drab conformity, every man alike in all things physical and mental. One of the first results of any such robot situation, incidentally, would be the end of saleable ideas.

The condition attached, the practice of fellowship, is no more easily reconciled, I fear. If everyone practiced the kind of fellowship that I am sure animates my correspondent's thinking all would be well. Money and motor cars themselves, even perhaps the colossal increase in populations, would present no obstacles incapable of solution. But frankly I do not expect that day ever to dawn; I am doubtful in fact that man's lot on earth is supposed to reach perfection.

Letter from London

TV Has Long Way To Go

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

WELL, we have had it! Commercial television has hit the ether and the eyes of Londoners. Interested newspapers have told us that the new alternative television is a staggering success; newspapers which failed to acquire an interest in commercial broadcasting have been somewhat critical, and plain disinterested newspapers seem to think that it could have been a great deal worse—and a great deal better. Most viewers of the new TV shared actor Robert Morley's view (in his first commercial program) "that much worse things could happen to us than this".

Speaking personally, as one must on these occasions, I reacted most favorably to Mr. Orson Welles who, in opening his series "Around the World with Orson Welles" on commercial television, made the comment: "If the home is to be a non-stop movie house, God help the home." There is also something to be said for the gentleman who asked us to refer to "alternative television" rather than "commercial television" explaining that we do not refer to "commercial newspapers" because they publish advertisements.

It is an old argument. The main difference is that you can still read what you like in the newspaper dish of fare — you can turn the page, skip an advertisement or the latest murder according to your mood or fancy.

You have no such freedom in television — only the freedom to switch off and not to look, as far as commercial television is concerned.

I am writing this piece after three days of alternative commercial television. It would be unfair to attempt an intelligent assesment of the possibilities or even the achievement beyond saying, perhaps, that it is in itself a remarkable achievement to have got programs on to the air only nine months from the time the idea was conceived — but as a wag pointed out there is nothing startlingly original in the time lag. The main reaction of these first three days is how familiar it all is!

There is nothing new on the alternative programs. They are scrappier perhaps than the BBC, but most of the people are familiar. Even the advertisments are mostly our old friends from the movie screen — but as one who always objected to a pretty girl brushing her teeth in front of a movie audience I have still stronger objections to her doing it in the drawing room. It has merely strengthened my resolve not to purchase that particular toothpaste —

The startling thing about the new television program is the complete lack of originality. It may be that after 18 years of BBC television monoply it is policy to preserve the tradition and make changes gradually; but what I fear most is that so many former BBC officials and personalities have been signed up by the new program contractors that new ideas are just as suspect at Television House in Kingsway as they were at Broadcasting House in Portland Place. We detected a slightly new approach to news. Crime, for example was reported (something the BBC does not favor), but here again I did not feel particularly happy about having an acquitted thug brought into the drawing room direct from the Old Bailey. Again I realize that other people may feel differently and welcome the shared notoriety in the same way as they would welcome a bishop!

Programs apart, the most startling change is that we can now have television morning, noon and night. It has made the BBC extend its hours of transmission and for all practical purposes we can have something on our screens from 9.30 in the morning until 11 o'clock at night. It may be useful for night workers but is it murder for the housework. Television, unlike sound broadcasting, is not something which can be left running whilst you get on with the chores. And there is the hidden menace of cost. Television tubes in this country cost the equivalent of $2.75 for each inch of screen space. They wear out fairly quickly with limited transmissions. A television addict is likely to find himself or herself with a massive replacement bill which will cut out some of the joy. If you hire a television set —and this includes free replacement of tubes — you will have to pay $2.50 a week (nearly twice the hire purchase instalment), which is considerably more than the average family used to spend on entertainment. One enterprising firm, at least, has sought to match its enterprise with the hour by offering to supply replacement tubes on hire purchase. Such is the mighty web we weave!

The lesson of these first three days of alternative television seems to be that we are no nearer to originality in presentation or subject matter. We have the same old medley of cinema-theatre technique with no one quite certain which. We go from fast moving film to almost static news announcements and the slower theatre technique. The aggregate effect is a jolting discontent. As soon as the mind is attuned to actuality it is taken to theatrical production — surprisingly slow and ponderous in contrast — and no sooner is the mind adjusted than we find ourselves speeded into the fast moving, action-packed film technique which seems much too fast for the average drawing room.

We can take these things if we are prepared for them. There seems to be subconscipus reaction if we decide to go the movies — we are ready for it by the time we have got into our seats. In fact it is the newsreel which actually seems a bit slow on these occasions. If we go to the theatre we are quite ready for the slower action by the time the curtain goes up — just as we are attuned to a busy street as soon as we shut the front door.

Television is a medium in its own right. It is basically intimate and homely. Alternative television has not recognized this—yet. The BBC has been taking a few haltering steps in the right direction—but whoever gets there first will have discovered something worth while. Soon afterwards we may find a new race of artists who will make television an art. Then it should be good fun, either with or without advertisements. At the moment it seems all dressed up with nowhere particular to go.

A RUNAWAY slave was set free by the Supreme Court of Vancouver Island, 95 years ago last week.

The slave was a 14-year-old mulatto boy who belonged to Major Tilton, surveyor-general of Washington Territory. His master had brought him to Olympia, Washington, from Maryland.

He escaped aboard the United States mail steamer Eliza Andgrson, Captain Fleming of the ship arrested him, and was going to return him to his owner, but word leaked out when the ship was in the port of Victoria.

H. P. P. Crease applied to Chief Justice Cameron for a writ of habeas corpus, which was granted. When the lad appeared in court, the chief justice ordered him set free, despite the protests of Captain Fleming, who held it was "a violation of international law" to take the boy from his ship.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

HEADWORK used to be far easier and more pleasant than handwork. It was generally better rewarded, both with money and prestige. For generations past the ambition of every hand worker, from the farmer down to the lowliest pick swinger, was to give his children a chance at what were called better things, and he dreamed of his descendants being clerks, accountants, civil servants, members of any of the professions, so long as they could use their heads instead of their hands.

Within the lifetime of our oldest living citizens they have seen the massive trek of people off the farm into the towns and cities, and the immense strides in popular education which oblige everybody to try to use his head until he is 16 years old.

But quite lately, thanks to the tireless ingenuity of science, handwork has become steadily easier and more pleasant. By a thousand devices, all the way from farm implements down to miniature electric hand tools, the labor, the dirt and the indignity have been taken out of common toil. And what is infinitely more important, handwork is now becoming generally better rewarded than headwork, not only in wages but in prestige.

"Headworkers," a personnel manager lately informed me, "are a dime a dozen."

What makes headwork still more distressing is the state of the world, so that anybody who is in the habit of using his head does not know what to think. His head hurts.

In comparison, consider the handworker: the farmer sitting happily aloft on his tractor, harrowing a field. O happy man! And the mechanic, busy all the eight-hour day at his clean, tidy, engrossing job, his mind contentedly resting upon his beautiful machine tools, his spirit lulled by a sense of security and hourly accomplishment.

How long will it be before the white collar is the badge of the shabby-genteel?

Letters to the Editor

Hurricane Janet

Re Hurricane Janet: The Canadian taxpayer gives nothing for the benefit of our Caribbean neighbors, but he subscribes to the Colombo plan in far-off Asia, practically because it is said to be defensive against Communism.

Now I know the people who have that defence, not in money but in their own minds. These people live on the small islands northward from Trinidad and Tobago, namely Grenada, St. Vincent, and the others. And each of them is so lovely that every lover of beauty would be glad to help to rescue it and its people from the shattering which has befallen it. These people have very scanty material resources, and they have not the money-making character.

And I do not forget British Honduras, a wonderful land of sub-tropical beauty, about which I should like to write some more, but I must not take too much of your space.

Strict!

Many years ago it was explained to me that the appointment of the Lord Mayor of London is the strictest in the world. Every alderman is under oath to disclose anything he might know against the nominee. To my informant's knowledge there was only one case, the theft of a sixpenny coal sack in boyhood — quite sufficient for disqualification!

Abolish the Tax

The Coonist editorial suggesting that the meal tax be abolished is timely.

When the premier of B.C. suggests to the public that they dodge the tax by separate checks, it seems imperative that some immediate action is in order.

It is most confusing the attitude of public officials. When the combined forces of Liberals and Conservative saddled us with the 3% tax, Mr. Bennett voted against, and when he took office he increased it to 5%.

However, it is hopeful to read that legislation is en route to better meals, and that health standards are to be recognized before dollar standards.

When we become conscious that health is wealth, we are taking the step forward.

Flood Relief

May one ask, what is Canada doing about the terrible and devastating floods and hurricanes in other countries?

Little or nothing is now heard about the cataclysm in Pakistan and India, where, it was earlier reported, as many as 45,000,000 people were made homeless by floods.

Surely in our prosperity and comparative immunity from such calamaties, we should do something very substantial to help.

Happy Days

Happy days are here again. Racing and Jack Shortt have come back to the old home town. Three cheers!

I think the horsemen and the fans owe Mr. Randall a big vote of thanks and a banquet for going quietly along these several years preparing barns, track, etc., and I hope racing is here to stay. It leaves such a lot of new money in a town, it's good for everyone.

Cost Rise Justified Say Hospital Officials

Hospitals should not have to justify operating costs in the community when the relative increase in expenditures over the years is less than many businesses, 100 delegates agreed as the Island Hospitals Regional Conference concluded here yesterday.

Directors agreed that any further reduction of hospital expenditures would be harmful to the care of the patient.

A single resolution to the British Columbia Hospital Association, asking that a committee be formed to study the problem of recruiting more student nurses, came out of the windup meeting of delegates.

The problem was, they felt, the gap in time between the graduation age from high school and the minimum age of 18 for entering a nursing school. Many girls graduate from school before they are 18 and are often drawn into other forms of employment.

D. M. Cox, commissioner of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, praised trustees of hospitals for their unselfish service to the community, without pay and pressed by responsibility that often hurts the private affairs of the members.

He outlined the responsibilities of the board, which, he said, should employ a capable administrator to manage the hospital and supervise all personnel.

Other speakers on the morning program were Prof. E. D. MacPhee, director of a UBC hospital administration course, who spoke on management, and Dr. A. J. Brunet, medical administrator at St. Joseph's Hospital, who outlined hospital accreditation.

Hosts for the two-day conference were Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

Family Cars Involved In Charge

Clarance Dobbyn, 3580 Cedar Hill, who was fined a total of $50 in city police court last week when he pleaded guilty to charges of switching licence plates from one car to another and driving without licence plates, is the owner of one of the cars involved. His wife owns the other.

He was summoned to appear in court on the charges, not arrested as was previously reported.

Columbus Sails Again

Once again Columbus will sail the ocean blue and on a boat especially named after him, the Italian line's flagship, the Ss. Cristoforo Colombo. He will be in statue form this time, sculptured by Edoardo Alfieri, who is seen here in Genoa taking one last look at his 20-foot bronze masterpiece before it begins its journey to America. A gift to the city of Columbus, Ohio, from the city of Genoa, the statue will be unveiled by Vice-President Richard Nixon on Columbus day. —(Central Press Canadian)

Ankle Deep Mess

Street Slithery With Fish Heads

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police, firemen and garbage trucks were called out Saturday when traffic at a west end intersection was blocked—by fish heads, ankle deep on the road.

A truck was hauling the fish heads to a reduction plant when the tail gate of the vehicle opened, strewing the cargo along the road for nearly a block.

Police, unable to cope with the situation, called firemen. But use of a fire hose only sent the fish heads slithering along the pavement.

Shovels were brought into play and the city scavenging department was asked to furnish trucks to assist in cleaning up the mess.

Big Ben Put Into Splints To Heal Its War Wounds

LONDON (CP)—Big Ben, the sounding symbol of British democracy, is in splints.

The 329-foot tower, beside the Thames is trussed up in miles of fine steel tubing for repairs to its fabric, pocked and scarred by German bomb fragments. And sometime around December, 1956, the great 13½-ton bell, whose gruff voice has been heard in most parts of the world, will be silenced temporarily.

Big Ben is still in good shape despite its 95 years, but on May 10, 1941, a bomb struck Westminster Palace, destroying the House of Commons and leaving Big Ben ticking, but sadly shaken. The glass was blown out of all four 22-foot clock faces and the belfry above left standing on three legs.

TOM'S TRIUMPH

Now the ministry of works will restore the ornate stone tower, which sometimes sways gently in the wind, and stop the clock two months for repairs. While Big Ben is silent, Great Tom, a lofty neighbor in the clock tower at St. Paul's Cathedral, will fill in as understudy for the British Broadcasting Corporation's traditional time signals.

It's a minor triumph for Tom. The five-ton bell hung at Westminster before Big Ben but when the tower was pulled down in 1707, Christopher Wren asked for and was given Great Tom to hang at St. Paul's.

Arctic 'Queen' Still Homeless

VANCOUVER (CP) — The orphaned ship St. Roch, conqueror of the Arctic, still is without a permanent home.

The former RCMP vessel, given to the city last year as a monument to northern adventure, has been berthed without charge by Vancouver Tugboats Ltd. But the company now needs the space.

Another company has offered dock space for the time being.

The ship was the first to sail both ways through the Northwest Passage and the first to circumnavigate the continent. She was retired last year after 27 years of service.

Community Chest of Greater Victoria is administered by a publicly-elected board of directors, including businessmen, labor leaders, representatives of the professions and housewives, all unpaid for their work.

Entries for 'King Fisherman' Expected To Exceed 2,000

Less than one month remains till the Oct. 31 closing date of The Daily Colonist's popular "King Fisherman" contest.

Some 1,500 fish have already been entered and the list is expected to grow to more than 2,000 before the contest closes and prizs are awarded.

Merchandise prizes valued at more than $600 offered by city merchants and cash prizes totalling $400 offered by the Colonist are at stake in the marathon derby.

"King Fisherman" trophies will be presented by the Colonist to the anglers hooking the biggest coho, the biggest trout, the biggest spring salmon and the biggest tyee.

Winners in each classification will also receive $50 cash prizes if they subscribe to the Colonist. If not, the $50 prize will go to the subscriber catching the biggest fish.

Merchandise prizes will also go to the subscriber catching the biggest fish.

Prize for the biggest tyee, offered by Murdoch-Girard Ltd., Courtenay store, is a $125 suit for men or women.

A .30-30 Winchester rifle is offered by the Hudson's Bay Co. for the biggest coho.

Additional $50 cash prizes are being offered by the Colonist for subscribers who win special draws in each of the four contest divisions.

The contest is open to all residents of Vancouver Island.

The trout classification excludes sea-run cut-throat and steelhead, but includes all other species caught in fresh water on the Island.

Tyee salmon must be caught in the Alberni canal or off Campbell River or Comox, to be eligible.

Coho may be caught in any salt waters off Vancouver Island.

Springs must be caught in waters off Nile creek (a few miles north of Qualicum bay) to Victoria, and north on the west coast to Port Renfrew.

Entry forms may be filled out at weigh-in stations located in all the main fishing areas of the Island.

Cat Awakens Child; Saves Lives in Fire

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A year-old Persian cat named Mickey was credited with saving the lives of a seven-year-old girl and her grandmother in a fire here this week.

The cat awakened her young mistress as fire caused between $5,000 and $6,000 damage at her home.

Awakened was Gilda Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Black, theatre manager and his wife, who were on duty.

Young Gilda, who was sleeping downstairs, found a chesterfield chair in the living room on fire and awakened her grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Crum, who was asleep upstairs.

Mrs. Crum got her granddaughter, the cat and an eight-year-old dog out of the house.

Chevalier Charm Bright as Ever, But Material Poor

By JOHN McCLAIN

NEW YORK (NANA)—It's regrettable to be obliged to come up with a negative opinion regarding Maurice Chevalier's one-man show which opened at the Lyceum theatre. The 67-year-old stripling has the old charm, the beguiling smile and the bustling energy. But he hasn't got the material.

It seems a blinking shame, too, because when he's good, when he's got something he can really throw that lower lip over, he's just as brilliant as he ever was.

But it seemed to me that the timing was at fault, many of his songs were unfunny and not particularly melodic, and he gave us all too few of the old nostalgic numbers that everybody came to hear.

Maurice comes on stage with the familiar straw hat and a dashing blue dinner coat and makes a delightful speech about how everybody thinks he must be at least 80 years old whereas he is actually a mere youth.

This is all disarming and sympathetic, but then he goes off into a series of songs which he first explains in English and sings in French, most of them to do with the rather dated formula that the French are a funny race because their men are rather strenuously attracted by their women.

The best thing he does in the first part of the show is a pantomime, after the curtain has come down, indicating that the audience can now go out and smoke and discuss the proceedings.

The second half of Chevalier's show is infinitely better. There is a cute number about a boy and girl necking in a Paris park and, "because they are French," paying no heed to any amount of distractions going on about them. (You've been away too long, Maurice—it happens over here.)

He then discovers a purely sing-song impression of how various tongues—French, Italian, British, American, German and Chinese—strike the ear of one who cannot speak the language, and that is his best effort of the evening.

He closes the show with his theme, "Louise," and in response to spirited applause returned and uncorked some of his other familiar songs from the motion pictures of two decades ago.

But it is not by any means a sustained evening in the theatre. The personality is there in abundance, the infectious good humor, but it is devoted mostly to sterile and ill-assembled ingredients.

Cougar's Seattle Games To Be Telecast

Victoria Cougars will be seen in action on television when they clash with the Seattle Americans Saturday night. The game will be carried "live" by KTVW, channel 13.

KTVW plans to telecast all of the home games of the Western Hockey League, each Saturday and Wednesday night, throughout the season.

Teams to be seen in action include the Vancouver Canucks, Edmonton Flyers, Winnipeg Warriors, New Westminster Royals, Saskatoon Quakers, Calgary Stampeders and the Regina Royals, in addition to the local team.

Bob Field and Clay Huntington will handle the play-by-play telecasts from the Civic Ice Arena in the Puget sound city. Thirty-five games are scheduled for TV presentation. Game time, in all cases, will be 8 p.m.

Good news for local hockey fans from KTVW is confirmation of the channel 13 station's forthcoming power boost. Manager William Venesnan said yesterday that the station will increase its power "about the end of this year," greatly increasing its coverage here.

One of the biggest television attractions to date begins on KING-TV, Monday afternoon at 5, when Walt Disney's new daily extravaganza, "The Mickey Mouse Club," begins on channel 5. The hour-long program of fact, fantasy, music and fun promises to be entertainment and education for children and grownups alike. The opening show will include a "Mickey Mouse Newsreel," a "Fun With Music" feature, a segment about children's ambitions and a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Pueblo Pluto."

The hour-long Lawrence Welk musical variety show, which began as a summer fill-in, has moved into the big-time. So great has been the volume of mail received by the Lawrence Welk program that it has been extended throughout the fall season. It will now continue in its present Saturday night spot until next June.

Many old favorites return to local screens this week. "I Love Lucy" will be back on channel 11 at 9, and on channel 12 at 10, on Monday night. Sid Caesar hangs up his hat on channels 2 and 4, Monday at 8.

On Tuesday "My Favorite Husband" returns to KTNT-TV and KVOS-TV at 7.30, and Bob Hope to KOMO-TV at 8.

"Shower of Stars," this week starring Jack Benny in "Time Out For Ginger," begins its fall season on channel 11 at 8.30 on Thursday evening.

Last year's most popular TV comedian, George Gobel, this year without Jeff Donnell as "Alice," returns to channel 4, Saturday at 10 p.m. "Old Lonesome" will also be seen on channel 2, beginning later this month.

New programs this week include "Director's Playhouse," new drama series on channel 4, to be seen Wednesdays at 8 p.m., The 20th Century-Fox Hour, built around famous movies, also slated for Wednesday night, and "Highway Patrol," a new program on channel 4 Thursday night.

A new program about the men of the clergy, their work and their problems, makes its debut under the title of "Crossroads," on channel 5, Friday night. Putting in its first appearance too is "The Crusader," a much-heralded series about a free-lance writer who battles for what he believes to be right.

Of local interest is "Patrol for Peace," a documentary of the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas, to be seen Saturday at 9 p.m. on CBUT.

Spectacular Macbeth CBUT Treat Tonight

A CBC major production will be seen on CBUT tonight at 10, with the two-hour presentation of "Macbeth."

The Shakespeare play was presented in Toronto by a cast of 30 name actors, plus a large number of minor players. Barry Morse and Katharine Blake are in the leading roles of Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

The channel 2 presentation is the first of a series of "spectaculars" to be presented by CBC-TV this fall and winter on CBUT.

Symphony Opens Season

Benefit to City 'Direct, Concrete'

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra and its supporters feel they will have won a victory if they can make the people of Victoria realize the orchestra is a "direct and concrete commercial asset to the city."

So said conductor Hans Gruber yesterday on the eve of the first pair of concerts, in the Royal Theatre this afternoon and tomorrow night. Program is Mozart's 29th symphony, Karelia Suite by Sibelius and Dvorak's New World symphony.

BEST MUSIC

"Our business is to play the best music as best as we know how," Mr. Gruber said. "And we realize the orchestra is not self-supporting."

Why is it a commercial asset as well as a cultural asset?

"First, it provides a field of employment to several dozen people of highly-specialized skills, placing additional money into circulation," the conductor said. "The first person who benefits is the merchant who is asked to donate.

"He is not pouring money into a bottomless pit when he supports the symphony."

BUSINESS BENEFITS

Second, operation of a symphony orchestra gives direct and indirect benefits to cartage companies, the theatre, printing firms, taxi firms and so on.

Except for three people brought from Vancouver, all salaries are paid to Victoria residents, who spend it here. Yet the $42,000 annual symphony budget, with all its benefits to the city, represents a per capita cost of only 35 cents a year.

Possibly most important, Mr. Gruber said, "the orchestra is beginning to play an ever more important role in the stimulation of the tourist industry, on which this city stands or falls."

AMONG FIRST FIVE

Summer concerts at the Butchart Gardens, CBC broadcasts and the symphony's acknowledged place among the first five orchestras in Canada all aid the tourist industry.

Every symphony will always have to ask for contributions, but the Victoria group is "asking the city to realize this does not mean this is the last they see of their money."

"It is demonstrable that they get it back or more," Mr. Gruber said.

Robert Merrill Sings On Monday Concert

Robert Merrill, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, will be featured soloist on Monday night's Voice of Firestone concert on ABC radio and television at 8.30 p.m. The program will be seen locally on channel 5.

Victim of TV Terror

JUDY GARLAND . . . a pitiful sight.

Viewers Watch Star On Verge of Collapse

BY HAROLD HEFFERNAN

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—"Live" TV got another setback, perhaps its most vivid and shocking of all, a week ago when Judy Garland, exhausted and on the verge of collapse, almost failed to finish her 90-minute television debut "in the flesh."

Recovering later, Judy came out with the flat assertion that it must be film hereafter if she is to make any further appearances on video.

Uncounted millions sat tensely at their sets as Judy, one of the most experienced troupers in the business—an old hand at movies, radio and the variety stage since she was 12—gasped audibly for breath, her face a mask of torture as she struggled to sound out the last notes of her all-time hit song, "Over the Rainbow."

It was a pitiful sight that should never be so publicly repeated.

Always a keyed-up, emotional personality never able to turn her acting side on and off at will, as so many great artists are able to do, Judy blamed it on the furious tempo of "live" TV.

This included the strain of long rehearsals, climaxed by the terrifying feeling as the bell rang that she was "on her own"—with no studio film retakes available for any mistakes she might make.

Criticism Opens Art Club Season

The fall season of the Oak Bay art club will begin at 7.30 p.m. Tuesday in the council chamber at Oak Bay municipal hall. Applications for membership should be made to Miss D. Sutherland at 1201 Palmer road.

A prize will be awarded Tuesday to one of the summer paintings on display and criticism will be given by new instructress Mrs. A. W. Lewis.

Staging of Drama Taught Churches

A course of directing will be the first offering of the Vancouver Island Religious Drama Guild, which has asked all churches in Greater Victoria to take part in its program.

Sydney Risk, drama field adviser of the UBC extension department, will give the course Oct. 14 to 16 at Centennial United church. Information may be obtained from guild president Mrs. R. G. Phillips, 3950 Holland.

Colin A. Menzies, 711 Canterbury road, was fined $25 and $3.50 costs or five days in jail for driving without a licence and Gary David Winter of Victoria was fined $25 and $3.50 costs when he pleaded guilty in Colwood court to a charge of driving without insurance while a minor.

Loretta Back on TV At Christmas Time

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Loretta Young returns to her television show at Christmas. She has been on the sick list since May, but her weight is now 116 and she looks and feels fine . . . I find it hard to believe the circulating rumors of trouble in her marriage to Tom Lewis.

Jerry Lewis, overweight for the first time in his life, says: "So I'm healthy. But they only love me when I'm emaciated." He's on a diet nonetheless. And Milton Berle, underweight, fainted twice during rehearsals for his first TV show of the season.

NBC almost passed out in a body when the big tank for Esther Williams' swimming sequence sprang a leak at dress rehearsal. When Esther's two small sons were asked, "Which part of the show did you like best?" they chorused: "Where mommy was pushed into the water!"

The TV series coming from 20th Century-Fox will be very classy. The studio is spending $100,000 on each stanza . . . But Robert Stack, star of the TV'd "Laura" capsule, is tossing a new problem into the lap of the Screen Actors' Guild—extra pay for movie actors when they star in studio television shows.

Dinah Shore is letting her hair grow. Her best friends are telling Dinah she looks terrible with her cropped crowning glory. And she's too thin—after a certain age a gal has to be careful.

Van Johnson is the latest movie star to set up his own TV series . . . and Barry Sullivan will star in the TV version of the old "Man Called X" radio series . . . Jane Wyman signed star writer Laurence Stallings for her "Fireside" video, with John Ford, no less, to direct.

Max Baer plays a white hunter, of all improbable casting, in a "Sheena, Queen of the Jungle" TV series. Elena Verdugo—Millie of "Meet Millie"—is divorcing her husband.

Ralph Edwards was barred from Dallas, Texas, when he took the mayor's $100 Stetson and left his own common chapeau instead. By accident, of course . . . and Jack Benny blew his toupee and called for someone's scalp when his first show of the season was interrupted for a news bulletin, which had been in the studio for a long time "and could have been used on the last half of the Lassie show." Ruff! Ruff!

Several Red Feather agencies combined to make 20,123 nursing visits to patients in their homes in Greater Victoria last year — 55 visits for every day of the year.

Stars Down to Earth

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Humphrey Bogart and Walter Wanger are in the middle of a deal to buy the Saturday Eevening Post serial, "A Killer Came to Town." Wanger to produce and Bogey to star, with wife Lauren Bacall and Frank Sinatra. This could be one of the reasons for the sudden Bogey-Baby-and-Frankie-Boy friendship.

Gilbert Miller is having the popular British play, Simon Boswell, rewritten for Thelma Ritter—for Broadway, of course . . . Jeff Donnell is near a breakdown. She lost George Gobel as a TV husband and Aldo Ray in real life, all in less than two weeks.

Bing Crosby, after watching Judy Garland rehearsing, walked away murmuring, "What talent, what talent." . . . Gloria De Haven is picking the church for her next wedding, which will be very soon.

Errol Flynn's TV series, now hatching in New York, should go a long way to pay off those bills. Incidentally, when Errol's movie with Anna Neagle nose-dived in England, Anna was quoted: "We were very disappointed. Errol couldn't have been as big a star as we thought he was." Stuff and nonsense—the bigness or smallness of a star has nothing to do with whether a movie is good or bad. Look at "Marty."

The London Palladium is paging Mae West, but her last experience in London soured her on the British capital. Seems she was invited to a swank party at which another very popular American performer was present. The guests asked Mae to sing. "I'd love to," she said, "but I don't have anyone to play for me." The very, very popular American was asked to play. He refused curtly—to everyone's embarrassment. Especially Mae's.

Edmund Purdom and Linda Christian attended a private showing of J. Arthur Rank's "Doctor at Sea" in London and giggled and talked all the way through the movie, and, brother, were they told off by head Rank man, John Davis.

Famed Violinist, Symphony Group, Booked for City

By BRUCE LOWTHER

A total of 16 bands, an operetta and a new film about Switzerland are all included on the bill of fare in Victoria this week, in addition to the symphony concerts today and tomorrow.

Viennese waltzes and polkas will be featured by Harry Hobson's groups during the 12th annual Parade of Bands staged by the Musicians' Union at Crystal Garden Tuesday evening.

In the north ballroom will appear Western Mountaineers, Les Johnson, Jo Ruud, Don Partridge, Rodeo Rascals, Continentals and Washington State Pea Pickers.

In the south ballroom, Bert Zala, Stan Cross, Charley Hunt, Ted Spencer, Gordon King leading the all-star group, Reg Wood, Bernie Porter and Van's Band will perform, with each combination playing for 30 minutes.

Kiwanis Club have announced that famed violinist Rubinoff will come to Central Junior High school Nov. 21.

And Famous Artists have added an extra to their season, an appearance by the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra in the Royal theatre, Feb. 13.

Music and dialogue from the films "Romeo and Juliet" and "Richard the Third" will be heard on CBU at 1.30 p.m., Saturdty.

Famous Jazz Band In Crash

SOCORRO (UP) — Sixteen members of the famous Lionel Hampton jazz band and their driver were injured, eight of them seriously, yesterday when a chartered bus plunged into a ditch 26 miles south of Socorro, N.M.

Hampton, himself, suffered a broken ankle. Others were taken to hospital.

The band was touring its way back to New York after working on the "Benny Goodman Story" in Hollywood and making a short for Universal International.

Hampton said he thought the band would be able to fulfill its engagement Oct. 15 to appear in concert at Carnegie Hall.

Round-Up Planned For Show

At least a small part of almost every Gilbert and Sullivan operetta will be heard during the fall show of the Victoria G & S. Society Nov. 17, 18 and 19 at Oak Bay Junior High school.

"Trial By Jury" will be presented in full costume after intermission. First part of the program will consist of excerpts from "Pinafore," "The Mikado," "Yeoman of the Guard," "Pirates of Penzance," and "Iolanthe," ranging from solos to full chorus.

Cast for "Trial By Jury" will be James Mead-Robins, judge; Norman Tyrell, defendant; Alan Robertson, counsel; James Yeomans, usher; John Bray, jury foreman; Kitty Dixon, plaintiff.

Familiar voices to be heard in excerpts include Del Rogers, Rod Dunn, Mimi Bavin, Frank Dunn, Evelyn Rodgers, Catherine Denison and Dianne Clifford.

Average cost of campaign and administration in 50 Community Chest organizations in the United States last year was one-seventh higher than the Victoria figure, of about eight per cent.

PTA Activities

Tolmie Meets Monday

Tolmie PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the school auditorium, when teachers and parents will discuss "parent and teacher co-operation."

Another Tense Moment

Close finishes have been the rule rather than the exception during the first six days of the 14-day meet at Sandown park with yesterday's fifth race providing a bang-up finish and some tense moments for the more than 5,000 patrons. The camera was needed to separate the first four horses with Prince A.A. driving through on the rail to win by a nose over Rail Worker (6), which had set the pace until the final quarter. Miss Terry Lee (1) took third, and was moving up fast at the finish, while Zee Tee (4), which had moved to the front at the head of the stretch, weakened and placed fourth.

Dodgers Blast Three Homers As 8-5 Victory Evens Series

By JACK HAND

BROOKLYN (AP)—The muscu- [illegible] the National League race with their bristling power squared the world series at two games each with a three-homer blast for an 8-5 triumph over New York Yankees on Saturday.

Pitchers marched from the Yankee bullpen in a long parade while the Dodgers slugged away for 14 hits, covering up the flaws in their own staff.

Backed to the wall by the Yanks, who swept the first two games in their own stadium, the Dodgers evened matters, making sure that their campaign for a series triumph will last at least six games.

With a rich player pool of almost a half million dollars to shoot at, after Saturday's receipts from a crowd of 36,242 were added, the two clubs reared back and swung from their heels as eight pitchers—five Yanks and three Dodgers—tried to stop them.

LABINE SHINES

In the end, it was Clem Labine, Brooklyn's finest relief man, holding the fort after his mates had taken a one-run lead.

Duke Snider smashed a zooming homer far and away over the right-field fence, with two men on base for the clincher in the fifth inning.

New York took a 3-1 lead into the fourth inning with loser Don Larsen struggling but still alive. Roy Campanella's second series homer into the left-field stands narrowed the gap to one run and Gil Hodges' blast over the right-field scoreboard, following Carl Furillo's broken bat infield single, gave the home club a lead it never surrendered.

[illegible] weighed in with three hits off the assortment of Yank pitching, but the man of the hour in the late innings was Snider.

Although the Duke let a fly ball sail over his head for a double by Martin in the sixth, allowing Elston Howard to score from first, he was all over the field. He dug far to his left to snag Irv Noren's bid for an extra-baser and then took Gil McDougald's loft to end the inning and the last Yankee threat.

Snider brought the crowd to its feet with a sprinting one-handed catch of Martin's drive to left centre in the eighth and then raced far to his left for another one-handed grab of pinch-hitter Bill Skowron's fast-dropping fly ball for the final out in the same frame.

Twice before the Dodgers have fought back to tie a series after losing the first two. In 1947 they finally lost out in seven games and in 1953 in six. The Yanks, as usual, were the opposition.

The Yanks started out as though they meant to get even for Friday's indignities as Gil McDougald hit a Carl Erskine pitch into the lower left-field stands with nobody on in the first inning.

Erskine was struggling, obviously trying to forget his arm trouble. A walk to lead-off man Joe Collins cost him another run in the second with the help of [illegible] ard's sacrifice and Phil Rizzuto's single.

Brooklyn got to Larsen for one run in the third on a walk to Sandy Amoros and Junior Gilliam's beautifully placed double down the left-field line on a hit-and-run play.

CHASE ERSKINE

But the Yanks chased Erskine with Yogi Berra's single and a walk to Collins opening the fourth. Don Bessent made Howard force Berra at third on an attempted sacrifice but Collins, who moved to second on the bunt, stole third and scored on Martin's single.

Trailing 3-1, the Dodgers finally caught up with Larsen in the fourth with Campanella's homer. Furillo's single was an infield hit that just escaped Larsen. Martin made a great try on the ball, falling as he threw, but the toss was too late.

Hodges wasted no time, driving a high fly toward right that was helped by the wind in its journey to home-run land.

If the Brooks go on to take the series they will be shattering all precedent. No Brooklyn team, of course, has ever won a series in seven previous attempts. No team has come back after losing the first two to win a best-of-seven series. The closest thing was the 1921 New York Giants who were two down to the first pennant-winning Yankees but came back to take a best-of-nine series 5-3.

Going, Going, Gone

Brooklyn Dodger centre fielder Duke Snider, who made three brilliant catches yesterday in helping the National League champions to an 8-5 trumph over New York Yankees in the fourth game of the World Series, makes a futile leap for the ball as Joe Collins drives his second home run into the bleachers of Yankee Stadium in the first game. Collins smashed two home runs in the opener, driving in three runs, to spark the Yanks to a 6-5 victory.

Brooklyn Wallops Bona Fide Blows

By JOHN LARDNER

North American Newspaper Alliance

BROOKLYN—While the Yankees, in losing the fourth ball game of the world series, 8 to 5, were dropping pop fouls upon the heads of baseball magnates in the grandstand, including their own employer, Mr. Del Webb, the Dodgers were going about the more useful business of hitting home runs. And they were bona fide blows—they would have been home runs in a prairie, or on the painted desert.

A number of unkind names have been used to describe Ebbets Field, especially in the last few days. The honest—and somewhat compact—old ball park has been called a cake-box, a cheese-box, a cowshed, a hat-box, and a medieval telephone booth. When a Dodger hit settles gently into the seats, the critics yell "That would be a loud out in Yankee Stadium!" or "that's a pop fly where I come from!" And it's true that a customer sitting in the left-field stands in Mr. Ebbets' stately old bird-bath is practically breathing down the hairy neck of the batter at the plate.

Well! Let's make a few calculations about the home runs the Dodgers hit Saturday.

Roy Campanella's home run would have been a home run in Yankee Stadium.

Gil Hodges' home run would have been a home run in a Hollywood star's bathroom, of which the average specimen is said to measure 425 feet from end to end.

Duke Snider's home run would have been a home run in the Gulf of Mexico.

Actually, Mr. Snider's home run broke up a game of pinochle in a parking lot across the street from the ball park. It occurred just in time to suit the taste of Mordecai L. McCorkindale, steamfitter, of Coney Island, who was $3.50 ahead of the game at the time the home run set in.

Friday, an architect announced plans for the Brooklyn ball park of the future. It will have a domed roof, of plastic, rising to a height of 750 feet above sea level. There are no statistics as to how wide or long the roof will be at the perimeter, but almost certainly Hodges, Campanella, and Snider would have punched holes in the plastic somewhere, with the blows they hit today, and would then have been traded to Pittsburgh, to pay for repairs.

Under present conditions, however, their work yesterday was more practical than that of Don Larsen, the Yankee pitcher, who hit his owner, Mr. Webb, on the noggin with a foul ball in the fifth inning. It is hard to say what the message was meant to convey. It may have been a call for help, or for a higher salary next year. In any case, it is probably no coincidence that Larsen was removed from the game in the same inning.

The Dodgers now look to have an excellent chance to win their first world series. But unless they win the Sunday game, your correspondent feels that the Yankees will do the usual thing, and take it in six.

QUITE A RECORD: Brooklyn Dodgers may yet win this series but not in our time will any club ever come close to equalling the world series record set by the New York Yankees. . . . This one is their 21st series since 1921, the year they first won the American League pennant, and their record is 16-4 . . . they won five pennants in a row once, four in a row once and three in a row three times . . . since 1921, they have finished lower than third only twice—fourth once and seventh once . . . the second-division finish came in 1925 but they won in 1926, 1927 and 1928 . . . after losing three of the first four series in which they played, the Yanks won 15 of the next 16 and would have 16 straight but for the upset, 4-1, triumph of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1942 . . . the Yankees have won no less than six series in four straight games, in 1927-28-29-38-39-50 . . . no one has come close to their record of 12 straight games and they own the second best winning streak—10 games . . . they won the last game of the 1937 series, swept the 1938 and 1939 classics, and won the first game in 1941 . . . Carl Hubbell stopped their 12-game streak and Whit Wyatt stopped their 10-game streak . . . they have won 71 and lost 35 games, not counting the present series, and since 1927 have won 61 and lost 20 . . . between 1927 and 1942, they won eight straight series, losing only four games while winning the necessary 32.

NUMBERS GAME: A check of results for the first seven days of the thoroughbred meeting at Sandown park discloses that the No. 2 post position appears to be the most favorable . . . no less than 13 of the first 51 winners started in the No. 2 stall and anyone who bet $2 to win on No. 2 in each race would have realized a profit of $33.90 . . . Nine winners have started from No. 3, eight from No. 5 and seven from No. 1 . . . Only five No. 4s have won but 15 have come in for place money . . . betting has been spread more evenly than at most tracks but 15 favorites have won in 51 races, approximately 30 per cent . . . five of the six second choices who won paid more than $8 to win and double win figures have been posted in 19 races . . . 10 of the 14 quinellas have paid more than $25, the biggest being $368.15, $192.30, $104.75, $63.15 and $55.75 . . . an unofficial check shows that 203 horses have started in the first seven days and that Bajada and Final Cross have been trying the hardest, each having gone to the post four times in an eight-day period . . . A. G. Smithers is the leading trainer so far, having saddled six winners . . . Tom Fenton has saddled three winners . . . horses sired by Grey Skies have won four races while Plover, Mabe Monday and Overdrive have sired three winners each . . . Purely personal opinion: If Jim Patton had been on hand when the meet started he would be giving Jim Sivewright and Ron Williams a battle for riding honors.

RANDOM HARVEST: Tom Hamilton can't really care who wins the world series. He won the office pool for the first two games . . . mutuel handle at Sandown park has been approximately $270,000 for the first seven days. That's a far cry from Edmonton, where $4,373,000 was wagered in 21 days. Or even Calgary, with $3,932,000 in 28 days . . . Hugh Coflin, defenceman for Edmonton Flyers, and Cougar-forward Doug Macaulay are partners in a business which allows them to pursue their hockey careers. They own a drive-in ice cream emporium in Edmonton, where ice cream is not too popular from October to May . . . things don't look too rosy for B.C. Lions any more. Winnipeg Blue Bombers are coming fast and look like a good thing for the third, perhaps even the second, playoff spot. Bombers have the runners in Gerry James, Leo Lewis, George Elliott and Lorne Benson and apparently have come up with a great quarterback in Buddy Leake . . . high cost of so-called "amateur" hockey is best shown at Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.). Despite the fact the club averaged about 4,600 fans a game, it lost about $22,000 last season. The Cougars, by comparison, averaged 3,266 last season . . . in Vancouver coach Pat Egan and, particularly, Bill Burega, the Western Hockey League has acquired two rough-house defencemen who'll spend a lot of time in the penalty box. Burega, with Winnipeg, is a good bet to lead the league in penalty-box time . . . and Bill Shvetz is back with Calgary Stampeders . . . the Stampeders will be without Pat Lundy, smooth centreman, this season. He has taken a job as manager of the Regina arena . . . the new Cougar hockey program is the best I've seen in the WHL.

GUESSING DEPARTMENT: The Yanks to regain the series lead today, HMCS Venture and Royal Roads in junior Canadian football, JBAA, Butlers and Tillicums in district soccer. Batting average to date: At bat 289, hits 206, percentage .715.

Victoria Team To Meet Pils

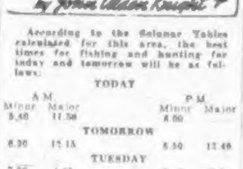
Victoria's new entry in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, rapidly rounding into shape, will hold workouts at Royal Athletic park Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7 p.m. this week in preparation for its first start of the 1955-56 season.

Victoria will clash with Pilseners, promoted from the Vancouver and District Soccer League's first division, in a benefit game for the PCSL's insurance fund at Royal Athletic park Saturday.

Curlers Meet

A meeting of members of the Victoria Curling Club will be held tomorrow night at the club, starting at 8.

Main object of the meeting is to set up club rules for the season and to give members a chance to meet and enter their rinks for the regular club draw as well as the new senior league being formed.



According to the Solunar Tables calculated for this area, the best times for fishing and hunting for today and tomorrow will be as follows:

	A.M. Minor	A.M. Major	P.M. Minor	P.M. Major
TODAY	5.40	11.50	6.00
TOMORROW	6.20	12.15	6.50	12.40
TUESDAY	7.20	1.05	7.45	1.35

Major solunar periods, lasting 1½ to 2 hours, black type.
Minor periods, shorter in duration, light type.

The Redskins, who last weekend upset the defending champion Cleveland Browns, trailed 16-0 in the third quarter before their sensational outburst.

Led by a pair of outstanding rookies, Baltimore Colts sprung their second straight upset in the National Football League Saturday night by trimming the defending western division champion Detroit Lions, 28-13, at Baltimore.

In the night's other game, Washington Redskins scored four touchdowns—three in two minutes and 17 seconds in a fantastic third period—to upset the highly-favored Philadelphia Eagles, 31-30, before almost 32,000 fans at Philadelphia.

Baltimore, which opened its NFL season with a surprising 23-17 win over Chicago Bears, defeated Detroit for the first time in six games before the biggest Baltimore crowd in four seasons—40,030. Lions suffered their second straight setback, the first time it has happened in six campaigns of coaching by Buddy Parker.

AMECHE RAMBLES

Quarterback George Shaw and fullback Alan Ameche were the two rookies who did most of the damage for the Colts. Shaw, the bonus pick of the Colts from Oregon, passed for two touchdowns and Ameche, the first draft from Wisconsin, wheeled along the turf for two more.

Ameche, who made his debut last week and rushed for a total of 194 yards, picked up another 152 yards last night including a 58-yard ramble through the core of the Detroit line.

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Winnipeg's inspired Blue Bombers, downed and all but out of the running less than three weeks ago, scored the upset of the 1955 Western Inter-Provincial Football Union season Saturday night by beating the previously undefeated Edmonton Eskimos 12-0 as a special gift for a star of yesteryear.

FOR "THE CHIEF"

Bombers whipped the Grey Cup champions before a roaring Winnipeg Stadium crowd of 18,884 that spilled over into extra bleacher seats to be on hand for "Jack Jacobs' Night." In doing so, they smashed the Eskimos' proud record of never having been beaten in western competition this season and snapped the spectacular Edmonton victory streak at 15 games.

It was the fourth win in 11 starts for the revitalized Bombers and the most dramatic of them all.

As a result, their previously-dim playoff hopes were fanned to new heights and they moved at least temporarily into a tie with the British Columbia Lions for third place in the standings.

They rode to victory on a third-quarter outburst that netted two converted touchdowns with quarterback Buddy Leake and halfback Leo Lewis i the scoring roles. Leake led the way with seven points, made up of a touchdown and two converts, while Lewis added the major that put the game on ice.

The third quarter was the big one. The clubs were locked in a scoreless tie at the end of the first quarter and again at the half, and there was no scoring in the fourth quarter.

GETS BIG CHECK

The victory was especially sweet for Winnipeg because the night had been set aside in honor of Jacobs, the familiar "chief" who starred at quarterback for the bombers from 1950 through 1954. Jacobs appeared on the field mid-way through tonight's game to accept a flock of plaudits and gifts which included a check for $4,000.

Eskimos never were able to crack the Bomber defences with any effectiveness. The crowd, a 1955 high at Winnipeg Stadium, roared approval when a desperation Edmonton drive finally petered out on the Winnipeg 10-yard line in the face of vicious Bomber tackling in the fourth quarter.

Bombers got their touchdowns on the ground as neither club had much success at any time through the air. Along the ground, however, the fourth-place Winnipegers enjoyed a wide margin.

They rolled for 18 first downs to Edmonton's 12 and picked up 293 yards rushing as compared to 142 for the champions.

Edmonton's Jackie Parker completed three of 12 attempted passes to give his club 33 yards through the air. Leake clicked on only one of four pass attempts for a meagre three yards.

Lewis set the first Bomber touchdown up with a brilliant plunge over centre. It carried 19 yards and moved his club from its own 54 to the Edmonton 37 midway through the period.

Lewis, fullback Lorne Benson and halfback Gerry James, alternated in successive cracks at the line as the Bombers marched relentlessly to the Edmonton one. Leake bulled across on a quarterback sneak.

Then Tom Casey took Bob Heydenfeldt's punt on the Edmonton 47, and Leake pushed his way down to the 32 on the keeper play, James, maintaining his spectacular pace, burst over centre to the 17 and Leake made the keeper work again for another eight yards.

That was all the Winnipegers needed. With a third down on the Edmonton nine and two yards to go, Leake, James and Lewis teamed up in that order on a pass-and-run extension play. Lewis capped the strategy by sweeping wide around left end and going across the goal line standing up.

Fumbles Prove Costly As Lions Lose, 24-9

VANCOUVER (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders, scooping up fumbles and ripping holes in the B.C. Lions' defensive wall, whipped the west coast team 24-9 before 23,321 fans in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game here Saturday night.

The loss dropped the Lions into a third place tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Roughriders put together three converted touchdowns and two field goals to a touchdown and a field goal by B.C.

Aguirre's kicking of a wet ball kept Lions back — seven punts going for a 41-yard average to Lions' six for 31.

Lions, sporting a brand-new double fullback formation, had moderate success on the ground until Pollard was injured for the second time and left the game early in the third quarter.

All Saskatchewan touchdowns were the direct result of B.C. fumbles. The prairie team worked the ball into position for their first field goal early in the second quarter on a pass interception.

Standouts were Marlow and Pollard, each wearing number 92.

Marlow shook Pollard badly early in the game and every time he carried the ball after that, he was booed heartily.

Marlow, assisted from the field himself after a bruising tackle late in the game, was cheered when the public address announcer said he was injured.

riders and Ron Adam the other Joe "The Toe" Aguirre converted the touchdowns and booted two field goals.

By Bailey crashed through for the B.C. touchdown and Ron Baker booted the convert. Al Pollard kicked the field goal.

Lions rolled up 24 first downs to 21 for Riders but the visitors outgained the coast crew along the ground—280 to 241 yards.

Galiffa was hitting his receivers, completing 12 of 20 attempts for 169 yards. Frank Tripucka connected with six of the 10 he tried for a meagre 75 yards.

Both teams intercepted once, but the story was in the fumbles B.C. committed six.

Soccer Season Under Way

Education Minister Ray Williston gave the 1955-56 Victoria and District Football League season its official start yesterday afternoon at Royal Athletic park as he performed the opening kick-off ceremonies for the first-division match between Heaneys and Victoria West. Heaneys, winners of the league title last season, opened the new campaign with a 3-1 victory.

Heaneys Beat Wests; Scots Nip Wanderers

Heaneys got away to a good start in defence of their Victoria and District Football League first division championship yesterday by trimming Victoria West, 3-1, at Royal Athletic park in one of the two matches that opened the league's 1955-56 season.

A goal by Jim Davison with 10 minutes remaining gave Canadian Scottish a 3-2 decision over Dutch Wanderers at Windsor park in the second division opener.

Showing an edge in condition against an almost completely rebuilt Victoria West team, Heaneys were given a tussle in the first half but broke a 1-1 deadlock at the intermission with a pair of goals in the second half. The cartagemen had most of the play in the final 45 minutes and Tim Walker netted what proved to be the winner after 20 minutes.

YOUTHFUL PLAYERS

The greenshirts had several youthful players in their lineup and were bolstered by the addition of Ken Campbell, former goalie for the Sapperton and Collingwood teams in the Vancouver and district league.

Heaneys applied the pressure in the early stages but Wests came back in the latter part of the first half and drew first blood as Roy Speller banged home Fred Curtis' corner kick.

Tim Walker, outstanding for the winners, started the play that led to Heaney's first goal. Walker passed to Crisp in midfield who in turn crossed to Darrell Burley, who made no mistake on the close-in chance.

Walker then put Heaneys ahead to stay in the second half and veteran Frank Grealy, on a play with Birley, fired the clincher

HORST SCORES TWO

Davison combined with Archie Taylor to give the Scots a 1-0 lead at half time. Hanney Horst headed in neatly to tie the count early in the second half and then scored from a scramble at 15 minutes to give Wanderers a 2-1 lead.

Dave Edgar tied the score on a long shot that grazed the upright to set the stage for Davison's second goal.

JBAA and Esquimalt, the two other first division clubs, meet at Heywood Avenue park today at 2.30 p.m. In second division action, Brodies Bakery tangles with Butler Bros. at Central park at 2.30, and Queen's Own Rifles meet Tillicums at Windsor park at 2.30.

An important meeting has been scheduled this afternoon at 2.30. League officials and team managers will meet with the B.C. Football Commission at the British Public Schools Club.

Victoria Squad Takes Trophy

A five-man team from the Victoria City Squash Club won the Heussey-Borgendale Trophy for the first time yesterday by defeating Seattle, 3-2, in a team match at the Sussex Hotel courts.

Ted Clarke and Gene Hoover, two of the Seattle players, will perform in an exhibition match at the Sussex courts today at 2 p.m.

Complete results follow:

Clarke (Seattle) defeated Dr. K. Greenwood, 15-13, 15-9, 15-9.
Lieut. Bell-Irving (Victoria) defeated Gene Hoover, 14-11, 9-15, 18-14, 11-15, 15-10.
Larson (Victoria) defeated Sullivan, 15-8, 18-14, 15-9.
Peck (Seattle) defeated Thompson, 15-11, 15-11, 9-15, 7-15, 15?
Houston (Victoria) defeated Mooney, 15-11, 15-9, 15-8.

When the Comunity Chest of Greater Victoria was founded in 1938, average campaign costs were more than twice the present amount of less than three cents of every dollar given.

Sivewright Boosts Lead; Adds 14 Points to Total

Hard-working Jimmy Sivewright, who has been averaging seven rides a day, took a healthy lead yesterday in the race for riding honors at Sandown Park.

The veteran Sivewright rode his 11th, 12th and 13th winners and barely missed his 14th as he picked up 14 points to pull away from his closest opposition, Ron Williams.

Williams picked up his 10th winner and showed twice to add six points but now trails Sivewright, 74 points to 60.

Herb Suarez and Leo Guarasci, only riders with any reasonable chance of getting into the fight, added four and seven points, respectively.

Points are awarded on the basis of four for a win, two for place and one for show. At the end of the meeting, the point-leader will receive an engraved wrist watch from a Victoria jeweler.

	M	1	2	3	Pts.
Sivewright	49	13	7	8	74

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY FOR GOOD MARINE ENGINE SALESMAN

Only a progressive, man of good character and proven sales ability with knowledge of boats and marine engines need apply.

National Motors are now Vancouver Island distributors for the new Dearborn "Interceptor" Marine Engine. It's a new type engine that produces more than twice the horsepower with less than half the weight. This engine will be of great interest to every boat owner—pleasure craft, commercial, speed boat or otherwise.

The salesman will be required to cover the Vancouver Island territory. For the right man, the financial opportunities are unlimited. For appointment: Phone National Motors, 4-8174—ask for Mr. Dave Buck.

Magic Note Beaten In First Start; 5,000 at Sandown

BY JIM TANG

Much-heralded Magic Note finally made its first start at [illegible] and Tommy Fenton's chesnut mare, who had won $11,365 this year on Vancouver tracks, wasn't equal to the task.

Favored slightly over the stretch-running Dimitri in the well-bet Times Handicap, feature race of the day, Magic Note faltered in the stretch after dueling with Renmerb for seven furlongs in the mile race and finished a well-beaten fourth.

Top weight of 125 pounds and the effort of holding off Renmerb took its toll as Cocos and Lucy's Doll, running as an entry, finished in that order with Dimitri rushing up again to get show money.

With Magic Note and Dimitri getting most of the play from the record — for Sandown — crowd of more than 5,000, the entry paid a neat $11.60, $7.80, and $3.90 across the board as the Golden Green Stable pocketed $850 of the purse of $1,000.

GOOD DAY

Perfect racing weather and still more of those photo finishes made it a fine day for bettors, who put $78,335 through the mutuels, also a new high for Sandown after seven days. Total wagering for the seven days is approximately $270,000.

Four favorites won and four outsiders paid double-figure win prices on an interesting card which saw a new record for the six furlongs.

The record was set by Prince A.A. in the fifth race, closest of the day. The five-year-old brown gelding from the Marsh Stable made up a lot of ground in the stretch to get the camera decision from Railworker, who had tried to make it wire to wire but wound up missing fourth place by a neck as Miss Terry Lee and Zee Tee almost made it.

Time was 1.14 on a track which continues to improve and the win price on Prince A.A. was $12. Miss Terry Lee, an 11-1 shot, just missed and would probably have taken it all in three or four more strides.

Cocos' time of 1.40.2 for the feature was also a new record inasmuch as it was the first mile race at Sandown. For comparison, Magic Note won at a mile in Vancouver this year with 1.38 but was packing only 118 pounds.

THIRD TRY CLICKS

Spec So, after losing twice in two previous starts by a neck, made it yesterday in the first race, rushing from behind to catch the pace-setting Dobry and win by a length.

Next favorite to crack down was a newcomer, Miss Security, who ran this summer at Longacres. She was much the best as rider Jimmy Patton drove her to the front early, outlasting Dr. Frank in a duel for the lead and never being seriously challenged in the six-furlongs third race.

Jack Short's Chief Mathias stepped down a bit in class in the fourth race but barely made it in the last stride as Cabbet, stepping up a bit, put up a tough scrap to lose by inches.

And the 10-year-old Cyclone justified his backing in the mile and five-eighths marathon test by winning almost as he pleased, pulling away easily when called on after being well placed for the first eight furlongs by rider Jim Sivewright.

FIRST IN 14

High Justice, longest price in the field of seven in the second race, won his first race in 14 starts this season for the day's best straight price — $22.50. Final Cross, another outsider, came up fast in the last strides to edge out Brotchie for show money and cause a neat $55.75 payoff in the quinella.

And the camera was needed for the fifth time during the day to decide placings in the eighth race, Lady Cara, a bit overlooked, managed to hold on long enough to hold Dairy and Blue Edge as the three went under the finish wire head and head.

Lady Cara paid $13.90 to win and combined with favored Dairy for a $21.95 quinella.

Tomorrow's card has five races over the six furlongs distance and two over a mile and 70 yards. First post time has been advanced to 1.30 for the balance of the meet.

HOW THEY STAND

BIG FOUR	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Montreal	4	2	0	178	132	8
Hamilton	4	2	0	148	106	8
Toronto	2	4	0	134	162	4
Ottawa	2	4	0	99	157	4

Montreal Alouettes, sparked by the pinpoint passing of quarterback Sam Etcheverry, came from behind with two converted touchdowns in the final quarter Saturday to nip Toronto Argonauts, 30-28, in a wide-open Big Four Football Union game at Toronto.

The victory enabled the defending champions Als to maintain a first-place deadlock with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who overpowered a hapless Ottawa Rough Rider squad, 40-0, before a dispirited crowd of about 13,000 at Ottawa.

A crowd of 19,271 saw the free-wheeling Alouettes overcome a 22-12 lead that Argos had built up at half-time. Montreal scored a third-quarter touchdown to trail 22-18 after three quarters and then drove for two more majors in the final session of the tense battle.

HOPES SHATTERED

Etcheverry passed for three touchdowns and he scored one himself to shatter the rebuilt Argo's hopes of breaking a tie for third place with the Rough Riders.

The touchdown Etcheverry scored came in the fourth quarter and it proved to be Montreal's winning margin. Home brew halfback Jacques Belec got two of the Montreal touchdowns with the others going to Joey Pal and Red O'Quinn. Bud Korchak converted four of the five touchdowns and Tex Coulter booted a first-quarter single.

THREE FOR PFEIFFER

Argonauts also picked up five touchdowns but missed converting two of them. Quarterback Tom Dublinski and end Al Pfeiffer teamed to lead the Argo attack with Pfeiffer taking three of Dubinlski's passes for touchdowns.

Dublinski also passed to Dick Shatto for another major and Toronto's fifth touchdown was scored by Corky Tharp. Pfeiffer converted three of the five majors.

Import halfback Lou Kusserow and two youthful Canadians—Ron Howell and Steve Oneschuk—shared honors in the smashing Hamilton victory. Kusserow plunged for two of six touchdowns while Howell and Oneschuk each got one on long runs. Quarterback Nobby Wirkowski passed to Paul Bischoff for another major and import end Frank McDonald completed the scoring with a first-quarter major.

Reliable Tip Logan added six more points by converting all the touchdowns.

In the opening of the Intercollegiate league, the defending champion Toronto Varsity Blues rolled to a 20-2 triumph over University of Western Mustangs, and the rebuilt Queen's University squad whipped McGill Redmen, 30-10.

Score, Virdon Best Rookies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Herb Score, southpaw strikeout specialist of the Cleveland Indians, and Bill Virdon, bespectacled outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, Saturday were named as the major leagues' rookies of the year in a poll of sports writers conducted by The Sporting News.

The national baseball weekly reported that Score received the votes of 71 of 103 writers in the American League while Virdon was favored in the National League on 57 of 92 ballots.

The 22-year-old Score set a new strikeout record for a rookie with 244 this season to top the old mark of 227 set by Grover Cleveland Alexander in 1911. He had a 16-10 record. Virdon, 24, had a .281 batting average with 18 doubles, six triples and 17 homers. He drove in 69 runs.

Navy Moves Into Second Place On 42-0 Victory Over Vampires

HOW THEY STAND

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Oak Bay Drakes	2	0	1	23	6	5
Navy	1	1	1	53	13	3
Mayo Vampires	1	2	0	6	66	2

Yesterday's score: Navy 42, Vampires 6.
Next game Saturday, Oak Bay vs. Navy, Macdonald park.

By JIM TAYLOR

Navy put on the greatest scoring display seen in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League this season at Macdonald park yesterday to romp past Vampires, 42-0, and take over second place in the league standings.

Frank Hindle's squad, which has been improving steadily since the beginning of the season, was a relentless machine yesterday. From their first touchdown in the opening minute until their last major on the final play of the game the tars were in complete control.

Vampires, riddled with injuries both in the backfield and on the line, were completely dominated by the hard-charging Navy line, and never got their backfield untracked. Ray Mitchell's squad, without the power of Art Manson and pile-driving Pete Ash in the backfield, lacked a consistent ground attack. Only little Charlie Bishop was able to dent the Navy line, grinding out most of his team's yardage along the ground.

STARTED EARLY

Navy was ahead, 5-0, before the fans had a chance to settle back in their seats. Navy ran a short Vampire punt back to the Vamps' 28-yard line, and Bill Schick burst over left tackle to score on the next play.

Vampires, who were held to three yards rushing from scrimmage in the first quarter, fumbled a kick by fullback Tom Humphrey behind their own goal line. George Stephens, who was the standout player in the sailors' attack, fell on the ball for the first of his three touchdowns.

Another short kick, another weak point in Vampires' offensive, cost Mitchell's squad another five points at the end of the quarter. Navy got the ball on the losers' 30. Three plays later Schick slipped over left tackle for another five points, to give Navy a 15-0 quarter-time lead.

Vampires threatened to rally early in the second period, but the threat was short-lived, petering out on the sailors' 20-yard stripe.

Versatile Archie Langston fired two touchdown passes to Ron Young, one in the second and third quarter. Stephens came through with two more fourth-quarter touchdowns, both converted by Bunker Hill, to give Navy a 37-0 bulge.

Langston rubbed salt into the already smarting wounds of the Vamps by intercepting a desperation pass on the game's last play and scampering 30 yards for the final score.

Next Saturday, Navy will be out to wrest first place from Oak Bay Drakes at Macdonald park. Game time is 2 p.m.

Drakes Sign Two Players

Oak Bay Drakes, current Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League leaders, have announced the signing of two former Victoria grid stars in an effort to strengthen their injury-riddled lineup.

Signed were halfback Bob Monaghan, former St. Louis College star, and veteran fullback Len Scott, who played with the defunct Victoria Cougars in 1948 and will probably handle the Drake kicking chores.

Jack Adams Pleased With Big Detroit Club; Ullman Draws Praise

By PAUL PATTON

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Jack Adams, a large man himself, likes big hockey players. That's why he's so happy with the current National Hockey League edition of Detroit Red Wings.

"This is the biggest team we've ever had at Detroit," the Wings general manager said. "I can't recall ever seeing one as large."

Statistics bear out his statement, made as the Wings trained for the 1955-56 season. Detroit's 12 regular forwards average 183 pounds and the six defencemen three pounds more.

Only two of the 19 men—left-winger Ted Lindsay and centre Dutch Reibel—are under five feet, 10 inches.

LIKES TO GAMBLE

Adams, starting his 39th year in hockey and his 29th with Detroit, is a man who likes to gamble. Never before in NHL history has a Stanley Cup champion been so torn apart.

One of the biggest shakeups sent Terry Sawchuk, the league's all-star goalie, to Boston Bruins. Other trades completed with Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers as well as Bruins involved 18 players.

When the Wings take the ice in their first game against Chicago at Detroit Oct. 6 in search of an eighth straight league title, five rookies and five other new players will be on the roster.

Key figure on the club will be Glenn Hall, 23, the Western Hockey League all-star goaltender who is taking Sawchuk's place.

Another rookie, 19-year-old Norm Ullman, also played in the WHL in 1954. Adams predicts he could win the "rookie-of-the-year award if he has the right linemates." A centre, Ullman scored 25 goals and 29 assists in 60 games last year.

Except for an ankle injury suffered in a softball game in 1954, the 194-pound husky probably would have been called up last year.

Termed the best prospect with Edmonton Oil Kings, Memorial Cup finalists in 1954, he ended the season with Edmonton Flyers.

FIGURES ON BUCYK

Another Flyer star, Johnny Bucyk, who captured the rookie-of-the year title in the western league last season, also figures in Adams' plans.

Other rookies include Larry Hillman, an 18-year-old defenceman, and Norm Corcoran, a five-year player with Hershey of the American League.

Top newcomers are defencemen Warren (Red) Godfrey and Gordon (Bucky) Hollingworth, centre Ed Sandford and left winger Real Chevrefils.

Hollingworth, 22, a product of the Montreal Canadien chain, was picked up by the Hawks after Canadiens put him on waivers. He was the key man in the Detroit-Chicago trade. Godfrey, 24, is teamed with veteran Red Kelly. Sandford, 27, is an eight-year veteran from Boston.

WING SLOTS OPEN

The right combination for the club's third line bothers Adams. Naturally, he's pleased with his big line of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Dutch Reibel. His second line is Delvecchio, Dineen, and Chevrefils. Ullman will centre the third line but the wing slots are still open.

Adams, who made the trades because "no team can stand pat," cites his defence this year as proof the 1955 Wings are stronger than last year's Stanley Cup champions.

Bob Goldham, at 32 the oldest Red Wing, is the other defenceman, with Marty Pavelich, Jerry Toppazzini, the extra forwards along with Corcoran, Bucyk and Sandford.

What team figures to give the Wings the toughest opposition this season?

"Well Toronto has a lot of kids and you never know about them," Adams said. "Chicago can be tough if their goaltending straightens out. Boston now has Sawchuk. Montreal has some good players. But I like our chances."

Red Wing Recruits

Medal Rounds Start Tuesday

First of two medal rounds on full handicap for the Benning Cup will be played at the Victoria Golf Club Tuesday. Second round of the competition is scheduled Oct. 11.

Indians Score Early To Upset Ohio State

Most of the United States' top-ranked college football teams flattened opponents Saturday but Ohio State, which just managed to make the select circle last week, was humbled by Stanford in the NCAA's nationally televised game of the day.

The surprising Indians, who bowed to Oregon State last week, rolled to a touchdown the first time they got their hands on the ball and squeezed out a 7-0 victory over the favored Ohio State squad.

In other leading games of the day, top-rated Maryland whipped Baylor, 20-6; second-ranked Michigan downed Michigan State, 14-7, before 97,239 fans at Ann Arbor; third-ranked Georgia Tech whipped Southern Methodist, 20-7; Oklahoma tripped Pittsburgh, 26-14 for its 21st straight victory; Notre Dame made it two straight wins by routing Indiana, 19-0; UCLA recovered from last week's heart-breaking defeat to Maryland by walloping Washington State, 55-0; Army stopped Penn State, 36-6, and Texas Christian routed Arkansas, 26-0.

Hard-charging Washington, leading 6-0 at half-time, wore Oregon down in the second half and scored an 18-7 triumph for its third straight victory of the season.

Saturday's scores:

Eagles Triumph

Eagles, held to a 2-2 half-time tie, erupted for four unanswered goals in the second tish, 6-2, in a Division III Junior Juvenile Soccer League exhibition match played yesterday at S. J. Willis high school.

Blackpool XI Pulls Out in Front As Albion Holds Charlton to Tie

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Blackpool snatched a 2-1 victory over Cardiff City Saturday and pulled clear of rival Charlton Athletic in the English Soccer League First Division race.

A second half rally which produced goals by winger Bob Perry and half back Ted Fenton gave Blackpool two points and boosted its total for the season to 15 from 10 matches.

Charlton Athletic travelled to the Midlands and found West Bromwich Albion in top form. A crowd of 33,000 saw Charlton and West Brom tie 3-3 in a match packed with thrills. Charlton now has 14 points from 11 games. West Brom is in third position—on goal average—with 13 points.

Fourth-place Manchester United, also with 13 points, romped to a convincing 3-1 victory over Luton Town.

Sunderland went under 2-1 at Portsmouth. A crowd of 40,000 saw Everton win 2-1 at Newcastle.

CROWD IMPROVES

An aggregate of 885,000—A slight improvement on the last two Saturdays—saw Saturday's 46 English Soccer League matches. One of the biggest crowds of the day turned up at London's Highbury Stadium to watch lowly Arsenal play Aston Villa.

The London club won 1-0 on a goal by winger Gordon Nutt who was recently signed from Cardiff. That win lifted Arsenal off bottom place in Division I to third from the foot of the table.

Chelsea, league champions last year, ended a poor run with a 2-1 victory over Manchester City. Chelsea now is fourth from the bottom. Tottenham, the third London club in the doldrums, lost 3-0 at Birmingham and slumped into bottom place in the standings.

Fulham won 3-2 at Rotherham and moved from fifth place to second from the top in Division II. Bristol Rovers lost 2-0 at Lincoln but keep their place as second division leaders with 15 points. Fulham has 14 points.

Leyton Orient, the only winner among the top six clubs in the Third Division (Southern), now holds second place, two points behind Northampton. In the North Grimsby established a two-point lead by beating its main rival, Accrington, 3-0.

Aberdeen, Scottish champions last season, qualified for the final of the Scottish League Cup competition by beating the Rangers 2-1. But they will not know who their final opponents will be until next Saturday, when Motherwell and St. Mirrin play a rematch, having tied 3-3 yesterday despite overtime.

Remember When:

Babe Ruth set the major league record for a season's total home runs by smashing out his 60th of the schedule with New York Yankees, 28 years ago yesterday. The great slugger, who died in 1948, hit 714 homers in his baseball career stretching from 1914 to 1935.

All-Stars To Meet Wings In Annual Clash Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — The greatest players in hockey, resplendent in star-studded uniforms will work as a unit tonight in Detroit and try to prove once more that a collecti. of stars can beat the best tried-and-proven hockey machine.

It is the ninth annual National Hockey League all-star game, officially ushering in the 1955-56 season. It brings together the selected all-stars of last season—both the first and second teams—and the Stanley Cup champions, the Detroit Red Wings.

After the game, the all-stars will rejoin their clubs preparatory to the opening later in the week of the regular schedule. Proceeds from the game go to the NHL pension society.

STARS WIN FOUR

The all-stars have won the spectacle four times. Only once have the Stanley Cup champions been victorious, and once they tied. In 1951 and 1952—when the first all-star team met the second all-star team—the games were ties.

Coach Jimmy Skinner will handle his Red Wings Sunday night. Dick Irvin, as coach of the runner-up Montreal Canadiens in the cup series last spring, will direct the all-stars. Since then Irvin has taken over the job of coaching Chicago Black Hawks.

In addition to the 10 players of the first and second all-star teams, Irvin has the privilege of using eight other players.

Those on the all-star team, in order of first—and second—team choice, are:

Those chosen by Irvin are: Defence: Allan Stanley, Chicago, Leo Boivin, Boston, and Jim Morrison, Toronto; centre: Red Sullivan, Chicago; right wing: Eddie Litzenberger, Chicago; left wing: Harry Watson, Chicago, and two extra forwards Leo Labine, Boston, and Ron Stewart, Toronto.

Two all-star Red Wing players, defenceman Red Kelly of the first team, and defenceman Bob Goldham of the second, will play with their Detroit club.

High, Pegged-Ruble Prices No Attraction for Tourists

By DAVID BROWN

The Kremlin's warm up to the outside world in the past year has given rise to speculation that in the near future the Soviet Union may open its gates to get a piece of the global sightseeing business.

But according to a Reuters dispatch from Moscow, the high and mighty Soviet monetary policy of the expensive ruble may be as big an obstacle to any anticipated tourist boom as the "iron curtain" itself.

This is the consensus of the first group of British tourists to rubberneck in Russia since the war. They say that the Soviet-fixed rate for the ruble, which makes a bottle of beer cost up to $2.10, isn't exactly a selling point for a Cook's tour of the Kremlin.

These 28 pioneers of postwar tourism in the Soviet Union paid $478 each for 12 days' holiday in Moscow and Leningrad. This included air fare from London to Leningrad and back and train fares between Leningrad and Moscow, room and board in first class hotels and conducted sightseeing tours.

For those who wanted a nip of vodka, a taste of caviar or a bottle of beer, prices were three or four times as high as those back home.

In California's Redwood Empire, 198 miles north of San Francisco, stands a massive redwood tree which, so far as is known, is the tallest one-room house in the world.

Some 300 years ago a fire attacked the vitals of the tree, which even then was more than 2,000 years old. The [illegible] gutting the interior of the tree to a height of 50 feet, leaving in its wake a tapering room 21 by 27 feet at the base.

The tree was once used as a dormitory for convicts during [illegible].

In recent years a door and windows have been added to the tree, but it is otherwise unchanged from the days when it was used as a shelter for convicts and earlier, Indians.

A PADRE IN PRINT

By REV. WILLIAM HILLS

As some of my 'teen-agers would have it, there are times when I make like Liberace.

Well, the other night my fingers were stumbling like an alcoholic's through Handel's "Water Music." The allegro vivace didn't upset them too much but when they assayed the andante con moto they stopped on a quaver at the seventh bar.

"Da dee dum de doh," went the tune.

Now, I thought to myself, I've heard that before today. Where was it? Then I remembered. It is the theme music of all things to CBC's "Morning Devotions."

Somebody in the Vancouver radio station must have a sly sense of humor. He might well have chosen "Roll Out the Barrel," for Handel was not in a religious mood when he composed this music.

He was providing a musical obligato for a royal barge [illegible] on the Thames river.

I wonder how many of my readers make a point to listen in to this program which hits the air waves at precisely 7.10 a.m.

At one time it provided an inspirational inauguration of the day's chores.

It had its pattern of quiet prayer, hymns and a meditation. It attempted to do nothing more than turn man's thought to God. It couldn't do more than that for it had only 15 minutes to sign on and off.

Generally speaking the parsons who conducted it were competent as to voice and reverent as to manner.

Bad on All Counts

But in recent months it has slipped badly. Nowadays I am not at all surprised to hear bad English, bad theology and a bad delivery all poured into my ears at once.

It seems that the offering of a few simple prayers has gone out of fashion. They have been forfeited for a half warmed [illegible] of sermons which should have been left at the bottom of the barrel.

Two weeks ago the Anglican rector of a well-known and long-established parish church in Vancouver treated the breakfast occupants like seminarians in a divinity course.

Last week a Presbyterian divine followed the same pathway but clothed his remarks with the mantle of the [illegible].

It is not that I am a lover of [illegible], but what a shame it is that this opportunity for devotion should be so badly mismanaged.

If the dials have been clicked off CBU at 7.15 a.m. each week day, then the parsons have nobody to blame but themselves.

Short-Lived Substances Found in Cigaret Smoke

WASHINGTON (NANA) — There are evanescent, unidentified, highly reactive chemical compounds in cigaret smoke.

They probably are not present in tobacco as such, nor in the [illegible] residue of tobacco. But they may be the substances responsible for much lung cancer—if the thesis that cigaret smoking has caused the rapid increase of this highly fatal malady can be upheld.

Their existence has recently been reported to the American Association for Advancement of Science here through the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research. The discovery was made in Germany.

The existence of the suspicious materials was determined through the phenomenon of fluorescence, by which light of certain wave lengths is emitted by substances that have been irradiated with invisible ultra-violet light.

Cigaret smoke was passed through benzine or petroleum and the combination was irradiated. The resultant fluorescence could not be attributed to any known chemicals. It disappeared quite rapidly, indicating that the substances are highly unstable, although one stable constituent was found.

It has been found in the past, says the Sloan-Kettering report, that cancer-producing substances are chemically highly reactive. But, says the report, the chemical nature of the indicated unstable compounds is not known and it is not known whether they are carcinogenic (cancer-producing).

TUC Favors Control Of Gas by Commission

By BILL MAYOR

Development and distribution of natural gas should be controlled by the B.C. Power Commission with provincial supplies assured ahead of export markets, the B.C. Trade Union Congress has decided.

In a hard look at natural resources from an extensive report prepared by a standing committee on resources, the convention adopted a statement of policy and made decisions on natural gas distribution and also development of hydro-electric power.

The committee, comprising chairman John Hayward, Street Railwaymen's Union, H. L. Hansen, Pulp and Sulphite Union, and J. G. Maguire, B.C. Government Employees' Association, was established a year ago.

It had worked on its report since that time and also submitted a brief to the royal commission on forestry. Chairman Hayward attended the B.C. Natural Resources Conference.

On request of the royal commissioner, the TUC committee is still to give its findings on a brief submitted to the commission by the B.C. Forest Service management division on stumpage and appraisals.

TUC policy on resources is based on that formulated by the B.C. Natural Resources Conference. A union exception is a request that a natural resources commission be appointed, representative of government, UBC, industry, farmers and labor.

Members would be paid only when in session, with their appointment subject to annual confirmation.

The resources commission would consider and recommend resources development for the optimum good of all citizens.

Both the TUC and resources conference believe the policy should be made effective by provincial legislation.

On natural gas, the government was asked to assure control by the power commission, which would be charged with development of distribution and marketing at the lowest possible cost and a reasonable return to the commission.

ASSURED SUPPLY

The commission then would co-operate with the board of transport commissioners and trade and commerce department to assure domestic and industrial requirements in the foreseeable future ahead of exports.

The commission would also co-operate on development of a petro-chemical industry in the province to use natural gas by-products.

THOUSANDS OF CLAIMS

About 60,000 claims so far this year have been handled by the Workmen's Compensation Board, chairman J. Edwin Eades reports.

About 1,000 have been rejected, but nowhere else in Canada is the number of rejections so small, he said.

He attributed the large number of claims to the increase in employment and wider coverage of the compensation legislation.

Labor minister Lyle Wicks has also disclosed that 1,500 fishermen have registered for compensation coverage under a voluntary registration plan devised last year.

Most in the industry previously were without coverage.

Horses Deserve Holiday

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — A trade union raised a new cry here Friday: Three weeks annual vacation and cumulative sick leave for horses.

"Horses carrying the mail in country districts are getting a raw deal," the Postal Workers' Union decided.

"The postman who maintains a horse goes on vacation once a year but his replacement takes over the horse. The horse works all year round," he complained.

Community Chest objective of $210,000 in Greater Victoria this fall is $14,000 more than was donated last year because the 17 Red Feather agencies must meet increasing demand from the growing community.

Charged with carrying logs in a truck licenced to operate only as a private freight carrier, Reinhold Hehn of Victoria was fined $10 and $3.50 costs in Colwood court.

Annual Meet In Saanich

SAANICHTON—The annual banquet of Central Saanich firemen was held this week at the Saanichton Fire Hall.

Wives of the more than 30 volunteer firemen prepared the hot meal. Reeve Rupert Brown was unable to attend, but Central Saanich councillors attended.

Building Records Toppled Again

NANAIMO—Ben Boers, city building inspector, said yesterday that building records in Nanaimo have reached another new high for September.

A $3,300,000 total is expected for 1955. The 1954 total just topped the $2,000,000 mark. Permits for nine months of this year total $2,764,000, with another $600,000 in sight.

Sixty-one permits were issued last month for a total of $364,400, chiefly due to the upswing in home building.

The September total included $207,500 for 15 permits to cover 26 dwelling units which includes an apartment block, 13 commercial permits totalling $93,100 and $30,000 for public buildings.

Present Institution Inadequate

New Duncan Hospital Unit Planned; Ratepayers' Consent To Be Sought

DUNCAN—A new unit of King's Daughters' hospital will be constructed as a permanent core of a completely new hospital with funds for the new unit to be raised by [illegible] of ratepayers in School District 65 (Cowichan).

Plans are being made now to [illegible] consent of residents in the unorganized part of the three-part school district. City of Duncan and North Cowichan are the other parties to the taxation plan, but in the unorganized area the full consent of ratepayers is necessary to the plan.

Sir Philip Livingston, chairman of the hospital board sub-committee, has listed eight grave inadequacies of the present hospital.

which will fit most suitably into a permanent design for a completely new hospital to replace the present 101-bed institution.

To secure the consent of landowners in the unorganized part of School District 65, the subcommittee will hold meetings with groups of owners in four sections of the unorganized area, secure their consent and then the various groups would form their own committees to put over the needs for a new hospital to the whole of the school district.

The proposed new building with full equipment will of necessity be expensive. It is no use adding further wards simply because no rooms exist where [illegible] can be serviced.

The first objective is the construction of the core, the most costly part of all hospitals. With the core will also be one new ward block of 34 beds.

Paper Makers Wonder

Foreign Nations' Forest Harvest Threat to B.C.

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The big pulp and paper firms of British Columbia are likely to come up against some extremely keen competition in the next few years, according to a Victoria forestry consultant.

In a submission to the current Sloan Commission A. W. Bentley said that other countries were [illegible] ing their forests at such a rate that they would sooner or later have the raw materials to make their own pulp and paper.

In parts of South Africa where the rate of growth is five times that of the B.C. coastal area new forestration of between 2,500,000 and 30,000,000 acres would eventually give an annual growth of more than British Columbia's annual cut of 6,000,000,000 board feet.

Already South Africa is producing at the rate of 2,500,000 cords a year and Mr. Bentley says it will not be long before South Africa will reduce and then cut off completely its imports of B.C. timber.

In New Zealand which like South Africa has a growth rate of five time that of B.C. plantings of pine forests started 20 to 30 years ago already these are producing enough to keep two pulp and paper mills going as well as to allow for the export of lumber to Australia.

Britain is also beginning to reap the rewards of its forest regeneration schemes and a new groundwood pulpmill is to be built in the north. It will be fed entirely by local wood thinnings.

Mr. Bentley points out that both fir and spruce grow better in western Britain than they do in B.C.

One of Britain's biggest newsprint firms with sales all over the world has chosen British sites for two new mills.

Competition to British Columbia is also coming from the southern United States. Abitibi, one of Canada's largest pulp and paper firms has built a mill in the south to use local southern pine and Bowater's have taken a similar step in Tennessee.

Adding up all these new factors Mr. Bentley has told the Sloan Commission that the B.C. forest firms are going to be faced with tougher competition as time goes on.

"This can only be met by reducing costs," he said.

He forecasts this will be difficult for British Columbia is awkwardly situated from the transport angle for some of its best markets and has higher original and regeneration costs and a more expensive wage system than most of its potential rivals of the future.

Outside Competition

The danger of outside competition has also been noted by other B.C. industrialists. Directors of Powell River at the last annual meeting referred to the low cost potential of firms operating in southern United States.

ONLY MINORITY SOLD

Although the New York stock exchange sold 7,720,000 shares on Black Monday, when the value of shares declined at the biggest rate since 1929, the number of shares represented only 2 per cent of the total shares listed on the exchange.

One New York broker summed up the situation by saying "It was rather conclusive evidence that not everyone joined in the frightening rush to sell when 98.8 per cent of the stock continued at the close of Monday's session to be held by the people who had owned it at the opening.

PAYING ITS WAY

Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. spent $150,618 on exploration and development of its Cowichan lake property in the year ending May 31 but the net cost was reduced through sale of $116,165 of development ore. Policy is to pay for cost of the development program through sale of development ore and so conserve capital according to O. G. MacDonald, president. A further 1,000 tons of ore was shipped to Tacoma Smelter in September and this is expected to net the company $30,000. A similar shipment is planned for mid-October.

Development length on the main orebody on 1,290 and 1,200 feet elevations is now 600 feet, says Mr. MacDonald.

CNR DOES BETTER

Canadian National Railways had net revenue of $6,499,000 in August, an increase of $5,949,000 from August 1954. Operating expenses were about steady while revenue rose $6,331,000.

For the first eight months of 1955 CNR net revenue totals $48,570,000, compared with $6,217,000 in the corresponding period of 1954.

MORE BEER SOLD

Canadian Breweries reports that it has earned $6,701,192 or $2.39 a share in the nine months ending July 31, up from $2.06 a share a year ago.

In the quarter ending July 31 sales were a record $66,645,479 with earnings $3,619,719 (or $1.28 a share).

In the same quarter of 1954 sales were $45,752,344 with net profit $2,585,459 or $1.01 a share.

MILL TO REOPEN

Increase in the price for lead and zinc is to bring about the reopening of the Silverton mill of Slocan Van Roi Mines Ltd. Present prices warrant resumption of mining and milling according to G. W. West, company manager. The mill was closed in 1952 when metal prices slumped.

Huge but Under Control

This huge cloud of smoke comes from what is believed the largest controlled underground explosion in Canadian mining history. Ten freight cars of explosives were used in this blast at the Helen mine near Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to break up iron ore. Sections of rock flew 600 feet into the air and the smoke drifted about a mile.—(CP Photo)

BEST BET—Pebble Ling SLEEPER—Sea Lad

Sal and Sam At Sandown

Favored Spec So, carrying $4 of Sam's money, took command in the stretch to win handily. He paid $4.20 to win.

Easter Coot, the public's choice and carrying Sal's money in the second race, was never in contention in a surprise event which saw an outsider, High Justice, charge down the final quarter to take over from the favorites.

Leading jockey Sivewright will be carrying Sam's money Monday in the first race on Pebble Ling. The bet will be $2 to win.

Sal intends going back to place $2 again on All Brick. Last time out All Brick failed because he ran wide on the final turn. At six furlongs he should be a good bet in the third race.

As things now stand:
Sal Bankroll $10.90
Sam Bankroll $18.10

Each started with a capital of $20.

Handicapper's Selections

1—Pebble Ling, Jnact, First Tenor.
2—Rent Collector, Lucky Touch, Sunday Painter.
3—Gold Seal, Green Leaves, All Brick.
4—Eastern Epic, Leaka, Two Dance.
5—Ardent Hope, Dancer Bich, Silent Warrior.
6—Supreme Leader, Winged Zephyr, Ladworth.

Soldier Who Kicked Sailor in Face Pleads Guilty, Awaits Sentence

A soldier who pleaded guilty in city police court yesterday to a charge of assault was remanded in custody to Wednesday for sentence.

The victim was reported in fair condition yesterday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Court was told that McKay struck the sailor and knocked him down, then kicked him in the face.

Edward Peskett, HMCS Naden, was fined $25 or five days in jail and ordered to pay $40 for repairs when he pleaded guilty in police court to breaking a plastic window in a seaplane moored in the Inner harbor yesterday.

A fine of $250 or 15 days in jail and a licence suspension was imposed on Lenas Thomas, 1012 North Park, when he pleaded guilty in city police court yesterday to a charge of impaired driving.

Police said Thomas was arrested after he was involved in a head-on collision on Douglas Friday night. He was reported to have been driving on the wrong side of the street at the time.

Damage to the cars was $300 each.

Anderson Jack, Brentwood bay, was fined a total of $35 and $7 costs in Colwood provincial police court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to charges of driving without a licence and being in possession of an intoxicant while off an Indian reserve.

A charge of impaired driving resulted in a fine of $250 or 15 days in jail for Kenneth James Polmear, 3072 Doncaster, in Saanich police court.

Police said he was slumped over the front seat with the engine running and the head lights turned on early yesterday morning. The car was stopped in the centre of Clover[illegible] drive.

ANNOUNCEMENT — ALUMINUM COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED — SEPTEMBER 27, 1955

The Aluminum Company of Canada, Limited, announced today that land will be available in 1956 for construction of some 600 permanent housing units by individuals and builders interested in building reasonably priced houses at Kitimat. The sites will be in Areas C-I and B-I, which are currently being cleared and will be serviced early in 1956. Lots will be available for row and apartment houses as well as single and semi-detached housing units. Prices will range from a low of $500 per unit for apartment sites to a high of $1,200 per unit for single houses.

Individuals wishing to build a house for their own occupancy should submit applications to the Property Department, Kitimat, at an early date.

Builders wishing to build housing units for sale or for rent should submit applications to the Manager, Kitimat Real Estate Development, Vancouver, before 12.00 noon, November 15th, 1955. Such applications must be accompanied by plans (scale ⅛"=1' or ¼"=1') and outline specifications of the various types of housing units contemplated; typical site layouts showing street arrangements at a scale of 1"=50.0', and confirmation by a lending institution or bank of availability of National Housing Act Home Owner or Defense Worker loans, together with amount of the lending value and loan approved for each unit. End sale prices of housing units should not exceed 120% of the lending value or $14,000, whichever is the lesser. Rentals should not exceed $80.00 for an unserviced two-bedroom unit. Plans and specifications for housing must conform to both the C.M.H.C. minimum standards and the regulations and by-laws of the Corporation of the District of Kitimat.

Builders' proposals will be limited to fifty units of each type and not more than one-quarter of any project may be of the same type. Consideration will be given only to units designed for local conditions and will favour units that incorporate amenities such as covered play spaces, carports, garages, adequate inside and outside storage, etc. and layouts that take full advantage of their orientation and relationship to the parkways.

Further details may be obtained by writing to or calling at the Kitimat Real Estate Development Office, 654 Burrard Street, Vancouver, B.C.

NOW—

The "PLAYMATE"—A radio companion for every room... and only $24.95*

We put it up to our engineers. To make Marconi a still finer TV—an even better buy—in 1956. Here's the result! To a chassis already highly respected by customers and competitors alike were added the results of seasonal radio development from Marconi's electronic research lab, the largest of its kind in Canada. These advanced refinements have been incorporated in the new 1956 series.

- A new development in sound reproduction to give improved fidelity to even the lowest priced sets.
- An extra dependable circuit that virtually eliminates interference.
- A new signal monitor—the control that enables you to adjust your set to precise signal strength from every available channel.
- All the other top performance features remain in the new Marconi TV. The [illegible] gain, [illegible] tuner, removable [illegible] control, [illegible] automatic focus.

Tax on Meals Should Go, City Restaurateurs Agree

Sales tax on meals should be abolished, city restaurant operators interviewed by The Daily Colonist agreed yesterday. [illegible]

"The tax slows up service considerably and is a terrible nuisance," Mrs. Lydia Arsens, a Victoria MLA and operator of the Majorette Cafe, said. [illegible]

"Now if a person purchases a meal that costs $1.02 he has to pay five cents tax," he explained. "It would be better if a person paid tax only on the amount over $1. For instance a $2 meal would be taxed five cents." [illegible]

'Butter Fingers'

BY ZOA SHERBURNE

GINNY always figured that if once . . . just once in her whole life she could excel Caroline at something she would die happy.

If she could have hated Caroline it might not have been so bad, but Caroline besides being Bill's cousin, was Ginny's very best friend. A [illegible] girl who had the irritating habit of doing all things spectacularly well.

She bowled in the [illegible] bracket and golfed a neat seventy-four. She was an excellent cook and housekeeper and a beautiful swimmer. She [illegible] charming [illegible] that brought her a flattering amount of [illegible] recognition and she held down an advertising job that was both lucrative and glamorous.

"The good fairies [illegible] en masse the day that babe was christened," Bill loved to declare. "She's got everything Caroline has . . ."

Ginny Allison was forced to agree.

The Tuckers and the Allisons were practically inseparable . . . and if the other three suspected anything of Ginny's feeling about her husband's attractive cousin they [illegible]. "Butter Fingers" they called her with tolerant amusement. And it was so apt that Ginny [illegible] every time she heard it.

Ginny was the [illegible] bus and spilled [illegible] all over the other [illegible] hair to bring out [illegible] turned a vivid [illegible] clipped almost to her [illegible] herself in public.

"The only thing I [illegible] my life was to marry you," [illegible] one night.

When Dave got his promotion and the young Tuckers announced that they would be moving West, Ginny's natural sorrow at losing them was tinged with unmistakable elation. Of course she'd miss Caroline . . . but think of not having the super plus perfect example under her nose at all times.

While they were getting ready to sell the place Dave brought [illegible] the tomato plants to set out [illegible].

"It might [illegible] the side of the place," he told Ginny and Bill.

"Want us to help put them out?" Bill offered.

"None [illegible] Caroline [illegible] have better luck with them." He looked [illegible] the small green plants and then up at Ginny. "Here Ginny . . . [illegible] some of these and try your luck with them."

Ginny [illegible] refuse but Dave [illegible].

It seems [illegible] she [illegible] turned to her radio the next morning someone was talking about tomatoes.

"The trouble with most people," the man confided, "is that they baby their plants to death. Always [illegible] off bugs and [illegible] there. Let your plants alone [illegible] and then treat them to a [illegible] of VEG-O-GROW every few days . . . [illegible] you'll have more tomatoes than you know what to do with."

Ginny [illegible] . . . [illegible] VEG-O-GROW [illegible] he was in [illegible].

Bill looked [illegible] "What for? [illegible]?"

It's some [illegible] of plant powder [illegible] seriously. "For my tomato plants. The man says it's a pinkish-grey powder [illegible] guaranteed not to hurt your hands or [illegible]."

Bill smiled as he retired behind his newspaper.

"O.K. [illegible]," he promised. "I'll get you some of the junk. I'm sorry to [illegible] your [illegible] in your plants though . . ."

Ginny could hardly wait for the time to start the VEG-O-GROW treatments. When the oracle on the radio mentioned that the time was ripe Ginny called Bill at his office. "Bill, I'll bet you [illegible] my VEG-O-GROW," she greeted him.

She had to repeat it four times before he knew what she meant . . . then he laughed easily.

"Oh sure . . . I got a package. It's down on my work bench you can't miss it. But listen, angel . . . be careful of that pail on the end of the bench . . . my brushes are soaking in it."

Butter fingers again! Well just wait until he saw her tomato plants.

She found the sack with the pink powder and fed it carefully around her precious plants. Then she soaked the ground the way the man on the radio had suggested.

They were all so busy the next [illegible] of weeks that no one took any notice of Ginny's tomatoes. Caroline and Dave were showing the new owners around the place one evening and stopped to introduce them to Ginny and Bill.

The new man whose name was [illegible] called over the fence to Ginny. "I've been admiring your tomato plants, Mrs. Allison. They really are beauties . . . [illegible] be an expensive [illegible]."

There was a stunned little silence while Caroline and Dave and Bill looked from Ginny's plants to Caroline's and then back to Ginny's again.

They came out of the same setting that ours [illegible] Caroline said in a puzzled tone. "What did you do to yours, Ginny?"

"Oh, I've been studying up on tomatoes," Ginny [illegible]. "They're [illegible] interesting . . ."

Bill was regarding her [illegible]. "That's right . . . you had me get some of that plant junk. How come you never used it?"

Ginny shrugged. "I did use it. VEG-O-GROW," she told Caroline. "It's supposed to be wonderful for tomatoes . . ."

Caroline nodded respectfully. "I'll try it if I ever have a garden again . . ."

Ginny's heart was light as she followed Bill back into the house. Once . . . just once she had bested Caroline.

Bill was looking at her in a frankly puzzled way. "What was the idea of telling Caroline you used that junk on your tomatoes?"

"I did use it, silly. I've been using it for weeks."

Bill swallowed. "You're sure?"

"Of course I'm sure . . ."

He took her by the arm and led her down the stairs and over to his work bench. "Now show me [illegible]."

Ginny sighed in exasperation, opened the familiar paper sack and let some of the pink powder sift through her fingers. "Here . . . this is the stuff."

Bill was [illegible] smaller paper bag at arm's length and his smile was completely [illegible].

"This is your VEG-O-GROW, Butter Fingers. I don't know how you managed it but you seem to be growing the neighborhood's prize tomatoes with pink kalsomine!"

Neighbors and inseparable pals . . . the relationship between Caroline and Ginny would have been ideal—if only Caroline hadn't been so perfect!

This Week's Profile

By G. E. Mortimore

ALFRED CARMICHAEL, veteran promoter and real estate man, has lived much of his life in [illegible] and high endeavor.

He had a [illegible] of British Columbia and [illegible] he saw wealth [illegible] always interfered. War [illegible] economic slump that knocked [illegible] and values.

He and associates [illegible] of Island land [illegible] acre to the Franco-C[illegible] had to accept part [illegible] shares. Then the [illegible] sponsored that swank Oak Bay [illegible] folded and had [illegible] by the Franco-Canadian [illegible] money. The shares [illegible] lost.

RANCH IN MEXICO

Mr. Carmichael had an interest in a 3,000-acre ranch in Mexico [illegible] and his partners were going [illegible] tomatoes for the Canadian market. [illegible] revolution broke out in Mexico. It became impossible to work the ranch. At [illegible] time there was a recession in Canada. They had to forfeit the place for [illegible] owing.

His Oak Bay Lands Ltd. [illegible] formed in partnership [illegible] bought 400 Oak Bay [illegible] for $63,000 in 1926. They sold $2[illegible] by auction from [illegible] of Oak Bay Avenue [illegible] as part of the purchase [illegible].

Then came the [illegible]. The lots lost their value. Oak Bay municipality was taking possession of [illegible] and selling them [illegible] places. The company [illegible] go for taxes and the balance [illegible].

He and his associates [illegible] a large stretch of land [illegible]. But this was before the [illegible] and the hoped-for [illegible] not come until many years after. Meanwhile, they let the land go.

"FINE, EXCITING TIME"

None of these setbacks caused great distress to Mr. Carmichael or any of the brave, buoyant souls who ventured with him.

"We were all going to be [illegible] that was what we all [illegible]."

He never became [illegible] but he attained reasonable prosperity. "I've had a fine, exciting time [illegible] money and losing it," he says.

"If you don't risk anything you never amount to anything. You have to take chances. And [illegible] even though you may [illegible]."

The desire to make money was only one of his motives [illegible] the most important one, he says. [illegible] it was the desire to build [illegible] something and the drive [illegible] game of wits [illegible] business world.

VARIED CAREER

A self-taught surveyor, he helped lay out the townsites of Port [illegible], staked the power [illegible] on behalf of a syndicate, mined gold in northern B.C. for eight years; learned to speak Chinook, the Indian trade language, wrote and had published a book of Indian legends, and dealt in real estate for more than 40 years.

In the depression he joined the C.C.F. [illegible] believing that the Regina manifesto [illegible] a better solution for the economic problems of Canada than the platform of Liberal or Conservative parties.

He isn't so sure now that [illegible] capable of managing nationalized business. At that time, however, he saw distress and widespread unemployment and reasoned that there must be something wrong with a system that produced such conditions.

WILLING TO HELP

He took some jibes because of his political beliefs, unorthodox as they were among businessmen.

But businessmen showed themselves willing to help the jobless in practical ways. Mr. Carmichael was commissioned by P. H. B. Ker, Chamber of Commerce president, to lead a campaign to persuade firms and organizations to clean up, repair and launch any kind of project that would make jobs. Some $100,000 worth of work was carried out as a result.

He doesn't belong to any religious denomination. "Truth is progressive and can not be crystallized in a creed," he says.

Three years ago he retired because of a heart condition, leaving the real estate business of Alfred Carmichael and Co. in the hands of his only surviving son, David. His eldest son Brian was lost while flying anti-submarine patrols in the Mediterranean during the 1939-45 war, and his daughter was drowned in a yachting accident off Orcas Island three years ago last May. Mrs. Carmichael died two years ago last April.

STILL DRIVES

He is a short, cheerful gentleman with grey hair. Now aged 81, he drives his car regularly, but he had to give up his big house on St. Ann Street because he could no longer maintain the garden and didn't want it to fall into neglect. He walks with a cane because of arthritis of the hip.

A year ago he took a correspondence course in newspaper writing and now is busy with his portable typewriter, producing articles from his rich store of experiences, which are recorded in note and diary form and neatly filed.

He was born in Belfast, the son of a flour mill owner, and educated at Royal Academical Institution, Belfast, Lymm Grammar School, Cheshire, and Manchester Technical School.

At the age of 16, some time after his father's death, he came to Canada to "make his fortune" and return to Britain, which was the object of many adventurous young men.

RIVET HEATER

He reached Victoria in October, 1890, and found the city suffering from depression. His cousin Herbert Carmichael had come here ahead of him, and his brother Norman followed later.

He tried for a job in the machine shop of Albion Iron Works but found that 40 boys had applied ahead of him. So he got a job in the boiler shop as a rivet heater at 10 cents an hour.

The following year he got a job with the Aberdeen salmon cannery on the Skeena River, bossing klootchmen filling salmon cans. Then in September, 1892, he went to work for Robert Woods, the contractor for the building of the first paper mill in B.C. on the Somass River, Alberni.

He worked for the paper mill company, which his cousin organized. The mill had a serious fault. Standing in the middle of great forests, it lacked the machinery to make paper from wood pulp. Such machinery was expensive and it was hard to raise capital.

PAPER SAMPLES

So the mill made paper from such materials as rags and old rope. Among Alfred Carmichael's souvenirs are several samples of excellent paper made under direction of William Hewartson, the Yorkshire papermaker who had charge of the technical side.

No Matter for What the Customer Begs, All He'll Be Given Is Bacon and Eggs

WHEN you walk into "The Hovel" in Shepperton, Middlesex, not very far from the film studios, a sign greets you.

"The Hovel," it announces, "is undoubtedly the best place in the world for the worst food."

Its specialty is "Nettor" coffee. "If you don't know what it means" says the crazy proprietors "just turn it around. It tastes just as bad either way."

If you do complain, then Tom Leonard ("call me Len") will be only too glad to bring you his ever-growing complaints book. The bigger your insult about the service, the staff or the surroundings, the better he will be pleased.

There are some very famous names in that complaints book. Celebrities flock to "The Hovel" because it is different, and when they come the rest of the world naturally follows. Danny Kaye has been often. Ginger Rogers and her young French husband were regular visitors when they were making a film in these parts.

So were Jimmy Edwards, Shelly Winters, Gene Tierney and Paul Douglas and his wife Jan Sterling.

SPECIAL DISH

Dana Andrews, reacting to the wacky atmosphere, always sat in a corner eating pickled onions and nothing else out of a seven-pound jar reserved especially for him.

The food really is well different. Once Jean Simmons, the film actress, asked for a menu, and Len handed her a huge affair belonging to some restaurant in faraway Hong Kong. Miss Simmons was not amused.

When you order a meal, Len explains that you have a choice of five different menus. To illustrate what he alleges is available, he has a sign which lights up near the kitchen when a button is pressed on the floor. The guest makes an order, sits back to wait for it, and what ever his choice, gets but one dish: bacon and eggs.

DANA ANDREWS
. . . he went along with the gag.

FREE SOUP

Through the winter months he has a cauldron of soup from which visitors are allowed to help themselves free of charge. Few do after they have read the sign which announces: "This soup is so bad it's unsaleable."

If someone is brave enough to ask for cheese Len produces his Garibaldi special which is reputed to be 100 years old. The waitress serves it while wearing a gas mask and everybody laughs loud and long as she does so.

Skeletons placed at strategic points around the room do a lot to intimidate the customers. The Japanese clock is different from most clocks: it runs backwards. "Anyway," says Len, "who wants to know the time in this lousy joint?"

POPULAR MUSIC

For orchestra there is a music box which plays "Auld Lang Syne." Most people like this tune, but not at "The Hovel." The music box plays it for an hour and a half over and over again. Once it is started it cannot be stopped.

Meals—if they can be called that—are served in "The Cobweb Room."

"Most swank places have an Grenid Room or a Lotus Room," Len explains. "All we've got is cobwebs."

Into this room he has imported trees and built tables round them. For those who like to eat their meals standing up there is a convenient mantel piece. On the wall is a stuffed moose head with bullocks' horns which Len swears he shot himself long ago, but he will not say where.

All this started 17 years ago and has paid dividends. For years Len sailed around the world with the Norwegian merchant navy and collected many curios. He eventually decided to settle down with his wife Gladys who, with their five year-old daughter as assistant chef, does all the cooking.

JEAN SIMMONS
. . . she was not amused by menu.

One of his curios is a full size skeleton. "My first customer," he explains to clients. "He died of starvation. You too can do the same if you eat long enough in here."

"The Hovel" has been successful since it first opened. "It's made money, of course," says Len, who, under the practical joking exterior is a first-class business man. "If it didn't, I should play it 'straight'."

But it seems that customers from all over the world will not let him. They come back regularly, knowns and unknowns of every nationality to go without food, to endure bad meals and many insults.

"They love it," he explains. "Everybody loves a gag."

REAL SEND-OFF

He pointed to the visiting cards and the paper money he has pinned all over the walls among the cobwebs in the room of that name. "They love it—even if they have to survive the ordeal of my Special Send-Off."

The sendoff really is something to endure. New customers do not know it but as they edge out through the Z-shaped door, a hidden microphone picks up every word they say. Then comes the final insult. A loudspeaker crackles in the customers' ears. The endearing farewell message is: Remember, friends, the food in this joint is not half as bad as the people now leaving."

Underwater Art

Gulf Island Dance Retains Flavor of Pioneer Days

By FRED FORD

TO attend a dance on any of the Gulf Islands of British Columbia is an experience of joy or pain, according to one's sensibilities, but most certainly an experience of interest.

The flavor of the old-time pioneer dance, when those who participated had to come for miles by slow ox-cart or pack horse, is maintained. It was not just a few hours of dancing and then a quick dispersal . . . oh dear no . . . the dance continued until dawn.

Today it is just as difficult to attend. A dance is rarely successful unless supported by many of the surrounding islanders. This, of course means water transportation. Small boats take the place of the oxen or packhorse.

We attended a dance on Galiano Island recently. It was very well attended by residents of Mayne, Salt Spring, North and South Pender, Gossip and even Saturna Island. It was, indeed, a wingding!

We were cruising in the Islands in our 18-footer and tied up at Galiano wharf that night. As soon as night fell the dancers began to arrive. Whopping great deckloads on fishpackers, gillnetters, on all manner of craft. The ladies wore their semi-finery . . . after all, one does not travel well on an open deck in a backless evening gown. The men, washed and polished, each clutched a parcel of varying size. All were in excellent spirits (after all, it was a bit of an excursion, the holiday spirit prevailed). We did our bit in moving out and letting the heavier boats bearing the guests tie up at the wharf. We tied on the outside of the larger vessels. The school bus made regular trips to the wharf and all were carried to the dance, which was held in the Community Hall.

We went along . . . riding crazily in the back of a truck, singing like a banshee with others from Mayne Island.

The moon shone brilliantly and the warm summer air was intoxicating as wine . . . as was the content of the parcels. The summer was with us . . . the evening afforded a respite from the toil of the season. Life was pleasant. Yippee! Sing my bucko, tomorrow is another day!

Once in the hall the music took over. Each dance saw the floor crowded with a sweltering, happy, motley crowd. Retired college dons jostled with the high-lead logger and gentle ladies danced with hulking fishermen, heavy with muscle and proud of their prowess with axe or nets. Round and round, with radiants and tantillies, smiling, chatting gay and glad, the dancers danced.

At midnight a halt was called and vast quantities of hot dogs, buns and coffee were produced. The various "draws" were held . . . door prizes awarded and raffles disposed of. After more dancing the great dispersal took place. By this time we were safely aboard the Elf in our bunks not sleeping mark you but waiting.

First to arrive was a lone fisherman. The car drove to the end of the dock. Unsteady feet tottered down the gangway. "Goodnights" were called and the feet crossed the floating wharf, then came the splash. No outcry, just a bit of splashing as our wet hero clambered

A few muttered curses, as the cold water brought acute sense to the slightly benumbed brain and the dancer retired to his fishboat.

A few minutes later the larger party from Mayne Island hove to on the wharf gay as skylarks, seemingly as fresh as daisies. The latter was terrific. Each party was still fully equipped with "parcel" as they trooped aboard.

It was pitch black . . . the swirling waters of Active Pass ran swiftly in the inky night. Yet the intrepid boatman, with a full deckload of happy revelers, gaily cast off and headed into the darkness.

The engine accelerated at full speed and gradually the noise of the cheery banter of the dancers faded in the distance.

One by one and in groups the dancers continued to return. With little incident they clambered aboard their "water taxis" and sped into the night. We resumed our place at the wharfside and fell into slumber. It had been a great night . . . perhaps the last or most of old-time hospitality as known by our forebears . . . another dance was ended on one of the Gulf Islands.

UNHOLIER THAN THOU?

An Irish priest in England has gone on strike because his parishioners refuse to consider themselves sinners, as he thinks they are. The gospel is written for sinners, the padre says, and since most of the members of my congregation consider themselves not to be sinners, it is meaningless for me to preach the word of God to them any longer.

Old Homes and Families

Richard Brodrick Was Quiet Man But He Led Exciting Life

By JAMES K. NESBITT

RICHARD BRODRICK was a quiet enough man, and yet he was always getting himself mixed up in some kind of excitement.

Well, he said, it kept life from being dull; he couldn't explain why it was always happening to him—just fate, he said.

One of these days his friends told him he'd find himself in a mix-up that would end disastrously.

Richard Brodrick was a substantial citizen of early day Victoria. His name too was a household word for he owned Brodrick's Wharf, where sleep sea ships docked and at the wharf every few days crowds gathered to cheer departing ships or to wave farewells to outgoing crews.

Brodrick while no seafarer dearly loved the sea and ships. He needs must be at every ship arrival and departure through "twould save him pelter for his business and he stayed in his office. But the excitement of ship days always fascinated him, and there were so many times when he caused excitement himself.

NARROW ESCAPE

There was this in the Colonist in June of 1890: "Narrow escape. Yesterday afternoon as the steamer Pacific was about leaving Esquimalt for San Francisco Mr. Richard Brodrick, who was in the ferry boat had a narrow escape from drowning. The steamer had occasion to back water, in doing which her wheels came very close to the boat and Mr. B. jumped out to escape being crushed in case she was sunk. After swimming for a short distance a man from the steamer jumped over to assist him, but Mr. Brodrick managed to reach shore without his help. The boat was not injured."

Brodrick started his business in a modest way. He rented a rickety wharf on the waterfront and bought 50 sacks of coal and sold them. One day, he told his friends, he'd buy a wharf or, better still, build one of his own.

The 1863 Victoria directory listed: "Brodrick, R., wharfinger and coal dealer, Union Wharf, Langley." The 1866 directory says: "Brodrick, Richard feed store and coal dealer, Langley and City wharves, Douglas Street, near Government Street."

SUCH GOINGS ON

A few years later in the spring of 1869 Mr. Brodrick decided to sell the remainder of his business. Excitement [illegible] been such [illegible] Victoria [illegible] Whatever [illegible] tell. Victoria is getting too big. You never know what would happen next! It was awful the goings on day after day and worse night after night.

prompt interference of the neighbors.

It appears that about a quarter of an hour after Richard Brodrick who resides at the corner of Fort and Douglas Streets had retired to rest he was aroused by a loud knocking at his door repeatedly demanding admittance. After rapidly dressing and seizing a whip he went out and was met by an infuriated policeman who passed him rapidly into the house.

"Seeing that the man was either crazy or drunk he called for assistance when a young man of the name of Macpherson came out of his room and was fiercely attacked with the man's baton."

"FEARED MURDER"

Now, during all this Mrs. Brodrick and a friend were having a quiet talk, about those matters ladies talk about when husbands are absent. Poor Mrs. Brodrick and her friend must have trembled as the house shook but they remained behind their closed door until the fellow took hold of the two ladies who were conversing in the sitting room and so alarmed them that they feared murder would be committed.

"At length the man was overcome and conveyed to the station house. He was evidently under the influence of a mania that two pistol shots had been fired at him for which there appeared no foundation."

It was days before the excitement died down. Mr. Brodrick told the story dozens of times, and he said it was a far worse experience than falling into the harbor.

Meanwhile Mr. Brodrick was expanding his business. There were these items in the Colonist: "Water contract. Mr. R. Brodrick has been awarded the contract of supplying Her Majesty's ships at Esquimalt with water. The supply is to be for six months. The water is obtained from Spring Vale."

TOOK IN PARTNER

"Boomed warehouse. Mr. R. Brodrick has [illegible] the lease of the premises [illegible] the [illegible] lease! Reduced [illegible] freight! Water [illegible] Tide. The last goods were landed in bond yesterday."

Brodrick wanted a few years [illegible] San Francisco. And so he engaged a partner, "New firm. Mr. R. Brodrick has admitted Mr. E. J. Norton into the business of the Active Boat Building Company in his business, and the firm will henceforth be known as Brodrick and Norton. Mr. Norton will be absent several years from the Colony. We wish him a pleasant voyage."

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD BRODRICK
. . . he loved excitement and he did well in Victoria

Mr. Brodrick sailed away from Victoria in the Active in the midst of a great storm. A few hours later the whole town heard a report the ship had had to return to port. The Storm was that fierce. This was good news to some citizens who had been robbed and cheated, and were sure the robbers and theatrers had got away on the Active. Now they'd be caught in Esquimalt."

Here's the Colonist's report of the ship's departure: "The Active carried away about 50 passengers, among whom were ex-mayor Wakeford, ex-treasurer Franks, Mr. R. Brodrick and Mr. J. C. Pratt. Mr. Wakefield will go to Australia via Panama, while Mr. Franks goes to England via the Isthmus to lay a statement of supposed grievances before the Derby government."

RUMOR FALSE

"A fresh southwester was blowing when the Active passed out of the harbor, which stiffened into a gale in the afternoon and there was a rumor afloat during the evening that she had returned and ran into Esquimalt harbor for shelter. The rumor proved the most rumors do: false and several victims who had rushed to Esquimalt to arrest certain skedaddlers known to be on board returned late at night wet and disappointed."

Mr. Brodrick came back to Victoria two years later. Soon he was back into his business and once more expanding. He [illegible] a valued citizen. His partnership with him: "Mr. F. Garrett, agent Wells, Fargo and Company, has relinquished a portion of his partnership with Mr. R. Brodrick in the business carried on by the latter for some years on the Coast and city wharves, as [illegible] and steam [illegible]."

[illegible] Brodrick [illegible] wharf [illegible] valuable piece of [illegible] property [illegible] Mr. R. Brodrick. It will serve [illegible] accommodation of such steamships and ships [illegible] greatly [illegible] of their entering Victoria harbor."

ROARING BUSINESS

Business went in Esquimalt dull during the business [illegible] some years. Many noted vessels [illegible] Victoria [illegible] the business of forwarder in Victoria and certainly in that city [illegible] buggy over the wooded trail that connected Victoria and Esquimalt.

The end of this famous wharf came in 1874. "Gone at last! The old wharf at Esquimalt built by Mr. Selleck in 1858 and partly rebuilt afterwards by Mr. Brodrick yielded to the ravages of the marine worm yesterday morning and crashed into the harbor. The noise occasioned by the fall was very loud and alarmed the good people of the pleasant town who imagined that an earthquake was in progress. Many of the piles of the old structure were eaten through and through."

The Brodrick family was prominent in Victoria. There were a daughter and two sons. Mr. Brodrick built a fine home on Menzies Street and there was much entertaining there. And in due course there was a wedding.

DAUGHTER WEDS

It was in September of 1894, as noted in the Colonist: "On Thursday evening at St. James Church Frederick L. Stinson of Seattle was united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Eckhurst to Eleanor, the only daughter of Mr. Richard Brodrick. The ceremony was attended by numerous family friends, the bride being supported by Miss Celia G. Powell. The best man was Mr. H. C. Macaulay. The bride was given away by her respected father and wore a travelling dress. The happy couple afterwards partaking of the wedding supper which was served at the residence of the bride's parents. Leaving for the City of Kingston for an extended honeymoon tour they were attended by the hearty good wishes of many old friends in Victoria."

The impressive and beautiful services were conducted both at the Masonic Temple and at Ross Bay Cemetery by Worshipful Master H. L. Salmon of Victoria Lodge No. 1. The pallbearers were: Messrs. R. Carter, W. Bennett, Capt. Henry Smith, Capt. McCulloch, W. H. Petty and R. Chipchase.

STAMP PACKET

By R. M. ANGUS

ON October 17, 1955, Australia will issue a centenary stamp in honor of the first of Australian stamp issued in 1855, and from the design it will be seen, it is a repeat of the first stamp issued by that country in 1855. It even retains the Victoria's head instead of replacing it with Queen Elizabeth's. New Zealand has issued a stamp in the case of her new 2d value which, otherwise is an exact replica of the original stamp.

The only difference the South Australian has made is to include the words "First Stamp of South Australia" in block letters which detract from the general effect. The New Zealand is printed in a bright carmine and is very effective. The other two values could be improved by deeper pigmentation.

RING LARDNER'S CLASSIC HUMOR

How to Attain the Perfect Figure

By RING LARDNER

TO THE EDITOR: Pretty near every place you go now days, where they's a mixed gathering, the people that ain't talking about Mrs. Harding's coat is disgusting their diet and how to get fat or thin, especially the last-named, and whenever you walk in anywheres where the hostess don't expect no Co. you generally always fipd a book on the liveing rm. table on how to get skinny and etc. so it seems like this is the most important problem of the day outside the Yap situation and the women folks is all spending hundreds of dollars on books that will learn them how to not look so much like a group.

Well the trouble with spending money on these kind of books is that the party that buys them ain't sure that the party that wrote them is quoit fast to know what they are talking about. For inst. the author of "Diet and Grow Skinny" or "Diet and Longevity" may have a waste line that is 4 laps to the mile for all as we know and if they can't control their own order how can they learn others to do the same?

BEGINS AT HOME

Obesity begins at home like everything else and what I am getting at is that the only people that can learn you how to reduce or build up is people that has did it themselves and is normal and can tell what they done to get that way. Like for inst. you wouldn't go to Rene Rum for beauty hints no more than you would ask Lillian Rush which check to pack your to bacco in as a left hander.

Well friends I don't like to brag but it looks like they wasn't nobody better fitted to give advice on the fat and lean quest. than I. I am overweight and if I can be of any assistance to my friends that is worried about their weight why I will over look my personal dislike in regards to barging outside of my pleasure life and spoil for my self on the after of pro bono publico.

Just they be any doubts as to my qualifications along these lines, why here is the figures by which a person finds out how much they ought to weigh according to their hatta. Multiply the number of inches you are over 5 ft. tall by 5½ and then add that to 110. Well friends I am 13½ inches over 5 ft. tall and multiply 13½ by 5½ and you get 74¼ and when you add that onto 110 it makes 184¼ avordupois which is exactly where I tip the old beam. In other wds my weight is ideal like pretty near everything else.

"How does the boy do it?" you ask.

Well friends, I am going to lay all my cards on the table and tell you the system I generally always follow in regards to diet and exercise and if my fat and skinny friends will also try and follow out a similar program I don't see no reason why they shouldn't also get to be perfect.

First we will take eating. I generally always eat in a room where there's a riot. I try and get to meals on time as I prefer my own napkin. I always set in a straight back chair and face east. I never talk at meals as when I talk I like to be heard. I never accept no invitations to meals at nobody else's house unlest I all ready been there and know that mine host is a good provider.

Now as regards to exercise. I never let nobody feed me and I always dress and undress my self. I always shave standing up. Shaving 3 or 4 times per wk is enough to keep the owls supple, but if I find I am a couple oz. overweigh I shave every day and reduce the flesh on the neck. In brushing the hair I can also generally manage to lose a little.

QUICKENS EYE

When the door bell rings I always walk not run to the nearest exit.

In the morning I always snatch the paper to quicken the eye. I hold it myself and turn the pages myself. When I see that my thumbs is getting too fat I roll my own cigarettes and I always smoke a plenty of them as they's no exercise that brings more muscles into play than coughing and tossing in bed.

I stay on the water wagon as I find that this takes a whole lot of weigth off of the hips.

As a rule my weigth don't decline very much out when I feel like I am too light I lay off the typewriter a few days and add on a couple finger nails.

I always wash my hands before retireing and my face when nessary, though one of my friends says it is silly to wash your face when you go to bed as they won't nobody be likely to see if its dirty or clean and its just as foolish to wash it when you get up because you ain't been nowheres to get it soiled. But I do it 2 or 3 times per wk anyway to reduce the soap.

Bathing as exercise depends on what kind of a tub you got. The madam picked mine out and bought it by the front ft. and I guess we must of been pretty near broke at the time. Any way when I have took a bath I generally always feel like challenging Houdini.

IT DEPENDS

I go to bed pretty near every night 10 or 10½ o'clock but once in a while somebody comes in to play cards and I take setting up exercises. I generally manage to lose a little this way.

But if a person really wants to know their diet I don't know of no better system than to buy a set of Lodge up & Go. In a short while you would be able to do some of you do the grocery work yourself. But as for golf itself making a person fat or thin it depends on who you are playing with. Most of the birds I play with is so rapped up on their own game that I can generally take off a couple of strokes.

Personally it seems kind of funny to me why they should be so many people worrying these days about getting stout when they can't nobody only a' and grow fat" and the combina- white wings or a bell hop afford tion of income tag and tele- to eat anything but roots and phone service is too much for herbs. They must be something us.

besides food that makes peopl Great Neck.

bulge out. Maybe there's some RING LARDNER."

truth in the old saying "Laugh

Statue Carried to Alpine Peak

Alpine troops recently assembled a statue of Christ in bronze atop the Bahnenhorn Mountain, in the Val D'Aosta area. To achieve this feat, the troops had to carry parts of the statue up about 14,000 feet on their backs, as shown at right. After the statue had been assembled, left, the troops gathered around it. It is believed to be one of the highest-placed statues in the world.

Amazing 'Mr. Jackson' Builds Little Businesses

Milner, at the ripe age of 38, is known around town as "Mr. Jackson," because of his record of branching into nearly a score of small businesses and putting them on a big scale in 17 years.

In 1938, Milner ventured into an oil company distributorship. Since then he has concentrated or investing in small businesses and making them successful.

"Small business is the salvation of the American free enterprise system," said Milner in an interview. "But in spite of the fact that it has made such a great contribution to our economy, it is still being pushed around."

The answer, Milner declares is for small businesses to organize so that they can benefit mutually by receiving the best advice in every field.

Milner, who has been called Mississippi's leading business man and has won several awards as the state's leading "young man," makes his business presence felt at the airport, where the limousine service is one of his enterprises. So is Jackson's leading hotel.

When visitors accumulate soiled shirts the garments will be washed with a detergent, starched and bleached with products manufactured by Milner. The visitor's business appointments are likely to be in Jackson's newest and largest office structure the Milner building.

For business men in the export line, the firm they deal with in all probability is a Milner outfit.

Should the visitor be in the market for a car, Milner is the largest General Motors dealer in the U.S.

Will you need financing? Milner is a director of one of the town's largest banks.

The chances are very good that a driver will be using a Milner-owned parking lot. Should he want to house his car for a longer period, Jackson's largest garage is Milner's.

Altogether Milner enterprises gross more than $40,000,000 annually.

PICKLE PHOTOGRAPHER

A famous English photographer, who specializes in pictures of movie actresses, was asked how he manages to do so well. He replied: First of all, I look closely at the actress and, if I don't fall in love with her at once, I refuse to take her picture. Women only pose well when they know the photographer is in love wit them; what they want is admiration, not professional skill.

Useful Goat Misunderstood By Too Many

By A. G. GILMORE

I RECENTLY chucked a so-called "Farmer's Encyclopaedia" into the ash can. Although it had a most impressive binding, I questioned its contents. True it was published many years ago when admittedly people were not as knowledgable but even then the authors should have known better and realized that their statements on goats were malicious misinformation.

They stated that "goats emit at all times a strong and disagreeable odor, named 'hircine' which, however, is not without its uses, for if one of these animals be kept in a stable it is affirmed that it will be an effectual preventive of the staggers, a nervous disorder which is often very fatal to horses."

I am not aware that this bit of pseudo scientific fact has ever been incorporated in the modern veterinary handbook, nor as a goat keeper have I ever been aware of the "strong and disagreeable odor called 'hircine'."

I do know however that should I casually mention that I keep goats, it is a sure-fire conversation stopper and henceforward the acquaintance views me in the same light as the fellow who eats raw eel wrestles gold fish. Undoubtedly this attitude arises out of table manners (spoon soup) or some misinformation I would like to set Editor and disperse your ideas about goats.

"UNKNOWN" ANIMAL

To begin with, probably there is no other domesticated animal so widely distributed yet about which we have so little scientific information. The natural lists tell us there are 10 species of wild goat only one of which, the Rocky Mountain goat, is found outside of Europe and Asia. These species are divided into two groups, goats and Ibex.

The former are divided into two sub-specie, of which one, the Bezoar, or wild goat of Persia, is the progenitor, or forefather, of Capra Hircus, who is the great great grandaddy of all domestic goats everywhere.

When we learn there are 90,000,000 goats in India alone, another 10,000,000 in Turkey and 4,000,000 in such a small country as Greece, we realize what a great-great-grandaddy Capra Hircus must have been.

We could say that goats are numerous in kind and variable in characteristics. Some such as the Angorras of Asia Minor and the Cashmeres of India were distinctive breeds in Abraham's time and certainly today, Cashmere goat hair styled in sweaters and coats lends distinction to M'lady.

Quite aside from goats playing a major role in the world's milk production, they are used as beasts of burden, as a meat supply for clearing brush and, while all too often they are objects of derision in our own backyard, they have some very pronounced economic values.

PRIZED ANGORRAS

The Angorra breed, for instance supplies us with mohair for strength, durability and lustre it has few equals among fibres. Because it takes dies so readily that hold their brilliance, mohair's remarkable durability ensures its use wherever hard wearing fabrics are required.

While Angorras have been catering to matrons and rug rools for centuries, they were first brought to North America in 1849 and today there are approximately Seventy (Yes how I growing a fine fleece as they can up the lard.

Goats do have a predilection for leaves, brushwoods and weeds. They clear out all the underbrush and if left on the land will debark the trees. Natural grasses will spring up in the clear spaces and then sheep and cattle may be pastured.

Most of the goats you see pastured out along the Island's highways, however, have one principal purpose as far as their owners are concerned and that is to supply milk and meat economically.

Food faddists and others have made rather fabulous claims from time to time about goats' milk's healthful properties. The popular conception seems to be, however, when goats' milk is mentioned, that it is a liquid concoction not unlike a mixture of whitewash and skunk cabbage oil, drunk by eccentric or unfortunate invalids as medicine.

Certainly no authority would deny that some goats do have a strong flavored milk. Today's domesticated goat however is capable of giving a gallon a day or more of sweet enjoyable milk and, except that it is generally whiter than cows' milk because of the smaller fat globule and lower carotene content, it is impossible to tell the difference.

SHOWS CHANGES

Theoretically speaking from a nutritional standpoint, it compares very favorably with cows' milk and, at this writing, I have before me a study made of the two milks by the U.S. Department of Agriculture a few years ago.

Because the goat produces more milk per pound of and but it shows up much more quickly the effects of changes in feed and heredity variation in the vitamin potency of its milk winter and summer. Generally speaking, however, it compares equally with Holstein but less than Jersey milk in its vitamin "A" content, which promotes healthy functioning of nasal cavities, eyes and ears, sinuses and the respiratory tracts among other things.

In vitamin "B" content, the anti-neuritic and ber-beri vitamin, it exceeds cows' milk while vitamin "D" the absence of which can lead to rickets, is found in equal amounts. Although no milk is high in vitamin "B2" or riboflavin, which is needed for growth and a healthy nervous system, goats' milk is superior.

Taking all factors into consideration, except that goats' milk generally has a lower butterfat content, it compares equally with cows' milk in its health giving qualities. Some claim that because of its smaller fat globule goats' milk is easier to digest. Careful laboratory tests would suggest that no remarkable change could be made for one milk over the other. Where is patient allergic to cows' milk as sometimes happens or is suffering from some nutritional deficiency in which goats' milk is particularly high, however, goats' milk can be very helpful indeed.

DISEASE-RESISTANT

Although bovine tuberculosis and Bang's disease are relatively unknown on the Island, goats elsewhere to date have shown themselves to be much less subject to these two maladies than cows. Further, they seem much less subject to udder infection or mastitis. With regard to clean milk, udders show that goats' milk usually has a lower bacteria count than cows and that a count of under 2,500 bacteria per cubic centimetre is a good standard for marketable goats' milk. A count of 10,000 bacteria per cc in unpasteurized milk is considered in Victoria as being acceptable.

As a cheap, clean efficient dairy for the person on a small holding, or for the community farmer, the goat wins hands down. Initial capital outlay for the goat, its housing, feeding and pasturage are all a much more economical consideration than for a cow.

A good grade goat will cost from $30 up depending on its milk production and so on. Pedigreed animals will cost a good deal more and some of the world's best are raised on Vancouver Island.

Housing is not a problem, providing you have a place that is dry and draft proof—an area six feet square will comfortably house a pair of goats and leave room for the feed.

Feeding, by the way, is not expensive, and though goats are very fussy eaters—not liking tin cans one bit—they prefer browsing on twigs, shrubs, salal, most weeds and all types of grass. In the barn we feed a complete goat mash procured from a local feed company and number one alfalfa hay which they seem to insist on. During the winter when pasturage was scarce we found it cost us about $3.50 per month for an animal that was milking about a gallon a day.

Besides the milk that can be drunk as is or made into cheese or butter the kids, or chevon as they are called in the meat trade are very tasty and provide a cheap means of filling the locker. Incidentally, goats usually have twins. Kidding once a year, can be bred at a year the gestation period being five months. Further, many goats will milk well for two years without being bred and virgin milkers are not uncommon.

CONSIDERED IDEAL

All in all I consider the goat to be the ideal dairy animal for the small holding. You can feed six goats for the cost of one cow, the initial capital outlay is much less and though you get a quarter as much milk as from "Bossy" they take up much less room and pasturage.

With all these features considered and noting the importance from a feed standpoint that goats have assumed in such heavily-populated countries as India—it is not improbable to speculate that the goat will come more and more into prominence. As more and more marginal lands will have to be brought into production to feed the world's expanding population, goats will become more important as a meat and milk supply.

Big, Aggressive Skuas Occasional B.C. Visitors

By C. J. GUIGUET

SKUAS are large dark gull-like birds which sometimes range northwards to British Columbia from their usual range in the southern hemisphere. In behavior they are like the jaegers, badgering gulls and robbing them of their prey. They also scavenge over the open sea feeding on whatever nature may provide.

On their breeding grounds they are said to be predaceous robbing nests of eggs and young, and taking adult birds and mammals as well. In defence of their young, the skuas have a reputation for fearlessness and aggressiveness attacking viciously any intruder. According to Robert Cushman Murphy in his Oceanic Birds of South America, the skua presents quite a problem to the sheep raisers on the Falkland Islands, where it attacks any dog or man approaching the nest and young, often striking with stunning force.

Along the British Columbia coast skuas have been recorded only seven times, and as far as we can ascertain only four specimen records were secured. Nine specimens have been taken off the Washington coast, and some of these may have been in the vicinity of Vancouver Island. Consequently, on paper, the skua is a rare bird here. In actality, however, it is likely that these birds occur regularly on our pelagic waters during the summer months and that only the lack of observers accounts for the small number of records.

Several subspecies of skua have been described, but in general appearance and behavior they are easily identified.

Generally dark, predaceous appearing in flight with semi-lira-shaped wings rounded at the end and a squarish up-tilted tail. The dark wings are marked with white at the base of the primaries, a feature which shows up at a distance, and which, when coupled with the hawk-like flight immediately identifies the bird. The body color of the two specimens I have taken was simply a dark brown, but considerable variation in color is said to occur even within the same subspecies.

In British Columbia you are most likely to see a skua between the months of June and September and at a considerable distance from the shore. Four of our records came off the Goose Island banks some 20 miles off shore.

On the Atlantic seaboard there is a race of northern skuas which nests in Iceland, Greenland and other northern islands. They remain in northern waters for the large part, some wintering south as far as New York. There are no northern breeding skuas on the Pacific.

Fragile Blonde Star Returns Via TV

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Anita Louise, the fragile blonde star of the 30s and 40s, is staging a "comeback" on television this fall - as co-star to a horse.

The name Anita Louise brings back memories to any moviegoer over 20 of the ever-sweet heroine bobbing along in hoop skirts or romping in Sherwood Forest.

Fans, she says, remember her most for "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Anthony Adverse," "Marie Antoinette" and "The Bandit of Sherwood Forest."

Now Miss Louise, still slender and ingenue-faced at 40, is acting in her first Western. She is one of the stars of the new "My Friend Flicka" series, described as a lassie of the stables, that 20th Century Fox launched on TV this fall.

ANITA LOUISE

STILL GETS MAIL

"I've still received fan mail during the eight years I've been off the screen, because I've done a few TV dramas," she said. "They remember me. But, then, because of my husband I really haven't been out of show business."

Miss Louise retired to raise a family with Buddy Adler, maker of "From Here to Eternity" and one of Hollywood's richest producers. Now her children, five and eight, are in school so she returned to grease-paint.

"Flicka" shapes up as a sure-fire winner on TV. Since the amazing success of "Lassie," many of the stars who are capturing high ratings on the home screens are four-footed and furry.

Besides the horse, "My Friend Flicka" also co-stars Gene Evans as Miss Louise's husband and 11-year-old Johnny Washbrook as their boy.

. . . as older fans will remember her. She has changed very little.

While Miss Louise had her hair fixed on the TV set, I paid a visit to the real star of the show. She (the horse) was tethered in the shade outside the sound stage. The horse extras and stand-ins had to stand in the hot sun, a true example of the Hollywood caste system.

When Flicka tried to eat my notebook, trainer Les Hilton explained he spent two weeks trying to find a reasonable facsimile of the original Flicka that he trained for the Fox movies 12 years ago.

"I found this four-year-old filly and trained her with the boy for six weeks, using hobbles and cut-sticks," he said.

"She'll do anything now—come to the boy, go away from him, get on her knees, lie down and count. She can untie a rope. Her stand-in does the fighting scenes because Flicka works with the boy and must stay gentle. She hasn't made a mistake on the show yet."

Flicka gets a bath every day and rides home to Hilton's San Fernando Valley ranch in a green trailer. The new star eats hay and carrots but is denied sugar in the tradition of movie queen diets.

MAYBE SHOW WILL CONVINCE PHIL'S MOTHER

By MARGARET McMANUS

NEW YORK—On a recent Tuesday night, an elderly lady in Brooklyn sat in the living room of her apartment to watch the debut of a situation comedy on television, "You'll Never Get Rich," starring Phil Silvers.

Sitting with her to watch the first of the new weekly CBS TV series was her son Phil Silvers, playing the part of the fast talking regular army master sergeant, Ernie Bilko, a man who knows how to turn a buck.

"Mama may not be the toughest critic we'll have," said Silvers, "but she'll be most convincing. And she'll be the most surprised."

MOTHER SKEPTICAL

Mrs. Sarah Silver (somehow during the comedian's career the "S" was added to the name) doesn't really believe that her boy, Phil, has been working this past year while the comedy series was being produced and put on film.

"I'm the youngest of eight kids," said Silvers, in an interview before the debate. "All our lives we have kept anything bad from Mama. So she always believes the worst. She hasn't seen me in a show lately and she thinks I'm out of work.

"I keep telling her, 'Look Ma, we're working on this show and it's going to be on film and you'll soon be seeing it on the air. They're paying me. I'm eating every day.' She doesn't believe a word.

"Every time I go over to see her she wants to give me money. 'You think your Mama is an idiot,' she says. 'You take some money. I know you have big expenses. You live on a high floor in that apartment'."

CONTRASTING LIVING

Silvers makes his home in the same Park Avenue apartment house where Ed Sullivan lives but he likes to have his breakfast at the Automat. "the coffee is good" and he frequently eats at Lindy's, the meeca of theatrical people and their followers.

Silvers presides at Lindy's as a king at court.

While he eats his corned beef sandwich on rye, liberally spread with mustard, and a pickle on the side, he maintains a quick-witted hilarious monologue without benefit of script.

Fans pause at the table for autographs. Press agents and other Broadway characters stop to pump his hand and congratulate him on the new show.

"If it's only half as good as I hear Phil, it's merely great, great," said one.

"That's what it is," quipped Silvers, "half as good. Walter dear," he summoned a fast moving figure, "a little more mustard, please."

LOUD PRAISE

Actually, the well-wisher was not overstating the case. Critics around the country, who had seen previews of the new show on the closed circuit, were unanimous in extravagant praise of the comedy, which is produced and written by Nat Hiken.

In various forms of expression, it has been called the funniest situation comedy ever to happen to television and Hiken and Silvers, who created it and have been working on it for a year, could not agree more.

"If we're wrong we're going to take to the woods," said Silvers. "But it's a funny show. It's all about the army and nothing about the army. Like they say, you have to see it to appreciate it."

PHIL SILVERS

HIGH, LOW SPOTS

Silvers thinks it is one of his major accomplishments and, at the age of 43, he looks back on a topsy-turvy 25 years of show business with extremes of high and low spots.

He was discovered at the age of 14 singing on the beach at Coney Island and two weeks later he was at the Palace in Gus Edwards' "School Days Revue." His vaudeville career lasted as long as his able voice, but he then bounced back into circumstances as a comedian in vaudeville and burlesque.

After making a nearly hard-earned reputation as one of the best actors in burlesque, he was signed for a featured part in the Broadway show "Yokel Boy." Then he went to Hollywood where he made 23 pictures returned to Broadway in two big parts and rave notices. As the cheerful swindler in "High Button Shoes" and in the slapstick "Top Banana," he had his greatest successes.

Like most of the best comedians, Silvers is basically a serious man, intelligent and perceptive.

He said he has learned during these many years of show business that it is important to have interests aside from himself and his career.

BASEBALL FAN

"That's why I like sports so much," said Silvers. "I like the fights and football and I can lose myself on the golf course, but baseball is my game. I can tell you the batting averages of every player."

He also has an affection for children.

"I don't mean I like all kids just because they're kids," he said, "but I have a talent rapport with them. Now take his kids," he said, pointing to Nat Hiken eating a corned beef sandwich while Silvers held forth.

"He has two little girls. They're sensational. We get along great together. They'll be watching the show on Tuesday. And they'll tell me exactly what they think. No walls. No pretence. They'll be honest."

Vivid Story Retold

BUDD SCHULBERG

WATERFRONT, by Budd Schulberg (New York); Random House.

MANY of our best journalists have turned into novelists and our novelists have occasionally doubled in brass to become journalists. Budd Schulberg had written four intensely dramatic novels including a satire on Hollywood entitled "What Makes Sammy Run" and the also noteworthy "The Harder They Fall"—when his attention was drawn to New York Harbor's crime-ridden waterfront by a series of lurid and truthful newspaper pieces which were written by Malcolm Johnson and which eventually won the Pulitzer Prize.

Here was a drama involving crooked union leaders, politicians, larceny and murder on the piers along a 750-mile shorefront and $8,000,000,000 of world trade and six or seven per cent of graft which was passed on to the American consumers. It had everything: suspense, terror, heart-throb and a built-in plot.

Mr Schulberg took a long look at the old town of Hoboken and its crumbling piers across the Hudson. He wrote some articles on this grim and sordid background and then turned his knowledge and his wits to creating one of the most violent and dramatic screen plays of our day. As everyone knows, "On the Waterfront," with Marlon Brando in the lead, collected almost every prize from the Venice festival and the New York Film Critics' to Hollywood's Academy Awards.

The average writer would be content with this triumph. But not Mr Schulberg! After a few waterfront short stories he decided to turn the same plot, the same place, and the same grimy piers into a novel called "Waterfront." In spite of the fact that millions of Americans had shuddered and wept at his movie. The problem of the reviewer is to dismiss the screen drama from his mind and concentrate on the novel, though it is inevitable that he should be confused by an almost identical story in a completely different medium.

To Mr Schulberg's credit his three main characters keep the novel moving toward a dramatic ending. To his credit also it is an ending which seems more honest than did the one which the movie provided.

Talented Rogue Last Mann Hero

CONFESSIONS OF FELIX KRULL, CONFIDENCE MAN, by Thomas Mann. (New York), Alfred A. Knopf.

FOR more than 50 years of prodigious and continued effort Thomas Mann created a vast body of literary work in his homeland and in exile in the United States and Switzerland. He was one of the rare men of letters who held in his hand the conscience of the Western world and who has remained steadfast in his conviction about the traditions of the society into which he was born.

He was a hunanist, an observer of mankind, and a satirist who maintained his faith in the eventual survival of civilization and in the defeat of barbarism. His greatest novels, "Buddenbrooks," "Death in Venice," "The Magic Mountain," the four volumes of "Joseph and His Brothers" and "Dr. Faustus" will live beyond this confused generation.

THOMAS MANN

EVIDENCE OF INTEREST

His latest book, "Confessions of Felix Krull," appeared only a few days after Thomas Mann's tragic death. A fragment of this highly entertaining story of the life of a talented young rogue and swindler appeared in English 19 years ago in "Stories of Three Decades," and there are other evidences of his interest in this ironical and humorous character. The book is in the best tradition of the picturesque novel and there is more than a trace of the "Confessions" of Rousseau in the book.

This remarkable young Felix Krull was the son of a German champagne manufacturer in the rich vineyard country along the Rhine. Before the father died from imbibing his own products he told his son to enter the catering and restaurant business in Paris. At an early age the boy had shown evidence of the skills which later enabled him to obtain wealth and a fraudulent title. He was handsome, graceful, quick-witted, well-mannered and amorous. He had a prodigious memory, a gift for languages and for appearing equally easily to be either a wealthy young aristocrat or an accomplished waiter. He saw no reason why he should not use his ability to fascinate men and women and so to live a cultured life of elegance and ease.

FIRST JOB

The young man's first job was in a vast luxury hotel in Paris for a miserable pittance. His first experience bidder was the pitiful, neurotic and erotic lady, revolted where husband was indifferent to her charms. She was fascinated by the beauty, grace and prowess of the youth who came to her room one night that she presented him with 12,000 francs worth of diamonds and pearls. His next step upward was to become a waiter in a vast restaurant. An adolescent British girl fell madly in love with him and an effeminate Scottish lord begged him to come to his highland castle as his valet.

Felix had an inverted conscience: he told the girl to behave herself and in his charming manner refused the Scots man's offer. He was surrounded for hours every day with wealthy and well-bred customers. He listened to their conversation, studied the male patrons speech and elegant costumes. He became a chameleon who could capture the moods and manners of anyone worth his notice.

DOUBLE LIFE

He began to lead a double life, rented an apartment in a good district and, once a week elegantly dressed, dined in luxurious restaurants and attended the opera or the latest play. He was waiting for a victim, and at last he found one. A young French Count of historic lineage discovered one night that Felix the waiter was a man of birth and breeding, or so he thought. The Count wished to stay in Paris with his beautiful Zaza; his family insisted that he must travel around the world.

He turned over to Felix his letter of credit for 20,000 francs, a steamship ticket, and his name. In a few hours Felix knew everything about his benefactor's relatives and could forge his signature and hand-writing. In Portugal he was in immense social success. He had an audience with the King and amused the old man so much he was given a decoration. The novel ends with Felix in the arms of a beautiful woman.

The reader may suspect that Thomas Mann had tired to end the novel so abruptly. It is possible that among his unpublished manuscripts other chapters of Felix Krull's rise to wealth and fortune may be found.

Boswell Travels Lively Journal

IN our age the professional gossip and gadabout have attained the status of celebrities and enjoy handsome incomes for telling is public what they learn in private, but none today can compare with their great prototype, the original man-about-town, James Boswell.

The arts of love, the game of politics and the profound quest for a religious faith all occupy the young Scot in the latest of his lively journals to be published, "Boswell on the Grand Tour: Italy, Corsica and France, 1765-1766," edited by Frederick Pottle and Frank Brady.

With his relish for intimate detail and his talent for making his picture of life two centuries ago as vivid as yesterday's newspaper, Boswell almost exceeds himself in this brilliant and varied volume which concludes his tour of the continent. Earlier he had reported on Holland, Germany and Switzerland, traveling as always with his heart on his sleeve and his eye alert for the company of local or visiting celebrities.

This final book about his Grand Tour stood out deservedly on The Saturday Review's list of books being most widely read and enjoyed throughout the country.

APPEALING ASPECTS

The fifth volume of the Boswell papers finds the biographer of Samuel Johnson showing more appealing and more fascinating aspects of his own character and he comes to the end of the European tour which was an obligatory part of the education of any young man of the British upper classes in Boswell's time.

The rather gauche young Scot was probably a genius and certainly an authentic original. He was apprentis an eccentric in the special British tradition, honest and egotistical, insensible to rebuff yet sensitive, an insecure snob who bustled about in the best company yet sought out social exiles.

In Italy he not only visited museums but also pursued Italian ladies with forthright proposals. Despite the easiness of moral standards in 18th century Italy, he was unsuccessful, being repeatedly frustrated until he entered into a liaison with an Italian lady whose ardors included thoughts of marriage. He managed a skilful retreat.

Having been a Presbyterian, a Roman Catholic, skeptic and an Anglican in turn as his conscience over his misdeeds drove him to worry about his soul, he struggled with this dilemma in Italy but never finally reconciled his conduct with his conscience.

In politics he journeyed in the footsteps of the elegant and lordly son of Britain's prime minister and at the same time established contact with the bitter enemy, the famous foe of Britain's tyrannic, John Wilkes, who was exiled in Italy.

Boswell was not content with the many allures of the great sights of Italy. Like the splendid reporter he was, he made an arduous journey to Corsica and spent six weeks with the leader of that beleagured island's struggle for independence from Genoa, General Pascal Paoli. The result was a popular book and a crusade in France and Britain for aid for Paoli.

All in all, this is a many-colored and endlessly interesting journal which contains as much about the hardy young Boswell as it does about the places and people he reports on with such discerning frankness. The editors have done a remarkable job of organizing this material, including notes, bridging commentary and textual sequence. Clearly the recently discovered Boswell papers could not have fallen into better hands than those of Professor Pottle and Mr. Brady.

Just as clearly, the reader will search long and far to find a more rewarding or enjoyable book.

James Boswell sooner or later becomes the forced acquaintance of every student of English literature. His biography of Samuel Johnson and the chronicle of their journey to the Hebrides are required reading in nearly every freshman English course in college.

The papers were turned over to Yale University and under the editorship of Professor Pottle were organized, starting in 1950, for publication.

In this latest volume of Boswell's journeys and the fifth to come from the Yale edition of his private papers, Professor Pottle was assisted by Mr. Brady, an instructor in English at the university.

HORRIBLE COUNTRY

An English traveler, Lord Rowallan, recently went to Lapland.

"Is it true," a Lapp asked him, "that in your country the sun sets each night during the summer?"

"Yes," the Englishman replied.

"What a dreadful country," the northern nomad was horrified. "I wouldn't want to live there."

fibre. The experiment was a success but there wasn't enough bracken available to keep a mill running for one day.

Eventually the mill shut down. It was losing money. Alfred Carmichael operated the sawmill attached to the paper mill. Logs and lumber were cheap. Once Mr. Carmichael traded 1,000 feet of lumber to a hard-up English settler for an old book ("The Holy War," a history of the Crusades, by Bishop Fulham). He still has it.

He was able to run the mill at a profit. When he had saved $500, he took a trip to Britain and saw his mother.

SURVEYED SITE

Alfred Carmichael surveyed B.C. coast water power sites for Scottish interests, and reported favorably on Powell River. Later he crossed in a skiff from Texada Island to Powell River that staked out the power site for a Victoria syndicate which later sold to Brooks-Scanlon interests which built the pulp and paper mill.

Disappointed at the outcome of the paper mill affair, he decided to take a new direction. He went to Atlin, B.C., in 1899, prospected and worked at placer mining for eight years. He made wages, but didn't strike it rich. Another souvenir is a poke containing vials of dust and nuggets.

He spent the winter of 1907-08 copper prospecting, timber cruising and locating timber on the Queen Charlotte islands. In those days timber could be obtained by the first comer who legally staked it.

With a partner, Alfred Woodcroft, he staked 22 square miles of timber. They could have made a fortune, if someone had briefed them on the way to market the timber. However they sold the timber for a moderate profit.

INTO PORT ALBERNI

In the autumn of 1908 he took a contract from the CPR to clear the last eight miles of right-of-way for the extension of the E and N railway into Port Alberni, taking the late Charles A. Moorhead, later Lieutenant-Colonel Moorhead, into partnership.

He organized the firm of Carmichael and Moorhead, Ltd., to handle real estate and insurance. This company placed the city of Port Alberni on the market. He also organized the Port Alberni Contract Co., which cleared the townsite and rough graded the roads.

He married Kathleen Frances Withers on April 7, 1909. In 1911 and 1912 he visited England and made reservations to return in the Titanic, the super ship that struck an iceberg and sank on her maiden voyage with terrible loss of life. Because of some business in London he cancelled his passage and returned in the Cedric instead.

"JUST AS WELL"

The business that detained him was an attempt to raise capital for a 20-mile railway from Hardy Bay to Port McNeil at the north end of Vancouver Island. He and associates had bought the charter for this railway for $5,000, from Harold B. Robertson, retired Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal. Because of the Grand Trunk Pacific fiasco, railways had a bad smell for British investors. He never raised the money.

"That was just as well, because the whole thing was crazy anyway," he says in retrospect.

He was interested in a Mexican ranch in partnership with Herbert Carmichael and Mr. Moorhead. In 1913 he went to Mexico to inspect the property. There the ranch manager played a practical joke on him. He knew that Mr. Carmichael had a pond in his garden in Victoria.

The manager, an American called Blackiston, got some of the Mexican workers to bring Mr. Carmichael a grown alligator as a gift, to place in the "lake" on his "estate." He had a shock when it arrived, slung on a pole, a large enough reptile to fill the garden pond with several feet over.

COMPANIES FORMED

From 1914 to 1923 Mr. Carmichael was Victoria manager of the Franco-Canadian Trust Co. (which became the Franco-Canadian Dominion Co.), Vancouver Island Fruit Lands Ltd. and Uplands Ltd. He incorporated the firm of Alfred Carmichael and Co. Ltd. in 1923. In 1926 he formed a partnership with the late David Leeming, who became mayor of Victoria, in organizing Oak Bay Lands Ltd., Victoria Properties Ltd., and Exchange Building Ltd.

He was president of Victoria Rotary Club in 1929, and president of Victoria Real Estate Board in 1927, 1931 and 1932.

In the early 1890's he went with missionary Melvin Swartout on journeys along the West Coast of Vancouver Island and to Barclay Sound, and collected material for "Indian Legends of Vancouver Island." Published by Musson Book Company in 1922 it sold out, but was never reprinted.

UNPUBLISHED LEGENDS

In manuscript form in the B.C. archives is another collection of legends, illustrated by J. Semeyn, Frank Beebe and Judith Morgan. Mr. Carmichael couldn't induce a publisher to print this work. The publishers said there was no demand for Indian legends.

Mr. Carmichael who has been through two real estate booms and slumps looks back with amusement on the tricks of the market.

In the 1930's he tried all over Canada to sell the Saint James Hotel on Johnson Street for $28,500. No takers. Today (known as the Royal Olympic) it is worth several hundred thousand dollars.

During the 1911-12 land boom, he and associates bought two lots on Douglas Street opposite Kings Road for $40,000. When the slump came they let the land go to its owners for the balance owing. The lots still have not been built on.

During the boom, the old Allies Hotel at Pandora and Blanshard was worth more than $1,000 a foot for its 60-foot frontage on Pandora. The owners refused to sell at that price. When the bubble broke the property went for taxes. In 1925 it was bought by Charles S. Austin and partners for $3,500 or $4,000.

Queen Proves Patient, Considerate As Portrait Subject

By HELEN CATHCART

IT was one of those perfect summer days, all too rare in England, and after lunch the Queen was free of official events. The Duke of Edinburgh joined the children in the grounds of Buckingham Palace but despite her afternoon off the Queen had to go to her dressing-room and don full evening dress, including jewelry.

"Her Majesty has a sitting. What a pity on a day like this," said a lady-in-waiting. But to the artist who eagerly awaited her in the yellow drawing room the Queen gave no hint of her regret at deserting the garden.

For nearly an hour she sat motionless, maintaining a difficult pose with but two brief respites. Instinctively she knew when to chat to afford the artist relaxation . . . and when to sit completely silent and still while the painter worked in deep absorption.

A week seldom passes indeed, but that the Queen quietly slices two or three hours from her spare time in order to grant a series of sittings to a painter or sculptor. Pietro Annigoni's wonderful study of the Queen in her blue Garter robes entailed as many as 15 sittings, totalling 40 hours, and even this was no record.

MORE SITTINGS

When James Gunn, the Scottish artist, was commissioned to paint the State portrait, Her Majesty surrendered part of her summer holiday at Balmoral. Then, months after the picture had been publicly exhibited, the artist still felt he had not completed the portrait to his satisfaction and the matter was brought to the Queen's attention. Unhesitatingly she agreed to a further string of sittings in London.

Fortunately not every session is in costume. James Gunn worked for months with the Coronation robes draped on a dummy and Annigoni borrowed an old plaster model named Rosie which happened to have almost the exact proportions of the Queen. When Prince Charles and Princess Anne were shown into the room they almost ignored their mother's picture but were delighted to shake Rosie's hand.

Then there was the charming sidelight on royal portraiture when Grace Forbes was executing a crayon portrait of Princess Anne and when the drawing was half finished, the little girl asked, "May I see?"

DEEP CONSIDERATION

"Not yet, Anne," said Miss Forbes. "Wait until it is finished." The Princess never asked again until the artist offered to show her. The Queen, too, often walks over to examine the progress of a portrait after a sitting . . . but never makes a comment.

Douglas Chandor, America's highest-paid portrait painter, arranged a mirror so that the Queen could watch his work. When he made a false brush stroke he knew that the Queen knew. But he found that no sitter could be more sympathetic or helpful.

Simon Elwes, that most eminent of portraitists, also knows of the Queen's deep consideration. After falling ill with paralysis, he struggled along the high road of recovery and was commissioned to paint the Queen's portrait. But the Queen insisted on departing from precedent and visited him in his studio in St. John's Wood for sittings.

It was a tribute to his wonderful struggle. The paralysis affected his right painting hand so that he knew he could never paint with it again. Yet this was a battle that had to be fought. Elwes transferred his brush to his left hand and ultimately won with it the mastery he had enjoyed with his right.

PART OF JOB

The royal portrait was finished and to celebrate it Mr. Elwes staged a party at his studio. And once again the Queen broke with precedent, for she came as a guest and stayed over an hour.

It was to Simon Elwes, too, that Princess Margaret once gave a sitting lasting five solid hours. Often a royal sitting may actually mean a fatiguing standing position. Every year a dozen or more portraits of the Queen alone are made at the behest of city companies, Commonwealth authorities and the like and every member of the royal family regards "sittings" as very much a part of their job.

One artist likes his sitters to listen to music and a butler waiting always present on these occasions is entrusted with the choice of records. The Queen readily puts new portraitists at ease by talking simply of "my husband," "my sister" or "my children."

Pietro Annigoni, as a matter of fact, gave her an awkward moment for he originally posed Her Majesty looking towards the darkest and least interesting corner of the room. But with infinite tact the Queen mentioned that as a little girl in that room she had always enjoyed watching the people and traffic from the window.

It was an inspiration. Annigoni instantly suggested a change in her pose and so secured the warm expression and clear lighting of his portrait.

When Doris Wilding photographed the Queen for the new stamps, expert care was needed to see that Her Majesty's forehead or chin did not seem to protrude unnaturally. Eventually four designs were submitted to the Queen and it was the Duke of Edinburgh who first suggested the half-profile, a break with formal tradition found on the postage stamps of today.

When the photographers first went to Buckingham Palace years ago it was suggested that the camera would save all the time lavished on artists' sittings. But, of course, camera posing has proved to be just an extra chore, requiring no less care. Cecil Beaton took no fewer than 70 pictures of Prince Charles to secure seven which he deemed sufficiently perfect for submission to the Queen.

On one occasion, when he had spent more than three hours photographing the Queen Mother, he was rebuked by a Palace official. "Do you realize a man from the office of works has been in the next room for four days? He's been waiting to see Her Majesty for two minutes about the color of the walls to be repainted in the Throne Room."

MOVE CLOSER

Back in the days of King George V, the Queen's grandfather, no photographer was ever allowed to take pictures for more than 20 minutes. Press photographers at outdoor events were even more unfortunate, for they were not permitted to approach royalty with their cameras closer than 50 yards.

One day, when the police drove them back as usual, they decided in a body to go on strike. When the King asked why no cameras were being focused, their spokesman sent a message: "Unless we can approach to seven yards and take good pictures, we would prefer to take nothing."

The King, of course, instantly allowed them to approach as they pleased. Today press photographers are never censored by royalty and some of the finest royal portraits as that of the Queen riding to the opening of Parliament—have been the result of felicitous accident.

Not long ago, the Queen had to autograph 500 portraits of herself for distribution to service and other centres. A helpful official suggested that a photographed reproduction of her signature should be used, but the Queen shook her head. She felt it would be defrauding the recipients, and all her odd minutes for several days were devoted to the autographs.

Long sittings in time taken from her summer holidays at Balmoral Castle, were necessary when Queen Elizabeth posed for this State portrait by Scottish artist, James Gunn. For months in addition the artist painted the robes alone, draped on a dummy. Even when the portrait had been finished and exhibited the Queen, learning that Gunn was not entirely satisfied, gave up more of her spare time for additional sittings.

Wearable Style

Italy inspired the color and texture of Vera Maxwell's collection for this fall and winter. She has chosen the warm beige of buildings for the sun-tweed coat of the costume shown here. Underneath is a lovely dot print dress in grey silk brocade with a look of satin to match the coat lining. The dress has a bow and the easy lines of a shirtwaist design. Here is a design that is wearable at home as well as on any of your travels. (Released by Fashion League.)

RETURN

The following unkindest cut was overheard in the conversation between two women friends, one of whom had just become engaged to a wealthy executive:

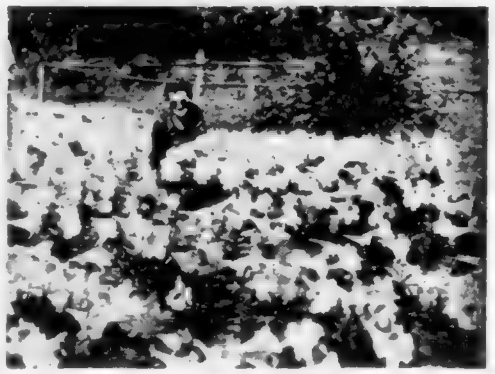
"We shall go by boat to Egypt on the honeymoon. Naturally, I'm scared of the seasickness, but they say that love is the best medicine against that."

"I've heard that, too," the friend replied. "But what will you do on the return trip."

Week-End Gardeners Make Woodland Ring

By MONICA OLDHAM

HALF way between Shawnigan Lake and Cobble Hill, there is a small lane running off the main road; one of those enchanting lanes, that dip through tall timbers and are illuminated by shafts of sunlight. Walk along its piney surface any weekday, and except for the odd tree frog fleeing in terror, one will be quite alone.



Jean Crowther inspects cash crop of croft lilies at week end farm she and her husband, Ray, work between Cobble Hill and Shawnigan Lake.

A small log cabin seems completely appropriate to such a setting, and it's there, enveloped in such eerie silence, that even one's thoughts seem to intrude. A row of stones surrounds a small garden, a woodpile—a masterpiece of precision—it is obvious that someone works here; a pile of oyster shells—it's obvious people enjoy themselves here—but who? Surely not the walrus and the carpenter.

The answer can be found almost any Saturday or Sunday, when Ray Crowther, an employee at Hafer's Machine Shop Victoria, and Jean—a cook at the Empress Hotel, have fled the city and are back at being farmers again. The woods ring with such assorted noises as a power saw, the rhythm of an axe on the job, or merely the cheerful conversation of those engaged in pleasant chores.

A visitor soon learns that there is more to the Crowther's nine acres than carefully parked woodland. A path behind the cabin winds into a small clearing, neatly fenced into small, especially designated areas—neatness is in fact one of the most striking factors of the entire property. The kitchen garden patch occupying rich black bottom land is set out with mathematical exactitude and free of weeds, broccoli, peas, beans and potatoes are of exhibition quality.

"I expect," said Ray, "if the deer were really hungry, they wouldn't be stopped by this fence but they haven't troubled us much so far." He is clutch a wooden fence pole. The deer are missing out on a good thing.

In other plots there are raspberries, strawberries and the start of an orchard, rich in variety.

Livestock are not overlooked, either they have several thousand head, occupying their own beehive. If honey hasn't poured out yet, Ray feels it is not entirely the bees' fault.

"I never leave them in peace," he said. "They are a new toy and every week-end I take the hive to bits so see what they have been up to."

A quarter acre of croft lilies comprises their cash crop. These were first planted three years ago. Last year they were able to sell a few bulbs. This year, if not a killing, they expect to make a tidy little profit on them. The lilies certainly thrive on the light acid soil; and though their white heads perfume the air, they seem to have no qualities that whet the appetite of the wild life.

ADDED TO BUNGALOW

Ray and Jean bought this property five years ago. They had advertised for just such a spot, and chose this particular one out of a deluge of replies. All they know of farming they have learned since then—though they haven't learned to grumble convincingly yet.

The log cabin when they bought it contained only one room. Ray added a small modern-looking kitchen with every convenience save hot running water and electricity—those things belong to the soft dependent folk of the city.

Another job they attended to was clearing the log jams. At the foot of their field runs the stream from Shawnigan Lake to Mill Bay. From years of careless logging operations the stream's natural beauty and flow was impeded by immense piles of logs and snags. These they burned out.

Of the future. "We will plant a whole acre down in lilies," said Ray. "Then, maybe, we will build a larger house, right overlooking the stream," added Jean.

"Maybe we will clear that bit up there, and maybe we will change these plans entirely," concluded Ray.

Happy, Sleepy Island Becoming Reluctant Resort

GRAND CAYMAN ISLAND, British West Indies (NANA)—This formerly isolated, peaceful, sleepy British dependency is fast becoming an American resort in spite of itself. And many of the native population here, mostly direct descendants of the pirate crews of Sir Henry Morgan and others who made their headquarters here over a century ago, are not sure they like the disruption of their way of life.

Caymanians are famous the world over as sailors and are always in demand by ship operators. Of a total population of 6,000 well over 1,000 men are always away at sea, leaving an unbalanced situation whereby at this time there are an estimated 24 females to every male on the island. Before signing on for a two-year hitch as a crew member, most Caymanians instruct ship owners to turn over 50 per cent of their monthly pay to their families. This has resulted in a steady income to the balance of the population here of considerably more than $1,000,000 annually according to Barclay's bank officials who recently opened a branch here for the first time.

As a result of this income Cayman islanders have not minded the isolation and are very self-sufficient. There is no poverty here nor is there any industry worthy of the name. In fact, the economy of the island is unusual.

ISOLATION ENDED

Until five years ago Cayman Island's only direct link with the outside world was via an occasional trading vessel which happened to stop it at this port of Georgetown. Five years ago however, an excellent airport was constructed here by the Colonial Development Corporation and Grand Cayman Island's 100-year isolation was ended once and for all.

The island is midway on the direct air route between Miami and Central America. Lacsa (Lineas Aereas Costarricenses S.A.), a Costa Rica affiliate of Pan American World Airways, last month placed new Convair 340 aircraft on the Grand Cayman-Miami route that now brings flying time between the two points to less than two hours compared with the previous three days by ship—if and when a ship could be found. British West Indian Airways also serves the route and connects Grand Cayman with Jamaica and other Caribbean points.

Grand Cayman Island technically is a dependency of Jamaica but the independent Caymanians pay little or no attention to the government of Jamaica and for all practical purposes are fully autonomous. To visitors the island presents a sleepy, clean and tidy appearance. There is practically no crime and the 10-man police force has little to do.

NO INCOME TAX

There are no income taxes, a fact that is causing numbers of Americans to build homes here with the intention of using the island as their residence to beat the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The only taxes collected are a flat 15 per cent ad valorem import tax on goods and a head tax of $1.10 on males and donkeys between the ages of 16 and 60.

The island government has made no effort to either encourage or discourage the sudden inflow of American visitors as yet, although there has been some considering of establishing a tourist development commission. There has been no official advertising for tourists nor any public relations program. Regardless, more than 300 Americans visited Grand Cayman Island last season and left over $1,000,000 behind them Barclay's bank officials estimate. According to reservations already on hand, the number will be more than doubled next season.

This sudden influx of visitors has astounded many old-time Caymanians and many are not at all sure whether they like the disruption of their calm peaceful life. The needs of the average native here are simple and they always have had sufficient money for any needs. As a result, many of them are not particularly impressed by the American tourist dollar. However, Cayman islanders are by nature hospitable and friendly and no indication of their inner feelings would ever be noted by a visitor.

SPORTS FISHING

The major attraction for American visitors in addition to the peaceful atmosphere and vast stretches of white coral sand beaches, probably is the island's unexcelled sports fishing. Kingfish, wahoo, marlin, tuna, bone fish, tarpon, jack fish, snapper, grouper, rockfish and barracuda abound, and visiting anglers [illegible] guides unhesitatingly agree to a "no fish, no pay" proposition.

Most observers forecast that Grand Cayman Island's natural attractions and its closeness to the United States will ultimately make it a major resort before long, whether old-time Caymanians like it or not. One resident recently expressed the general feeling when he said he was "not sure whether we are the beneficiary or the victim of the air age."

Unexpected Relic

Stories dealing with early mining camps seldom feature the religious side of life, but this famous old church had a faithful attendance when Barkerville was a roaring Eldorado and the biggest city west of Chicago except for San Francisco. No doubt the total absence of opposition candidates in their elections is also due to a strict observance of social etiquette.

GENESIS OF PO[illegible]

Pulp History Launched At Alberni

By ALFRED CARMICHAEL

THE writer's recent visit to Powell River offered the occasion to recall the beginnings of the great development there.

Fifty years ago it was an empty unpopulated wilderness except for deer and bear. Today it is the site of the largest single-unit newspaper manufacturing plant in the world, supporting directly or indirectly a population of some 10,000 people housed in comfortable company houses in Powell River itself or in modern bungalows of the suburbs of Westview, Cranberry Lake and Wildwood Heights.

Of course it had to come! Fifty thousand untamed horse power, so easy of development, so close to tide water and the great reservoir of Powell Lake back of it, could not fail but attract an industry seeking site and power. Despite this fact the story of what led up to the acquisition of Powell River and the sale of the water power and land to the Powell River Company is of basic historic interest. It is a tale of high endeavor by forward looking men; of regrettable mistakes, terrible disappointments. It is a very human story.

ORIGINATED IDEA

The idea of building a paper mill in British Columbia originated with William Hewartson, a retired English paper maker. On arrival in Victoria he joined St. Andrews Presbyterian Church on Douglas Street. The pastor of St. Andrews was Rev. Patrick MacFarlane McLeod.

Hewartson more or less a stranger in Victoria, asked the help of his pastor in finding some business man who would undertake to promote a company to build a paper mill. Mr. McLeod introduced Hewartson to Herbert Carmichael also a member of St. Andrews. Herbert Carmichael was a clever, active man, a graduate in chemistry from Owen's College, Manchester, England. He later served the province as provincial assayer, provincial analyst and assistant mineralogist.

Herbert Carmichael was enthused with the suggestion and undertook to promote a company for the purpose. A site on which to build the mill had to be selected and acquired. Hewartson heard of one at the head of tide water on the Somass River, Alberni. Together they made a very secret trip to inspect it. They returned to Victoria [illegible] as to the suitability of the site.

LAND PURCHASED

On July 20, 189[illegible], Herbert Carmichael purchased the [illegible] [illegible] being [illegible] Lot 7 [illegible] [illegible] 175 acres from the [illegible] John Marrett and J[illegible] for $1,000 cash. Dr. P[illegible] the only doctor in the Alberni district at that time witnessed the signatures and George [illegible] took the affidavits.

Herbert Carmichael [illegible] the British Columbia Paper Manufacturing Company, Ltd. and [illegible] to the company [illegible] stock in the company therefor.

Selling stock in Victoria [illegible] venture 65 years ago was [illegible] easy task. A total of [illegible] shares of $100 each were subscribed and $3,[illegible] realized. With this meagre cash capital the company started operations.

The first directors included W. P. Sayward (lumberman), Joshua Davie (auctioneer), J. Stewart Yates (lawyer), Thomas Shotbolt (druggist), and James Thomson, Herbert Carmichael was secretary-treasurer.

OLD MACHINERY

The equipment purchased by Hewartson was old second-hand rag machinery already out of date in England. A chipper and a crusher were the only machines which could be used in the manufacture of wood pulp. R. H. Wood of New Westminster undertook the task of building the dam flume and mill buildings and the installation of the machinery when it arrived from the Old Country.

In Victoria, Herbert Carmichael had the task of not only selling stock but also collecting the money owed by the subscribers for shares in the company to meet the contractors' bills as work proceeded. This was a headache not only for him but also for the contractor and workmen who had to wait for their wages. Costs exceeded all estimates and as a last resort Herbert Carmichael borrowed from his father-in-law, Andrew Munce of Belfast, Ireland, the sum of £4,000 to cover the debts of the company and to put the mill in production.

BOUGHT RAGS

William Hewartson, the technical adviser and mill manager, had no experience in making paper from wood. When in England he bought [illegible] of rags which were shipped [illegible] the Horn to Victoria and [illegible] boat to Alberni with which to start the mill. With these rags he made wrapping paper. When the stock of rags needed replenishing, Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle and Portland were combed for rags, gunnysacks, old rope and canvas. From these [illegible] paper of good quality was made.

The cost of the raw material [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The paper mill, after a checkered career of two years, shut-down for good early in 1896. Most of the machinery was junked but the three Leffel turbines, one 40 h.p. which drove the saw mill machinery, one 100 h.p. which ran the grinders and beaters and one 24 h.p. required to serve the paper machine are, as far as the writer knows, buried within their penstocks now silted up with sand and gravel.

The machinery purchased by William Hewartson in England included one Galloway steam boiler, two spherical rag boilers, five beating engines, a 60-inch Fourdrinier paper machine and a three-roll calendar machine. There was also a bag making machine and a dynamo for electric lighting. Included also were six granite stones originally quarried in Aberdeen, Scotland, and used for grinding up old news and other waste papers.

The machinery arrived in Esquimalt on board the British bark Ameer in May, 189[illegible], 147 days out from England.

The granite stones, together with a large sandstone grindstone, set up but never used, are now erected in the front yard of the log pulp mill built by MacMillan and Bloedel at Port Alberni — a fitting monument to the first paper mill built in the province of British Columbia.

Scientists Soothe Smokers On Cigarette-Cancer Link

NEW YORK (NANA).—Scientific investigators in the great cigarette scare are beginning to sound off, and their words may be as soothing to [illegible] as an after dinner cigarette.

What these persons are saying in effect is that the accusers of cigarettes in connection with lung cancer may have jumped the gun. In fact, they may even be running in the wrong direction.

At the Mayo Clinic, in Rochester, Minn., Dr. Joseph Berkson, renowned biometrician, comments: "It is unwarranted to conclude that a meaningful association [illegible] has been [illegible]."

[illegible] as these by Dr. Berkson may add a [illegible] smoke with the removal of some of the bitter taste of [illegible] for the federal and state [illegible] [illegible] than [illegible] a year [illegible] tobacco taxes. These reports indicate that this important revenue source isn't by any means on the verge of being cut out.

Cancer specialists, of course have been concerned for many years now with the increasing number of deaths from lung cancer. It's true, for instance, that deaths from falls in bathtubs, down stairs, off ladders and the like are nearly twice the number attributed to primary cancer of the lung.

Even so the rise in lung cancer deaths yet remains a big cause for concern. Many experts say the rise is largely because physicians now have more and better facilities for diagnosing the disease with the consequence that more physicians report lung-cancer deaths where previously they reported pneumonia or tuberculosis. And there are those who insist the things we breathe, such as the smoke from cigarettes, are responsible for the upswing in lung cancer.

Now as a result of many [illegible]

[illegible] they fed them tobacco [illegible] "smoke" [illegible] they injected tobacco [illegible] the skin and into [illegible]. In each instance, the [illegible] there was no sign that tobacco caused cancer.

MICE NOT MEN

But these are not men. What would happen if human tissues were exposed to these tobacco [illegible]?

One answer comes from Dr. Harry S. N. Greene, chairman of the Department of Pathology at Yale University's School of Medicine. Dr. Greene, in one experiment, transplanted [illegible] tissue into animals, [illegible] such tissues with [illegible] tars. He uncovered no [illegible].

[illegible] Dr. Greene [illegible] has reported [illegible] the results Dr. [illegible]

Tuning Up for First Concert

Boris Zarry is not turning that viola into a mandolin, he's simply tuning it up for his wife Brenda. Both are in the viola section of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, which opens its 1955-56 season with a pair of concerts in the Royal theatre this afternoon and tomorrow night. Program is by Mozart, Sibelius and Dvorak, and tickets for the second concert will be sold at Eaton's until 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Left-wing unions are unlikely to win re-admittance to the B.C. Trade Union Congress despite the fact that convention delegates approved the move in a snap 56-to-54 vote at Vancouver late Friday.

Stunned by the motion many TLC affiliated union members were divided in their opinions yesterday, but two union officials in Victoria said flatly the Red tinged unions will stay out.

DEFEAT LIKELY

"The likelihood is that this resolution will be defeated," he said. [illegible]

"In my mind there is some doubt as to the validity of the motion," he said. "It's a very good object lesson pointing out to the delegates to any convention that the business of the convention is never finished until the meeting adjourns."

JUST FOR RECORD

He accepted the [illegible] resolution from the Port Alberni Painters' Union because it requested that the convention only go on record as favoring the move.

Mr. Aubry pointed out that both national labor groups will have to settle the matter, so it "certainly couldn't be described as a left-wing victory."

However some TLC members said they had lost all sympathy with the congress for its handling of the resolution.

Others said they expected the resolution would certainly stir [illegible] to greater participation [illegible]

Third Term Seen

Prediction that Mayor Claude Harrison will be re-elected in December for a third term if he has more than one opponent with any chance of success was made by former city alderman Percy Scurrah yesterday.

Mr. Scurrah said he would have considered running if "I could have had a straight fight with the mayor."

Elmer McEwen said some time ago [illegible]

"If there are more than two candidates with a chance of winning, re-election of the mayor is assured," he said.

Sewage Bottleneck Denied

Inadequate sewage facilities are not holding up any construction in Victoria, Ald. Arthur Dowell, chairman of the city public works committee, said yesterday.

He was commenting on the claim of J. S. McFarlane, new manager of the Victoria branch of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, that the main problem in Greater Victoria is installation of a modern sewage system.

Mr. McFarlane said lack of an adequate sewage system was holding back construction of homes and proper development and expansion of the area. Land suitable for housing is not being used because septic tanks cannot be installed.

"That applies more to the outlying districts but Saanich for one is doing something about it," Ald. Dowell said.

He conceded that concentrations of rock are frequent and extension of the sewage system to higher levels is difficult but added: "I don't know of any building being held up because of sewage problems."

REV. T. H. LAUNDY

To Mark Birthday

Retired Rector, 90, Returning for Day

A distinguished-looking gentleman will break a five-year period of retirement for one day today when he assists in the morning service at the Church of Our Lord.

The occasion is the 90th birthday of [illegible] bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church of America, Rev. Thomas H. Laundy, whose rewarding life is reflected in his stature and kindly features. [illegible]

He was appointed an assistant in the [illegible] of Rev. A. [illegible] the church of Our Lord. He finally assumed full charge of the church between 1[illegible] and 1950. He retired on the appointment of Rev. Dr. J. G. [illegible].

A traveller of many walks of life, Mr. Laundy entered the service of the church at an age when most men welcome retirement.

Born in [illegible] Terrace, London, England, he was educated [illegible]. After passing the Incorporated Law Society's [illegible] examination he was articled to his father, Richard Laundy.

CAME AS BANKER

Shortly after he joined his father [illegible] Thomas then joined the Bank of British Columbia, arriving in Victoria in 1889. He spent one year with the bank in [illegible] and returned to Victoria in 1892 to marry his wife Ellen who died three years ago.

Mr. Laundy continued in the service of the bank after it was amalgamated with the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was clearing house manager in Victoria for 25 years, retiring from the bank in 1925, and from the clearing house 11 years later.

At the time he left the bank Mr. Laundy was a lay reader in the church. He became a deacon and was later ordained in the ministry of the Free Church of England by Rt. Rev. Frank V. Cloak, at that time presiding [illegible].

Recounting the years, Mr. Laundy said [illegible] God that I should live so long. [illegible] has nothing to do with it.

His family, one daughter and four boys, is scattered between here and Terrence Bay, Ont. He says they "average two children each of their own." He also has a great grandchild.

Rev. J. A. Roberts Speaks Tuesday

Rev. J. A. Roberts will be guest speaker at the first of the [illegible] monthly dinner meetings of the Anglican Sunday School Teachers' Association of Greater Victoria, in Memorial Hall, at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

His topic will be "Adventure Behind the Iron [illegible]."

Garden Show Success

[illegible] Secretary of the organization [illegible] said the [illegible] were [illegible].

[illegible] of the event was presentation of awards to winners of the eighth annual [illegible] garden contest. [illegible] received the cup and first prize for the best [illegible] garden, [illegible] second, and [illegible] third.

There were [illegible] entries in the garden contest sponsored by the Garden Head Parent-Teacher Association and the Victoria Horticultural Society.

Plenty of Activities

Time Is Too Short For Busy Blind Folk

It used to be that a blind person was an idle person, like it or not, but the opposite is true in Victoria these days.

In fact the man and women who take part in the recreation program of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind [illegible] time to take part in all the activities.

Oldest of these activities, which are largely financed by donations to the Community Chest, is the weekly indoor fivepin bowling, where participants need only a guide rail to chalk up good scores. Mrs. Betty Garnot, 1121 Caledonia, who is sighted, keeps those scores.

Both men and women trek to the Crystal Garden weekly in the summer for lawn bowling, where [illegible] of the Lawn Bowling Association use their [illegible] to guide the contestants.

White Cane Club is another weekly affair which has invited speakers to discuss such topics as travel and whaling. Once a month Ted Turner presents an Empire information lecture.

TAKE UP DEBATE

CNIB [illegible] formed together last year to take up public speaking, and debates have [illegible] [illegible] A [illegible] persons come [illegible] bage. Several are thinking about taking up chess this year.

In these two activities, as in indoor bowling, there are competitions with blind persons in Vancouver and elsewhere in Canada.

There's the annual 10-day summer outing at Sunshine Camp at Sooke and a new class on ceramics is being organized.

Dancing is very popular, said Miss Vera Deakin, CNIB secretary, because some of the blind people who danced felt they probably would never be able to do anything like that again. They like waltzes and polkas best.

"The idea is to get blind people to feel they are capable of doing all of these things," Miss Deakin said. "Then they enter into the normal life of the community."

Deputy Minister Plans Address

Deputy minister of fisheries G. J. Alexander will address a general meeting of the B.C. [illegible] Civil Servants at 2 p.m. Oct. 6 at 632 View.

Mr. Alexander will discuss the fishing industry and show a film.

Animal Lover To Match Half Shelter Objective

If the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals can succeed in raising half of the money needed to construct a roof over its exercise pens and provide a heater for the shelter, a donor who wishes to remain anonymous will contribute the balance.

So far the society has received $107 in response to its appeal.

SPCA inspector Edward Hayward said last night: "If we can collect an additional $200 we will have reached the halfway mark and be eligible for the donation."

"We would like to thank all those who have assisted us already, and appeal to others also to help," he said.

The new addition to the SPCA will cover the area where pets are exercised while waiting for new masters to adopt them.

Plea Made for Canadian Coast Guard

More than 600 west coast fishermen have signed a petition calling for a Canadian coast guard service. Victoria and island fishermen, seamen and yachtsmen are being asked to support the campaign.

More names are being added daily. Copies of the petition have been received by Island Tug and Barge Co. and Royal Victoria Yacht Club. The yacht club, sympathetic in the past to formation of a coast guard, will consider the petition at its meeting Thursday.

The petition was launched at Tofino after the tragic disappearance July 30 of the salmon troller Maybe II with two men aboard, [illegible] MacLeod of Tofino and Kenneth Wilson of Vancouver. It has the backing of Ucluelet and Tofino chambers of commerce.

Headings have been distributed to every fishing settlement on the west coast of Vancouver Island, the Queen Charlottes and Prince Rupert and to fishermen's associations, tugboat and shipping companies.

Several thousand names are expected when the forms are returned.

After being carefully checked the petition will be forwarded to George C. Marler, federal minister of transport. Copies will also be sent to Fisheries Minister James Sinclair and to all Island MPs.

Figures published by the department of fisheries at Ottawa disclose that 7,000 vessels of all sizes are engaged in fishing off the B.C. coast. These have a total value of $45,000,000 and gear valued at another $7,000,000. This is exclusive of the value of plants ashore.

Sponsors of the petition seek protection for lives and investment. They want to eliminate Canadian dependence on the United States Coast Guard.

Leaving Today for England

Lieut. Cmdr. D. M. Waters, RCN, with Mrs. Waters and three sons, John, aged five, left, Peter, aged seven, and Timothy, six, are leaving Victoria today en route to Quebec from where they will sail on Oct. 9 for England. Cmdr. Waters has been posted to HMCS Niobe in London. The family is pictured at the home of Mrs. Waters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Barr, on Rockland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Dorman, "Kildaire," 3000 Uplands road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Goldie, to Mr. Gordon Ellis Bergevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Bergevin, Walla Walla, Wash. The wedding will take place in St. Luke's Anglican church, Victoria, on Nov. 25 at 8 p.m. with Rev. Canon Frederic Pike officiating. Miss Dorman has named Miss Gloria Caldwell, Yakima, Wash., as maid of honor, and as bridesmaids, Miss Anne Kingsbery, Seattle, and Misses Barbara Hedenger and Margaret Ramsay of Portland, Ore. Her younger sister, Shelley Dorman, will be flower girl. The groom-elect will have his brother, Mr. Duane Bergevin, as best man, and ushering will be two other brothers, Mr. Wade Bergevin and Mr. Keith Bergevin, and his cousins, Mr. Russell Bergevin and Mr. Claro Bergevin. The bride-elect attended Whitman College in Walla Walla, where she was affiliated with Alpha Phi sorority, while Mr. Bergevin, an alumnus of Washington State College, belongs to Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Squash Rackets Gain in Popularity Here

Victoria squash rackets club has a number of new members this year as the game grows in popularity. Dr. Kemble Greenwood, president of the club, says there is still plenty of room for new members and that the membership of 50 at present could easily be doubled. Other cities have thriving clubs with many young members and Dr. Greenwood feels that once the game really "catches on" here the younger group will be more interested.

Today sees the wind-up of a three-day tournament with the Seattle squash rackets club team being played on the Royal Canadian Navy courts for the Hewsey-Borgendale cup. The Pacific Coast championships of 1956 are slated to be played here.

Frank Montfort and Marjorie Stephenson take time out to watch from the balcony above the courts.

Mr. and Mrs. Giles Motor to Edmonton Following Wedding at St. Luke's

St. Luke's church decorated for the harvest festival made a lovely setting last evening for the wedding of Verna Winifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Heath and Mr. Donald Gould Giles, son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] R. Giles. Rev. Canon F. Pike performed the double ring ceremony and Miss I. Jenner, aunt of the bride, sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful gown of nylon tulle and chantilly lace over taffeta, the tiered skirt trimmed with wide bands of scalloped lace and the lace bodice cuffed with scalloped lace and topped with a waist hugging jacket featuring lily point sleeves and rolled lace collar. Her cascade bouquet was red roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Vernon Harknett was matron of honor. Mrs. Donald Cooper, bridesmaid. Miss Roberta Heath, sister of the bride, bridesmaid, and Dorothy Jane Lavoie, flower girl. Mrs. Harknett and Miss Heath were floor length dresses of [illegible] and lace over satin, the strapless bodices topped with lace jackets in blue and pink respectively. The former's bouquet was of pink chrysanthemums and Miss Heath's of yellow. Mrs. Cooper was in a floor length dress of pale yellow net and brocade over satin with matching jacket and her bouquet was of [illegible] chrysanthemums. The little flower girl wore a [illegible] dress of [illegible] and carried a basket of petals from [illegible].

Mr. Bruce Fraser was best man and Mr. [illegible] Giles, brother of the groom, and Mr. [illegible] seated the guests in the church.

[illegible] Lodge was the scene for the reception where the bridal table was covered with a three-tiered cake decorated by Miss [illegible]. A silver vase of pale pink roses topped the cake which was set in pink tulle flanked by white candles in silver holders. Leaving later for Edmonton, the bride wore a navy blue [illegible] with [illegible] and matching [illegible].

[illegible] Mrs. Giles will be a navy blue [illegible] and matching [illegible].

Barbara Anne Cross Bride At Pretty Home Ceremony

Barbara Anne Cross made a pretty bride in her bal[illegible] length wedding gown [illegible] taffeta [illegible] daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Cross last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Douglas R. [illegible] at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. [illegible] of Seattle, attended. [illegible] taffeta [illegible] and [illegible] chrysanthemums formed the background for the bridal party and traditional music was played by Mr. [illegible].

[illegible] Mary Lou Cross was bridesmaid for her sister [illegible] the bride's table which was [illegible] a three-tiered [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Alex Crouch came from Campbell River for the wedding.

Married in Omaha

Saturday morning in St. John's church, Omaha, Neb., Miss Jeane Catherine Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] L. Griffin, 3815 Marcy street, Omaha, exchanged wedding promises with Mr. [illegible], son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. [illegible], [illegible] Fairfield road, Victoria. Rev. A. W[illegible] officiated. Following a late afternoon reception at the [illegible] in Omaha, the young couple left for [illegible] on honeymoon. On their return they will make their home at [illegible] Arizona way, Tucson. The bride attended Duchesne College in Omaha while the groom, an alumnus of Phi Gamma Delta, attended [illegible] University and is a graduate of University of Washington. An architect, he is associated with the firm of Place and Place in Tucson. [illegible]

Newlyweds on Trip to Groom's Home

A honeymoon trip to [illegible] is being taken by Mr. and Mrs. James Lindsay McLaren, who were married recently in St. Mary's church, Oak Bay. The bride, the former [illegible] Winterbottom, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. [illegible], Vernon road, Winnipeg, Man., while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McLaren, of [illegible].

[illegible] were placed on the altar and at the chancel rail for the double ring ceremony, performed by Rev. Canon [illegible] Wickens, while the pews to which the guests were shown by Mr. William Naylor and Mr. Fred White were marked with white satin bows.

Entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march, played by [illegible], the bride was lovely in her ballerina-length gown of white nylon net over satin. A lace bolero with [illegible] sleeves topped the [illegible] strapless bodice. [illegible]

Mr. Robert [illegible] McLaren, as best man.

On their return the young couple will reside at 1129A [illegible] street, Victoria. [illegible] Out-of-town guests at the [illegible] were [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] F. W. [illegible], Winnipeg. [illegible]

Betty Galt, R. L. Hannay Married at St. Luke's

[illegible] Mrs. Betty Galt became the bride of Mr. Robert Lewis Hannay. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Galt, [illegible] road, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hannay, [illegible] avenue.

The picturesque church, decorated for the Harvest Festival, was an attractive setting for the ceremony, performed by Rev. [illegible]. [illegible] flowers [illegible] the bride's mother, grand [illegible].

A gown of French [illegible] was worn by the bride, given in marriage by her father. The Basque bodice designed with low neckline and elbow-length crushed sleeves was offset by the wide waltz-length skirt [illegible].

Her small soft hat was of the same material [illegible] and she carried a [illegible] bouquet [illegible].

Attending the bride was her [illegible] sister, Mrs. Geoffrey [illegible], who [illegible] in [illegible] green velvet [illegible] taffeta [illegible] the bride's gown and she carried a small cascade of [illegible].

Mr. [illegible] A. Fraser, [illegible] West Vancouver, acted as groomsman and ushering were Mr. [illegible] Galt, West Vancouver, and Mr. Geoffrey [illegible], St. Catharine's, Ontario.

Flowers [illegible] decorated the reception rooms at [illegible], where the newlyweds received with their parents. Mrs. Galt chose a [illegible] dress with matching velvet jacket and hat and corsage of yellow roses while Mrs. Hannay was in a [illegible] with [illegible] corsage.

Presiding at the tea table centred with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and lighted by tall white tapers were Mrs. R. S. [illegible] and Mrs. V. [illegible]. The three-tiered white wedding cake centered the bride's table. Mr. R. S. [illegible] proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For an extended motor trip through the United States and the interior of British Columbia to Edmonton, the new Mrs. Hannay donned a rose brown velvet ensemble, the jacket [illegible] at the waistline [illegible] the soft contours of the flared skirt. A [illegible] accessories and a corsage of [illegible] completed her ensemble.

At the end of October Mr. and Mrs. Hannay will [illegible] to Beaver Lodge [illegible], where [illegible]

Victoria Girl Visits Yugoslav Caves Where Tito Gives Dinners and Parties

Miss Carroll Butler, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Crookston, Torquay drive, who left for England last May to attend the Ashridge House of Citizenship, spent the month of September in Yugoslavia. Miss Dorothy Neville Rolfe, Ashridge director, accompanied the 20 girls to the continent, the trip costing each girl the approximately $100. Miss Butler has written some of her impressions while in Yugoslavia.

HOTEL PARK Bled. This is a lovely place! I have taken far too many snaps as it is also beautiful. The hotel surrounded by mountains is on the edge of the lake which is the color of Lake Louise and has a small island in the middle of it.

The hotel is very modern and [illegible] corner room with a balcony where I am sitting writing. There are a couple of row boats and a sail boat to look at and the sun is just going down. Today we climbed up to a castle which is on the edge of a cliff and has a good view of the whole countryside. The castle itself isn't very spectacular but is a tourist "must." Forgot to say I went swimming before breakfast cause it was so lovely.

Tito has his summer house here as we decided to go and have a look at it. There was a guard at the gate but as there were six of us (and two were Canadians!) we baffled him into letting us come inside and look at the garden—really just to say we had! He wouldn't let us go very far, and as he had a gun we didn't press the point but I got a picture of the house.

Then we all went to the top of the mountain on the ski lift where there was a very good aerial view of Tito's house.

ON BOAT TO SPLIT—Yesterday we saw the 16 lakes that are all joined by waterfalls—what a picture—again the color of our lakes. I have been spoiled because I have seen just as beautiful lakes in Canada but none of the English girls had. This was near Opitya. I tried to send some post cards but nobody here had heard of Canada so didn't know what to charge for postage.

[illegible] Opitya we visited some tunnel caves 8,000,000 years old and [illegible] in there and a little train which we went around in.

In the middle there was a great open space with a chandelier in the middle of the "roof" which is used for a dance floor for Tito's parties. They must have to do a fast jig to keep warm because it seemed awfully cold in there! Then after a tunnel there was another big cave where Tito gives state dinners. It is a gorgeous place with sideboards made of rocks and tables of rock slabs. Must cost a lot to bring in all the food 15 miles underground and then cook it, etc.

One law here seems a bit harsh to me. If a bus driver has an accident, he is immediately killed—pronto—no trial or anything. Even if no one is killed and the driver of the state bus is found with any wine, he is also killed.

There don't seem to be any privately owned cars at all. The state owns everything. In the whole of Yugoslavia only five doctors are allowed to have their own cars.

Parts of the places we have been are very dirty and there is much poverty. The children are sweet and follow us all over town giving us flowers as they want their pictures taken.

Opitya is bad for mosquitos. I have been bitten and bitten and you must be careful about [illegible] [illegible] be eaten up. The food is wonderful. We get four courses at every meal, steaks, [illegible] [illegible] No vegies. There isn't much to buy [illegible] [illegible] that there may be at Dubrovnik.

SPLIT—Arrived [illegible] baggage etc. and this morning had a guide to show us around [illegible] Otherwise you could walk for ages and not see all the wonderful things [illegible] which is hidden away behind some awful apartment houses. [illegible] afternoon I spent on a [illegible] beach [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Tomorrow we go on an excursion to a famous island [illegible] off the [illegible] it be [illegible]

HVAR — We landed about 5:30 — an hour on the little boat from Split and had a swim even before unpacking. While in the water, I saw a sail boat go by and waved. I don't know if the man thought I was drowning but he came back and took me for an hour's sail. He was about 65—with no teeth but a pet. Didn't speak English but with his French and Yugoslave and my French and English we talked a lot and must have made an amusing pair if anyone had been listening. The next day he took me and two of my friends for a three and a half hour sail all through the neighboring islands. It was glorious.

TV Talk

By ROY PARRETT

Television dealers in some parts of the country are using a rather foul device in order to "push" certain brands of TV sets. It is a "padder," which is connected across the antenna input terminals of sets which the dealer does not wish to [illegible].

The device, usually a simple resister found in any radio shop, reduces the incoming TV signal, presenting a weak, snowy picture on sets doctored in this manner.

By this method unscrupulous TV men can display their own sets to good advantage alongside a competitive model. The poorest of receivers look good alongside a "super" model padded for the occasion.

"Shall we turn off television altogether or just talk during the commercials?"

HOLLYWOOD SCENE At least one star has fallen already from Tuesday's "Shower of Stars" drama which will feature Jack Benny in "Time Out for Ginger." At rehearsal co-star Claudette Colbert threw the script in air, gathered up her minks and took off after loudly suggesting to Benny "Get Shirley Temple for this role."

FOOTBALL Film highlights of yesterday's Washington-Oregon game will be seen on KING-TV at 12.45 today. Last week's Regina-Winnipeg feature is slated for CBUT at 2. The Rams take on the Steelers on KING-TV at 2.

FREEDOM AT STAKE "Are investigations and inquiries, official and unofficial, eating into our individual liberty?" This is the question posed on channel 4 at 3 p.m.

ENGLISH QUEEN The remarkable story of Lady Jane Grey's brief reign will be told on "You Are There" on channel 11 at 6.

HOME ON THE RANGE Art Baker will take viewers to a herd of bison and will visit a castle in the air and tag along with an underwater photographer on "You Asked for It" on channel 5 at 7.

OUTSTANDING MOVIE The recent British picture, "The Clouded Yellow," is slated for channel 5 at 7.30.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW Stars of the Broadway hit "Fanny" will be seen on Ed's channel 11 show at 8. The top talent of the U.S. navy is lined up for the CBUT version at the same hour.

ACTRESS STORY Ann Harding and Gene Nelson star in "Tryout," a drama about an actress who dreads her failing eyesight, on channel 11 at 9.

SHAKESPEARE'S "MACBETH" CBUT will present its opening "First Folio" major production tonight at 10, when "Macbeth" will be aired in a two-hour spectacular from Toronto.

CANDLELIGHT THEATRE Randolph Scott, Robert Mitchum and Alan Curtis star in "Gung Ho" on channel 12 at 10.30.

Island Group Plans Dinner

By ROBERT E. MILKS
Executive Commissioner
Victoria District

John L. MacGregor, executive commissioner for training at Canadian Headquarters, will visit Duncan Oct. 20. The Duncan-Chemainus district has invited scouters in the Victoria district to attend a dinner meeting at the Hotel Tzouhalem, at 7 p.m. Scouters wishing to attend should notify Victoria district headquarters as soon as possible.

Kirk Davis, Danny Hartlen, Dennis Williams, Jan White, Ricky Burgess, Graham Clark and Bruce Crombie were happy Cubs on Thursday. While they said goodbye to their Cubmaster, F. Naish of Windsor Park "A" Pack, they knew that after the "going-up" ceremony they would be members of the troop.

Patrol leaders and seconds of the 3rd Victoria Group are going out this week-end on a training hike with their scoutmaster. Many of the patrol leaders have gone on to Rovers and new leaders will be trained on this trip to the Sidney area.

Tillicum A Pack has had a busy week. Congratulations to Vernon Coward, and Robert Sainsbury, who were promoted to Sixers, and also Brent Simmons, Ian McIntyre and Paul Fairhurst, who were promoted to seconds. Scoutmaster Bob Webb welcomed Donald Grant, Brian Smedly, Kit Johaneson and Kenneth Piercy to the troop. Cubmaster of the pack, Mrs. Johaneson invested Gary Bowles and presented Vernon Coward with his Second Star.

* * *

St. Louis Troop started its new year off with a training hike for the patrol leaders and the leaders.

The following scout groups are going to hold "Scouting Explained" courses at their group committee meetings: Luxton Group Monday at 8.30 p.m., Centennial Group Wednesday at 7.30 and Colwood on Thursday at 8. Parents and friends are invited.

Many groups in the district are desperately short of leaders and are delaying their opening in the hope that leaders will be found. If you are interested in becoming a leader call district headquarters at 2-3915 and we will attach you to a group. Previous experience is not essential to make a person suitable as a leader. The main requisites are an interest in training boys and an enthusiasm for scouting.

Badges issued during the past week: Tenderpad: Wayne Le Masurier, Kenneth Wheatcraft, Robert Charles Westsals, James C. Ramey, Wayne Streich. Collectors: Richard Chappell, Brian Shaw, David Sargent. Gardener: Robert Buffam, David Sargent. Homecraft: Bobbie Burgess. House Orderly: Norman Taylor, Barry Cragg. Observer: Benny Marse. Swimmers: Paul Crossley, Michael Devlin, Richard Turley, Edwin Donald. Team Players: Edwin Donald. Toymaker: David Sargent, Allan Redwood, Pieter Hartmenshen. Tenderfoot: Richard Nevue, Neil Sancer, David Fairbairn, Danny Moen, Bill Mundy, John Glinz, Bill McRoberts, Philip Atherton, Danny Sleasdale. Second Class: W. Hanaka, L. Amstutz, elbert Cyr. Rescuer: John Kelly.

Mrs. R. J. Morris Heads Saanich Arts Centre

NORTH SAANICH—Mrs. R. J. Morris was elected president of the North Saanich Arts Centre at the annual meeting of the group at Anderson Studio this week.

Other officers elected: Mrs. W. Reagan, vice-president; Mrs. L. Prieswerck, secretary; Mrs. F. J. Eves, treasurer; Mrs. Reagan will also act as chairman of exhibits; Mrs. R. Swayne, vice-chairman of exhibits; Mrs. M. Buckingham, publicity; Mrs. G. Jack, chairman of membership and scholarship.

David Anderson reported on the scholarship award winners of the summer courses, and told the group that the large majority attended classes regularly. Some excellent work was produced.

A discussion of programs for the forthcoming season took place. Suggestions made to [illegible] interest and attendance included displays of work, visits to the Victoria Art Gallery, a distinguished artists tea, displays of local work, to be offered for sale and window displays.

It was also suggested by Mrs. Reagan that more interest be shown in the art sections of the Saanichton fair.

Races, Creeds Meet In Unity of YMCA

Norman Winslow, of Salem, Ore., gave a talk at Victoria YMCA Friday night on the recent world conference of Y's Men's Clubs in Paris.

Mr. Winslow said his main impression was one of expansion. More countries were in the YMCA movement, or seeking to become [illegible]

"It was wonderful to see so many races and creeds meet together, equally devoted to the same Christian principles and to YMCA," he said.

"This was a centenary conference, because it was in 1855, also in Paris, that young men from many different countries met and formed YMCA. The average age of those men was 23."

Mr. Winslow said there were four official languages at the conference—English, Spanish, French and German.

Operetta Launches Fall Fare

First operetta of the fall season will be presented in Langham Court Theatre Friday and Saturday when Victoria Light Opera Co. performs Mme. Winifred Lugrin Fahey's "Her Ladyship."

Tickets will be sold at the door.

Vanessa Lax, who has the leading role, comes from a musical family. Her father, who began her singing lessons four years ago, is Harold Ramsay, director of the music conservatory at Mount Royal College in Calgary.

He is also conductor of the Calgary Choral Society, organist and choirmaster of Wesley United church, a vocal teacher and a weekly broadcaster. Mr. Ramsay was organist at Knox United in Calgary during his youth and was a BBC and church organist and choirmaster in London during the Second World War.

Rotary Choir Has Vacancies

Applications for membership in the Rotary boys' choir during the 1955-56 season will end Saturday, officials announced yesterday.

Choir especially needs boys aged 14 to 18. More than 60 youngsters have been registered to date, but only 14 are in the older age group. Applicants should be in the Salvation Army building on Pandora street at 7 p.m. Saturday.

200 Attend Party

Keen Interest Shown In Community Club

BRENTWOOD — More than 200 members of the Brentwood Community Club attended the first "club party" Friday night at the community hall.

Don McMuldroch, president of the group, welcomed members. Moving pictures were shown following community singing, led by Victor Dawson.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Holloway, long-time club members who were observing their 25th wedding anniversary received an ovation, fellow club members singing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

GIFT PRESENTED

Mr. and Mrs. A. McKevitt were presented with a gift for use of their field for the ball club. Three championships were won.

Since the inception of the community club, interest has been keen. Every night some activity takes place in the hall.

Members of the Colwood District League and Brentwood teams practice and play league games in the hall on Friday. Badminton is played on Tuesday and Saturday nights. Pro-Rec is on Tuesdays, and square dancing by seniors on Thursdays.

Softball clubs under Rom Knott have been remarkably successful. Juvenile girls team won the B.C. championship for the second consecutive year this year. The midget girls team was also victorious in its division, B.C. champions this year for the second consecutive time.

Senior C. men were finalists in the B.C. finals. The Colwood District Softball League hold seven B.C. championships, and two teams were also in the finals.

The seven championships and two finalists were out of a possible 12 championships, a record never before been equalled in the district.

LADIES THANKED

Following refreshments, Don McMuldroch thanked the ladies, under Mrs. P. Hafer for their catering work. Hot dogs, coffee and cake were served to more than 200.

Other officers of the group are: Mrs. M. Peard, secretary; Ted Holloway, treasurer; Mrs. M. Knott, recording secretary; C. Douglas, vice-president, and H. Andrews, news editor.

Announcement was also made of the country fair on Oct. 15. PTA, Scouts and all local groups combine to make this event one of the most colorful of the season.

Arrival of Jazz Packs the House

The Club Tango, 2184 Oak Bay, had to borrow extra chairs and tables from a nearby banquet hall to cope with 250 visitors.

Robert Rhodes, trying to revive jazz in Victoria, said late last night: "We shall be putting on these jazz concerts each month now.

"There were more people here than we could accomodate. Some had to sit in the lobby.

"They really enjoyed themselves. Next time we plan to put over 'Dixieland' style."

Racing Fans Pack Sandown

Race-goers packed the grandstand and field at Sandown park yesterday in sufficient numbers to virtually assure Victorians that racing will return to the area next year. The 5,000 fans poured $78,335 into the mutuel windows, well exceeding the $57,000 wagered by a smaller opening day crowd last Saturday. Racing continues at the Sidney track all week and winds up on the Thanksgiving holiday Monday. Colonist Handicap by Kentucky Bob, who picked three winners Saturday, is on Page 16. Form Chart is on Page 11.

Anger Over Algeria Issue

France's Delegation to UN Ordered Home as Protest

British Foreign Secretary Supports Paris Viewpoint

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The French government, bitter over a UN vote to debate the way France rules North African Algeria, ordered a boycott of the UN general assembly and its committees Saturday.

Decision, on whether the French will cut away entirely from the UN was to be taken at a cabinet meeting in Paris. The cabinet met for two hours Saturday and recessed without reaching a decision. The whole delegation to the Assembly was ordered home in an overseas telephone call from Premier Edgar Faure in Paris to French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, temporarily heading the Assembly group here.

Herve Alphand, the new French permanent representative here, was also preparing to fly to Paris, on call for consultations. Pinay led the delegation walkout from the General Assembly hall Friday after delegates voted 28-27, with five abstentions, to reverse a Steering Committee decision which would have marred an Algerian debate.

France argued that Algeria is part of France and the UN must not intervene on domestic matters. Arab-Asian countries argued that the UN could properly discuss the question of human rights in Algeria.

Pinay and eight members of his country's UN General Assembly delegation left by air for Paris later Saturday night.

Before boarding the plane, Pinay told newsmen his group "would not attend and United Nations meetings, whether in regard to Algeria or anything else" until the French government has studied the situation thoroughly.

Commenting on a planned trip to Moscow by Prime Minister Edgar Faure, Pinay said:

"In view of what has happened in the UN General Assembly with regard to Algeria, it does not create enthusiasm for the trip. Now it is too soon to speak, in view of the situation. The atmosphere is not too favorable."

Members of the permanent delegation to the UN—as distinct from those sent here for the 10th Assembly session—were awaiting instructions on whether the withdrawal is total or partial and temporary.

Some diplomats here predicted a government crisis on the UN—Algeria situation, atop one brewing on Faure's program for Morocco. Whether Faure and Pinay would still be in the government Oct. 14, when they were scheduled to make a pre-Geneva visit to Moscow, was one of the intriguing questions raised here.

British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan, in Washington for informal talks with Secretary of States Dulles, characterized the incident as UN "growing pains."

"I think they (the French) protested against what they regard as dealing in their internal affairs, with which we have considerable sympathy," MacMillan told reporters.

Praying Woman Slain by Shot

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Mrs. Dorothy May Moore, 27, shot in the head while reciting the Lord's prayer, died in county hospital here Saturday, the victim of a grisly joke.

Marysville Police Chief John Blevins said that Gene Alton Harvey, 23, of Beale Air Force base, took a revolver from Mrs. Moore's bedroom thinking it was unloaded.

He pointed it at her and told her to "say your prayers." Mrs. Moore started on the Lord's prayer.

At the second line Harvey pulled the trigger. The gun just clicked.

She said the third line. He pulled again. It fired.

Chief's Lawyer Protests Disguise For 'Girl Friend'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer John G. Gould said Saturday he will demand that Helen Elizabeth Douglas take the stand undisguised when she appears for cross-examination at the resumption of the royal commission police inquiry here Tuesday.

Mr. Gould said he will discuss the issue with commission counsel J. G. Hutcheson Monday and then present his legal argument before commissioner R. H. Tupper when the hearing resumes after a 10-day adjournment.

Helen Douglas, testifying under her maiden name, has told the commission she had a five-year association with Chief Constable Walter Mulligan and had been given presents and money.

She was disguised with various wigs, clothes and accessories each time she appeared at the hearings.

Mr. Gould, counsel for Chief Mulligan, said today "it has been some centuries since a witness has been allowed to appear in a court in a mask and make an accusation. I see no difference between a mask and a disguise.

"It's a basic principle of justice," he added, "that a person making an accusation must stand up and be identified for purposes of cross-examination, which is a basic right in our courts.

"I will demand that she appear undisguised, and I will put her on view in the stand so the public can see her. I will ask her a few questions for the purpose of identication and then ask that she step down for a few days until I am ready to carry on a full cross-examination."

Another reason for his demand, the lawyer said, was that he consented to the woman's using her maiden name but did not know she would be disguised when she appeared in court.

He said he would not have consented to any disguise if he had known.

In her appearances before the commission, investigating charges of corruption and laxity within the police force, the woman was shielded by policemen from reporters and photographers and hustled in and out of the hearing room.

Tax Rental Deals Matter of Choice

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—With more than 170 delegates in attendance, the Dominion-provincial conference will open here on Monday, and indications are that tax rental agreements will be available to the provinces that want them.

The federal cabinet, which spent almost two days this week ironing out new proposals to be placed before the meeting, is understood to be ready to make the provinces a new offer to assure continuation of the tax rental plan.

The new proposals would be made under a new and more flexible set of formulas. The "have not" as well as the so-called "have" provinces would benefit.

Simultaneously, the federal government will offer the provinces an alternate plan which any or all could accept if they wished to remain out of the agreements. This proposal will be made largely to accommodate Quebec. Ottawa is not expecting the Duplessis government to accept any tax rental agreement plan Ottawa may be prepared to offer.

The conference, called primarily to deal with the question of tax agreements between Ottawa and the provinces which expire on March 31, 1957, also will consider:

1. A national health insurance plan, probably on a contributory basis.

2. Unemployment assistance.

Meeting Today

Mill Engineers Plan Strike Vote Monday

A strike vote will be taken Monday and Tuesday among powerhouse engineers and firemen in four Victoria lumber and shingle mills and from Monday until Friday at up-Island points and on the mainland.

The operating engineers' union, after a meeting last night, said it will meet with the Victoria men at 1 p.m. today in the labor hall.

A union spokesman said it was not policy to strike and the union will do everything in its power to avoid such action, "but we cannot accept an agreement negotiated by another union."

"We were not consulted and the settlement reached is considered far below the rates paid in other industries," the spokesman said.

The union was offered the same agreement as that accepted by the IWA, which gave an increase of five cents an hour this year and a similar amount next year.

Some 25 mills are affected, 11 of these on Vancouver Island.

Engineers' union demands were for a 10 per cent wage increase, three additional paid statutory holidays, dirty pay and other conditions applying to individual plants.

Tear Gas Quells Jail Riot

BOSTON (AP) — Some 250 inmates of Suffolk County House of Correction, hurling stones, lumber and furniture, staged a tumultuous riot for more than two hours Saturday night before more than 150 police and firemen quelled them with tear gas and heavy streams of water.

At least 30 guards, firemen and policemen were struck by stones but none was injured seriously.

The jail, situated on Deer island in Boston harbor, was in an uproar from shortly after 6.30 p.m. (EDT) until the men were driven back to their cells at 8.50 p.m.

During the melee the inmates, most of them serving short terms for minor offences, set several fires in the yard, broke windows and furniture and for a time held control of the Institution.

Police and firemen gradually herded the men from the yard into a cellblock by using streams of water.

Once in the building, the inmates smashed nearly everything breakable and threw the pieces at police and firemen.

Tear gas was fired into the cellblock and the men straggled out one by one. As they reached the doorway, they were grabbed by police and hustled into a nearby prison wing.

After the water and tear gas assault, a jail official said, "It looks like we've got the thing under control now."

Though Navy Ship Goes Aground, Show Impressive

VANCOUVER (CP—The destroyer HMCS Athabaskan went aground off smoke-shrouded Spanish Banks here Saturday but Exercise "Sea Serpent" was still a startling demonstration of co-operation and timing as Canada's three services combined for a mock raid on a city beach.

Navy authorities were not immediately available for comment on the grounding of the Tribal class warship but an officer said he understood the destroyer touched bottom only for a few minutes.

The Athabaskan, captained by Lieut.-Cmdr Charles E. Richardson, was refloated a short time later with the help of tide and tug. With her sister ship, HMCS Cayuga, she landed troops during the hour-long exercise.

Two men were slightly injured in the exercise, one suffering a small burn and the other minor injuries from a piece of blank ammunition.

Exercise "Sea Serpent," involving 1,000 men from the navy, air force and army, was the most spectacular and realistic public demonstration here since the Second World War.

Brig. George Kitching, B.C. area commander, said the demonstration, in part, was to show people just what "an unpleasant business war can be."

Crowds Fail To Bother Boy Pastor

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ronnie Norgaard of Vancouver is only 13 but already he is standing up before crowds of more than 200 and delivering sermons.

The boy is the youngest minister attending the three-day assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses which opened here Friday. More than 2,000 Witnesses are attending the rally. Ronnie is completely at ease making up Bible sermons and discussing Bible topics. He admits, however, there are usually some raised eyebrows when he goes around on door-to-door calls.

"They ask a lot of questions before they'll believe I'm serious," he says.

The boy-minister puts in nine hours a month with his religious work.

Community Chest Campaign

All-Out Drive for $210,000

Flag Ceremony Will Launch Red Feather Drive

When a simple Red Feather flag reaches the top of a flagpole at the Legislative Buildings at 3 this afternoon, the 1955 Community Chest campaign for $210,000 in Greater Victoria will be officially open.

First reports on progress of the 17th annual drive will be posted at noon tomorrow after firemen hoist a "Red Feather" thermometer at the Douglas and Fisgard corner of the Hudson's Bay Company department store, where new totals will be posted daily.

More than 250 volunteers from business men who began the industrial-commercial canvass of some 2,000 firms a week ago will step up their efforts. Another 1,400 canvassers will make final preparations for the residential drive beginning Oct. 11.

Urging everyone to give "generous financial support to this worthwhile appeal," Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday:

"It is unnecessary for me to catalogue the good work of the 17 recognized health and welfare organizations which appeal for your help under the Red Feather campaign. Every thinking citizen must be fully aware of the magnificent work being performed by these organizations."

Everyone should give "as much as they can to help the less fortunate," said Mayor Claude Harrison. "There can be no doubt whatsoever as to benefits accruing from the Community Chest campaign.

"It is a monument to charity and civilization itself that such a campaign is in operation," he said. "We, therefore, should back it to the limit."

Acting-Premier Eric Martin will represent the provincial government and Ald. Austin Curtis the city during the official opening ceremonies this afternoon. Padre H. F. Pike of HMCS Naden will give the invocation and a Queen's Scout will raise the flag.

Representatives of the municipalities, the chamber of commerce, the armed forces, the RCMP and each of the 17 Red Feather agencies will also attend. Ceremonies include the bands of HMCS Naden and the Queen's Own Rifles and a QOR honor guard.

Chest president Courtney Haddock, campaign chairman R. M. (Dinty) Moore and Chest founder F. E. Winslow will speak to a canvassers' rally in the Odeon theatre tonight. The film, "The Night My Number Came Up," will be shown, courtesy of the J. Arthur Rank organization.

The 17 Red Feather agencies are: Victorian Order of Nurses, Family and Children's Service, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, John Howard Society, YMCA, YWCA, Fred Lansberg Sunshine Camp, Boy Scouts, Community Welfare Council, Canadian Welfare Council, Columbia Coast Mission, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Citizens' Recreation Rooms, Senior Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital, Chrisimas Bureau, and St. John Ambulance Association.

Donations can be allocated to one or more agencies, and are deductible for income tax purposes. Less than 3 per cent of total contributions goes to meet campaign costs.
